

Construction Contracts May Be Let Soon

New Building Will Provide 500 Beds
At Northern Colony

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Construction contracts will be let within sixty days for the erection of an addition to Northern Colony and Training School for mentally retarded near Chippewa Falls.

Wilbur Schmidt, director of the state department of public welfare, said plans are virtually completed for a new 500 unit patient-care building that will cost at least $5,000,000. He said he hopes to submit the project for construction bids in November.

Northern Colony attracted considerable notoriety earlier this year when Gov. John Reynolds, trying to gather public support for his record-high budget of proposed expenditures, made a motion picture film which dramatically related the crowded conditions at the institutions.

He encountered an attack from Republicans in the legislature who claimed he exploited unfortunate patients for his own political benefit. The Republicans countered with another film which reported some institution reconstruction progress of recent years which they claimed the governor had ignored.

The Northern Colony has had crowding problems for years and every report from its management shows that they are becoming more severe.

The institution reported last week to the supervising board of welfare that over-capacity remains its keenest worry. With a rated capacity of 967 patients, it now has a population of nearly 1,700 with scores of other eligible patients on its waiting lists.

A 500 bed addition would probably require two years to build and furnish, Schmidt said.

8 Algerians Found Dead on Sahara

ALGIERS (AP) — Eight Algerians who tried to drive across the Sahara with a small water supply were found dead Friday between the oases of In-Salah and El Golea. Officials said the Algerians, who neglected to advise authorities of their departure, apparently got lost in a sand storm and ran out of gasoline.

Liquid Glass, or "neo-plastic," is the vehicle for the medium being explored by James Walsh of Kaukauna. Decorator's paint or watercolors are mixed with the glass as the first step. The mixture is about the consistency of tempera.

Kaukauna Artist Paints With Torch

James Walsh's Probe for Newness Turns Up Unique Medium of Work

By JAY JOSLYN

Post-Crescent Sunday Editor

KAUKAUNA—James Walsh, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Walsh, 811 Spring St., paints with a blow torch—a medium he believes to be unique in the Midwest, if not in the entire country.

A collection of these blow torch works is on display at the Kolb Galleries, 502 E. Pacific St., Appleton.

A graduate of Layton Art School, Milwaukee, this spring, Walsh came upon his chosen medium while working on the problem of light and glass in his study of industrial design.

He has been developing the blow torch technique for about five years now and he says he is learning more about it with every piece he finishes.

Liquid Glass

Although he started with bits of glass, Walsh soon switched to liquid glass or "neo-plastic," as his vehicle because of the dangers inherent in handling sharp shards of glass.

The technique works this way. Walsh mixes watercolor or decorator's paint with the liquid glass and applies this milky substance on building board with a brush in layers of colors. This substance quickly hardens.

Then he applies heat from a blow torch and works the softened surface with a putty knife.

Color Changes

The heat brings out the color of the vehicle and Walsh can control the degree of color with the amount of heat. The torch and knife also cut through the layers of paint and glass.

All this produces a highly textured surface of luminous and iridescent colors. The extremely hard surface also does a dramatic job of reflecting light.

Even more dramatic effects can be achieved in this medium, Walsh says, by using a glass plate instead of a building board for the "canvas." The light then can play two ways on the designs and colors.

Something New

Walsh says an artist should strive to produce something new and exciting. He feels this best can be achieved through courageous use of color and color combinations. This color courage, he feels, is lacking in most of today's artists.

His works, he says, communicate his ideas to viewers through emotion, color and form and, because of his academic background in design, he feels strongly that an artist should have a point to get across.

The works of Georges Braque and Vincent Van Gogh have influenced him greatly, he says, as has his interest in the outdoors. He is a canoeing enthusiast. Walsh also believes his six years of racing outboard motors lend a degree of violence to his works.

Encouragement

Interest in art is a long time thing with Walsh, but the encouragement he received from a home room teacher at Kaukauna High, from which he graduated in 1958, and a year of routine work at the Thilmany mill, where his father works, solidified his desire to devote his life to the arts.

His mother is an accomplished seamstress and her sewing and alterations work raised the money, he said, that put him through Layton. His work and his mother's sewing are the only active participation in the arts in his family. He has an older brother, Mike, a salesman in Chicago, and two younger sisters, Janet of Kaukauna and Carol of Appleton, both of whom are housewives.

The exhibit at the Kolb Galleries is the second for Walsh in the Fox Cities. In 1962 a collection of his blow torch art went on display at D. P. Heindel Interiors in Kaukauna.

Bergstrom Hangs Exhibit By Neenah High Teacher

One-Man Show by Robert Ekholm Opens Wednesday at Art Center

NEENAH — A one-man show of oil and encaustic paintings and lithographs by Robert Ekholm opens Wednesday at the Bergstrom Art Center. The exhibition is something of a salute to the competent artist who has rejuvenated interest in the fine arts at Neenah High School where he is art instructor.

Ekholm says he has a compulsion to paint and that he is most greatly challenged by the problem of expressing mood on canvas. The bulk of the exhibition is the result of the stimulant he received by the many moods he found in the landscapes of Door County.

"Each painting represents a unity of ideas, technique and emotion on my part. I conceive an idea and consider it for a long time before it emerges into a painting," he says. "A colorist at heart, I must confess that my work tends to follow a pattern—to examine the details of rocks, trees and buildings, then widen to the panoramic view and concentrate again on the smaller elements of landscape forms and color has its special meaning all the way through."

The exhibition contains 21 pieces of work.

Today the current exhibition of graphics by Alfred Sessler of the University of Wisconsin closes. Following the Sessler show has a special meaning for Ekholm. Sessler was his major professor when he was studying at the university. Ekholm has exhibited at the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C.; the University of Wisconsin Salon of Art, Madison; the Art Institute of Chicago and the Milwaukee Art Center.

Encaustic Enthusiasm

One other exhibit, a one-man show at Alex's Supper Club, indicated that Ekholm is most at home using encaustic as his medium and this enthusiasm has been caught by members of Ekholm's Neenah High art classes. The works for the Bergstrom exhibit also reveal that Ekholm is equally at home with oil and the crayon and stone of lithography.

Ekholm says he attempts to "provide a personal, spiritual and individual message" in his works by seeking the universal aspects of things and by probing the subconscious and attempting to plumb the depths of creativity.

Morgan Russell Display

Painter's Widow Lends Understanding to Exhibit of Modern Art Pioneer in Oshkosh

OSHKOSH—Added appreciation

Walter Joyce are very French and very enthusiastic, each holding the late modern painting pioneer in high esteem. Mrs. Russell, who lives in Dallas, is a summer visitor to the Fox Cities area, living with her daughter at Oak Point on Lake Buttes des Morts.

Shortly after the turn of the century Russell spearheaded a move that carried the Braque-Picasso Cubism innovation into the realm of pure color abstractions. These abstractions, which Russell called Synchronisms, made their American debut at the famed 1913 Armory Show.

Misconceptions

Misconceptions concerning Russell's career after his explosive entrance into the forefront of the art world were cleared up by Mrs. Russell.

This was not true, Mrs. Russell said. Her husband, she explained, applied his theory of pure color abstraction to each segment of a picture no matter how large the finished work or how representative the results.

Reveals Theory

The works in the Oshkosh exhibit, once this idea has been pointed out, reveal these segments of color-heightened designs.

The exhibition includes only one Synchronism and even that one isn't as "pure" as the ones that made Russell's early reputation since it is obviously a still life study.

Also in the show are fine drawing studies, some landscapes, a

Victors Blank Florida Gators, 9-0, in Downpour

ATLANTA (AP)—Georgia Tech kept its string of 37 consecutive home opening football victories intact Saturday, beating the Florida Gators 9-0 in the nationally televised first major college game of the season in a cold, steady rain.

Tech's strong defense kept the Gators bottled up in their own territory most of the game. Tech's deepest penetration was to Tech's 30 at the start of the second half.

Quarterback Billy Lottridge, Tech's "Mr. Do-It-All," booted a 35-yard field goal with 3:30 remaining in the first half. Halfback Joe Auer drove over from the 9-yard line with 5:35 seconds remaining in the third period. Lottridge missed the extra point.

Tech's powerful defense held the Gators to minus five yards rushing. The Gators also were hurt badly by several crucial 15-yard penalties. Florida was penalized 75 yards.

Florida's left-handed quarterback, Tom Shannon, was lousy and again thrown for big losses and Tech's hard rushing line.

Tech went into the second period with yardage passing from several yards behind the line of scrimmage. But Tech was unable to gain.

Florida attempted to make a first down on fourth and one at its own 34, but a mixup in signals gave Tech the ball. On third down, halfback Joe Auer ran 13 yards around left end for a first down at Florida's 14. However, the Gators held and moved Tech back to the Florida 18.

On fourth down Lottridge booted a 35-yard field goal for Tech's first score.

Tech missed another chance to score a few plays later when a blocked punt rolled out of the end zone. The play was called back when Tech was penalized five yards for being offside. Then a bad snap from center on the next play gave Tech the ball at the Florida 8. But back Ken Russell intercepted a Lottridge pass and Florida ran out the clock.

Gophers Lose Quarterback

Hankerson Suffers Broken Collar Bone In Grid Scrimmage

MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Minnesota's football forces suffered still another severe blow Saturday when No. 2 quarterback John Hankerson sustained a broken collar bone in a scrimmage won 85-0 by a Maroon team over the Whites.

Scoring for the first and second team Maroons were fullback Mike Reid on a yard plunge, halfback Stan Skjei on a 48-yard run which was the day's best, quarterback Bob Sadek on a yard sneak, halfback Dick Harren on a 36-yard pass from Sadek and end Kent Kramer on a 16-yard pass from Sadek.

Skjei also ran over a conversion, while Reid kicked two extra points and Harren booted one.

Coach Murray Warmath, gloomy over the injury to Hankerson, said, "there just wasn't anything to be happy about today."

Chicago Has Not Scored In City Stadium Since 1960; Will They Explode?

GREEN BAY—The Bears haven't scored a point in city stadium since 1960 . . . they are due to explode.

The Packers blanked the Bruins 24-0 in 1961 and 49 to 0 in 1962 on Green Bay soil.

That's a little fantastic since the Bears and Packers are ancient rivals and go after each other with great gusto.

The Packers and Bears meet in City Stadium today for the 90th time since 1921 and the defending world champion Green Bays are solid favorites to get off with a victory.

Kickoff is set for 1:06 before a capacity audience of 42,312.

But, if you'll pardon the broken record, the Packer-Bear series is fraught with upsets and unbelievable odds of all sorts.

The Packers weren't supposed to beat the Bears in 1959 when Coach Vince Lombardi made his debut but Green Bay eked out the decision in a great game, 9-6.

One year later the Packers figured to win and had a 14-0 lead going into the last quarter. The Bears piled up two quick touchdowns and kicked a field goal in the final seconds to win 17-14.

In eight Bear games under Lombardi the Packers won six and lost two and outscored the Green Bays 237 to 85.

Thus, the Packers have the victory momentum, maybe the "sign" on the Bears . . . but anything can happen in a Bear-Pack game — and usually does.

The Packers play their first home game since 1957 when Paul was a rookie fresh out of Notre Dame. Also missing from the starting cast of the 1962 champions is Bill Quinlan, the rough and ready defensive right end.

Tom Moore has handled Quinlan's position, as he did Harte in the last two seasons, with great success during the pre-season campaign. And a fine-looking rookie, Lamon Aldridge, has done exceptionally well, especially on his pass rush, in Quinlan's spot.

The other 20 starters are the same — Jim Taylor, Bart Starr, Boyd Dowler, Max McGee, For Norm Masters, Ron Kramer, Fuzest Gregg, Bob Skoronski, zzy Thurston, Jerry Kramer and Capt. Jim Davis on the offense and Willie Dingo, Dave Hanner, Hank Jordan, Capt. Bill Forester, Ray Nitschke, Dan Currie, Jess Whitenton, Herb Adderley, Willie Wood and Hank Greenberg on the defense.

These players and a good bench come in with the highest scoring offense and the tightest defense in the league last year — not to mention the Western and World Tion titles.

This is a new year with all of its new problems . . . and the Bears rate as a new problem.

Halas has steamed his coaching staff and the club's offense and defense thinking has been changed. The Bears with Bill Wade at Quarterback has the big back offense with Rick Casares and Ron Bull and three good receivers in John Farrington, Mike Ditka and Johnny Morris.

Defensively the Bears will base their hopes on a good pass rush. The Bruins' patented toughness on defense undoubtedly will be very noticeable.

Beebe Scores Five Times in Carroll Victory

ASHLAND (AP)—Carroll College led by fullback Rick Beebe's five touchdowns trounced Northland 60-13 Saturday in a non-conference football game.

Beebe scored twice on runs of one yard twice on runs of two yards and once on a three yard scamper. Halfback Randy Dziedowicz added two more touchdowns for Carroll on runs of 65 and 11 yards.

Northland scored both of its touchdowns in the last half after trailing 34-0 at the intermission.

Linebacker Jake Carlson picked up a Carroll fumble and ran 55 yards for one touchdown while fullback Ken Weiler caught a 16-yard pass from quarterback Larry Stedens for the other.

Eighth Straight for Cards

Braves' Rally Falls Short

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ron Taylor stuffed out a ninth inning Milwaukee rally in relief of Bob Gibson Saturday as St. Louis beat the Braves 3-2 and stayed 2½ games behind the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Dodgers' 51 winners at Philadelphia, meet the Cards in a three-game series at St. Louis starting Monday.

The victory over Milwaukee was the Cardinals' eighth straight and their 17th in the last 18 games.

Gibson pitched a three hitter into the ninth inning and added an important double in the Cards' two-run fifth inning.

Bill White hit a solo homer for the Cardinals in the sixth which proved to be the deciding hit.

Ty Cline got the first hit off Gibson, a high hopper to the mound in the fifth inning, and Joe Torre homered in the seventh.

In the ninth Taylor was safe on an error by Ken Boyer and Len (Gabriel) Doolen doubled to right with Torre stopping at third. Tommy Aaron pitched hit and singled to left on the first pitch scoring Torre and making it 3-2.

That brought on Taylor. He retired Dennis Menke on a foul to White, struck out Cline and got Frank Bolling to hit into a force play for the final out.

Gibson struck out seven and walked five in his eighth inning and won his 18th against right-handed batters.

Tom McCarver, the hard working rookie Card catcher hitting at a .382 clip in the last 15 games started St. Louis two-run rally in the fifth with a single his second.

With one out Gibson blasted a long one to the top of the wall in left which went for a double when umpires claimed a fan touched it.

McCarver raced home from the mound on Julian Javier's grounder to short when Roy McMillan threw wild to the plate and Gibson went to third. Gibson scored when Frank Bolling threw home too late to get him on a grounder by Dick Groat.

White added his 26th home run. Curt Flood added to extend his hitting streak to 15 straight games.

Miss Smith's disaster occurred on the par 34th hole. First she hit into a green side trap. She failed to get out with her first chip shot. Her second went too far and then she two-putted for a double bogey. She also went one over par on the 15th.

Miss Whitworth went two over on the fourth hole and one over on the fifth. She made up lost ground in the afternoon round with two-under par on the 44th and 15th holes. She was one under on the 18th.

Shirley Englehorn, Caldwell, Idaho, was the defending champion, was sixth with 77-75-227.

Bruhn said Brandt will start next Saturday against Western Michigan.

No injuries were reported.

Rubin Carter Scores Decision Over Salim

One-Sided Bout Is Last on TV Saturday Night

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Rubin Carter switched his attack from a fearsome two-fisted attack to a vicious American several times with South left hooks and straight rights thrown mainly to the body.

Carter switched his attack from the body to the head in the fifth and ninth rounds and hurt Salim the body, scored an easy 10-round decision over Farid Salim Saturday night at Pittsburgh's Civic Arena.

Carter 156½ of Paterson, N.J., began throwing bombs at the opening bell and Salim, the South American middleweight champion from Argentina, never had a chance.

A crowd of 4,316 watched the one-sided battle which was the last in the series of nationally televised Saturday night fights which began in Oct. 1960. The fights will be telecast once again on Friday nights starting kayoes.

Referee Buck McTiernan scored the fight 50-40 for Carter under the five-point must system Judge George Lupoanovic gave it to Carter 50-41 while judge Art McGovern had it 49-45 for the New Jersey slugger.

The Associated Press scored the fight 48-35 for Carter.

Titans Fall Before River Falls, 14 to 0

Fumble, Pass Interception Lead to Pair of Scores in SCC Opener for Both

BY ALLEN EKVAL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — An intercepted pass and a fumble combined to spoil Russ Young's debut as Oshkosh State College grid coach here Saturday, as River Falls State College followed up on both to score a 14-0 win over the Titans.

Four of the OSC passes were snared by River Falls, and one of the Oshkosh fumbles occurred as the Titans crossed the goal line for the only time in the game. River Falls came up with that fumble and kept the Titans scoreless.

The Titans moved the ball from their own 43 to the goal line the first time it had the ball, collecting four first downs along the way. Sophomore fullback Gordy Weldboom carried the ball over from the one-yard line, but lost it on the way. River Falls center Harvey Ankley came up with the ball, which cost the Titans a touchdown.

First Touchdown
The Titans scored their first touchdown in the closing minutes of the first half when halfback Tom Sterpt intercepted a Titan pass on the Oshkosh 27 and moved it up to the 14 yard stripe. Quarterback Bob Pritchard moved it over on the second play, and Wayne Burich converted.

Oshkosh moved the ball from its own 9 in the third quarter down to the River Falls 39 when Falcon quarterback Tom Hetzel intercepted a pass to end any Titan threat that turn.

After that neither side could go far with the ball. Titan quarterback Jim Jaeger, a junior from Milwaukee, fumbled the ball and the Falcons moved to their second touchdown in five plays. Burich went over on second down from one yard out. Burich also converted to keep the Falcons ahead with a 14-0 lead.

Another Interception
The field, and again a pass interception, this time by Falcon halfback Dennis Kaiser, called a halt to their advance. River Falls picked up one first down and came inches short of a second one on the Oshkosh 35.

The Titans tried three passes. The first was incomplete, the

The 22-year-old, 190-pound player flew here from Sweden where he played on the national team.

The Rangers invited him to their National Hockey League training camp opening Monday, and Sterner said:

"If they are satisfied I'll stay."

Sterner told reporters he is greatly impressed with the caliber of NHL skating which he has seen on film. He has never seen a real game.

Ulf Janason, a Swedish hockey writer who accompanied Sterner here and acted as interpreter, said the player "is positive professional material. He can do everything well."

Beman Wins Amateur Golf Championship

Dick Sikes Is Erratic in 36-Hole Finals

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN
Associated Press Sports Editor

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Clock steady Deane Beman defeated an erratic Dick Sikes 2 and 1 Saturday in a tense 36-hole final for the United States Amateur Golf Championship.

The 25-year-old Bethesda, Md., insurance man, never flustered despite a puny drive that cost him the first hole, annexed his second national title mainly because of a five-hole winning streak that started late in the morning round and carried over into the afternoon.

However, it was his trusty putter that brought him a birdie on the 32nd hole from 18 feet and closed any chances that Sikes might have had of staging a late rally.

Won In 1960
The five-hole surge lifted Beman from 3 down to 2 up over Sikes, the National Collegiate champion from Arkansas who eight times drove off the fairway before lunch and then fought a halcyon putter most of the way in the day's second trip over the wooded hills of the Wakonda Club's 6,896 yards.

Beman first won the U.S. Amateur in 1960, a year after he had taken the British title. Since his 1959 triumph overseas, the stocky, father of three daughters has been the low amateur in the 1962 U.S. open, played on three Walker Cup teams, three America's Cup teams and two world amateur squads.

The restless Sikes who charges from tee to green like a fireman answering a general alarm, looked headed for a runaway before Beman started his five-hole rally on the 15th by sinking a 10-foot birdie putt.

Sikes In Trouble
Beman cut his deficit by another hole on the 16th when the former Public Links champion missed the green and lost to a par. Beman stuck a No. 6 iron shot 30 inches from the flag for a birdie deuce on No. 17, and then wedged one to eight feet from the hole on the 18th for a birdie three that gave him a 1 up edge before they went to lunch.

When play was resumed Sikes sent his second on the 19th over the green and the ball rolled down the steep incline into a pocket in a gravel path below. A study of the rule book showed that it was not a hazard and the slender Arkansas chipped out, the ball going only half way up the slope.

covered on Oshkosh's 32. Graber was hurt on the play but returned later in the game.

Knights Fumble 3 Times
The line Chuck Koch's try for the point was no good, and it was 6-0.

After Lourdes gave up the ball early in the second frame the Dons scored again in only five plays. The payoff was a six-yard keeper up the middle by Koch. The kick was no good, and Marshfield held a 12-0 margin.

Forced to Punt
Lourdes was forced to punt again, and Marshfield reached paydirt in six plays. The touch down came when halfback Bob Koch went around left end, cut three Lourdes fumbles didn't help the Knights' cause. However, the Oshkosh secondary did steal three Marshfield passes.

Marshfield's first TD came near the end of the first quarter when fullback Lloyd Hoffman plunged one yard through the right side of

Raider Tackle Goes 47 Yards With Loose Ball

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KAUKAUNA — The Golden Raiders of Sheboygan North spoiled Kaukauna's home opener on the new Doly Bayoregon Recreation area field by taking a 12-6 non-conference win Saturday afternoon.

The football game was the first played in Kaukauna since 1961 when the old field was abandoned and the Ghosts were forced to move to Little Chute for last year's games while the present field was being built.

Sheboygan North capitalized on loose play by the Ghosts in the second period to garner the win. A ball slipped through the hands of Buddy O'Brien and Ken Leys defensive tackle for the Raiders scooped up the loose pigskin and rumbled 47 yards for the deciding touchdown.

Opening Score
Sheboygan took the opening kickoff with Tony Buschmann returning to their own 32 yard line. With Buschmann and Glen Siegl alternating on end sweeps and off-tackle slants, the Raiders began a march to the initial score.

The winners ground out 15, 13 and 11 yards in their opening scoring march and were not hampered by a 5-yard penalty. Siegl skirted his own right end for five yards to score. The try for extra point by Tom Laack was wide to the right as was his second attempt later in the game.

Kaukauna was limited to two yards after taking the kickoff and were forced to punt to the Raiders. An offside penalty hurt the overanxious Ghosts. The Ghost defense stiffened on the next series of downs and forced the Raiders into 25 yards loss in the next three downs. This included a 15-yard loss in a pass attempt which never was launched.

Again the Ghosts were unable to move and were forced to punt shortly after the end of the first period. Sheboygan was again held losing five yards in three downs and a poor punt put the Ghosts in good position on the Sheboygan 38 yard line.

Disaster Strikes
It was here the ball squirted through O'Brien's fingers on a direct snap from center and Leys pulled his heroics. The remainder of the first half was played between the 30-yard stripes with neither team able to generate a drive. An exchange of punts had Sheboygan taking over on its own 37 as the half ended.

Tom Versteegen returned the opening second half kickoff to the Kaukauna 44-yard line to raise Kaukauna hopes, but the Ghosts could pick up only three yards and were forced to punt. The two teams battled on fairly even terms for the remainder of the third period with John Gerend, fullback for Sheboygan, intercepting and returning to the Kaukauna 27-yard line to end the third period.

The first play of the fourth period saw Buschmann reel off 22 yards to the Kaukauna 5-yard stripe but aided by a 5-yard penalty the Ghosts held. After the Ghosts were unable to move, they punted and subsequently Versteegen recovered a fumble on the Sheboygan 49 to set up the touchdown. Four running plays netted a first down by inches after the end, outran his pursuers and went 39 yards for the first Kaukauna score. A running try for point was no good.

Kaukauna again took over on its own 25 yard line with about two minutes remaining and aided by a pass from Mike Andrews to Pete Bordini marched to the Sheboygan 18-yard stripe. Kaukauna was knocking on the door for a touchdown, but Bill Loeffler intercepted on the last play of the game to halt the Kaukauna drive.

Xavier Rolls to 24th Successive Triumph, Thumps Pacelli, 40-0

Bleier Picks Up 134 Yards Rushing in 1st 2 Periods

STEVENS POINT — Xavier High School rolled up its 24th consecutive victory by thumping Pacelli High of Stevens Point, 40-0 Saturday afternoon here.

After a scoreless first period, the Hawks left little doubt as to the outcome when they pushed across three touchdowns in the second quarter, followed up with six points in the third period and added 14 in the final stanza.

Bob "Rocky" Bleier again was the standout for Xavier with 134 yards gained in 12 rushes, all in the first half. The Hawk star did not carry the ball at all in the second half as Coach Gene Clark gave his reserves a chance to see plenty of action in the final non-conference test of the season.

Bleier scored the first Xavier touchdown when he went 66 yards around end early in the second period. His run capped an 80-yard drive. Bleier also ran the point over for a 7-0 lead.

A short time later Paul Putzer drove seven yards off tackle for another Hawk touchdown. Bleier again ran the point over. Jim Rather tossed a 30-yard aerial to Colin Smith just before the half ended to make it 20-0 as a run for the point was stopped.

In the third quarter, Rather scored on a 2 yard sneak after a 75-yard Xavier drive mainly on ground plays. Bleier tried to boot the extra point but failed.

Gary Gunderson finished off a 70-yard Xavier drive in the fourth quarter with a 2 yard plunge for the score. The march included a 43-yard pass from Paul Nachter to Smith. Gunderson scored the point after on a plunge. The final Xavier score came when Paul Springer intercepted a pass and went 45 yards. Gunderson again counted the point on a run.

The deepest penetration for Pacelli all afternoon was to the Xavier 27 yard line. The Hawk defense played an outstanding game.

NOTES and NOTIONS

The superlatives have about been exhausted. The statistics on his career have become as familiar as the Dow-Jones stock averages. What more can be said, then, about Warren Spahn except that he is truly a man to remember. As an authentic baseball genius, he is to pitching what Ted Williams and Stan Musial have been to hitting. Unlike Ted (who has retired) and Stan (who is about to retire), Spahn enters the game with no thought of leaving his active role in this fiercely competitive sport. His feat of winning 20 games as a 42-year-old is roughly tantamount to Konrad Adenauer's leading the West German nation at age 85 or thereabouts. In both cases, it was a notable first. Certainly other athletes have kept going after their 40th birthdays — such as Archie Moore and Sugar Ray Robinson, for example. Most of the others, though, were in reasonable facsimiles of their former athletic selves. Not Spahn. He is still at the very top of his trade — and only a handful of hurlers 10 to 20 years his junior can claim equal billing for the '63 season. No athlete has ever deserved a "night" more than Spahn. Another gratifying feature about Tuesday's fete in Milwaukee is that Warren will not profit from the fans' generosity and appreciation. (Money raised on his behalf will go into a scholarship fund.) Few athletes — certainly no baseball player — have brought greater glory to Wisconsin than its transplanted (since '53) son, Warren Spahn.

After merely reading about such Hall of Famers as Walter Johnson, Grover Alexander, etc., we have been fortunate, indeed, to watch a contemporary "great" perform. We may never see the likes of Spahn again. With the ever-growing use of relief pitchers, the demanding effects of mixing night and day baseball and the increased number of arm maladies, the 300-win breed of pitcher could be headed for extinction. The amazingly durable Spahn not only ranks as the top pitcher of the post-World War II period but has the credentials for being adjudged the best lefty ever and one of the top half-dozen pitchers of all time. Spahn never won 30 games in a season, such as Bob Grove did; he never fanned six straight batters in an all-star game, as Carl Hubbell did; and he never pitched two consecutive no-hitters (although he came close), as Johnny Vander Meer did. But, Warren's career-long record puts him ahead of all the other southpaws. The best of all is that Spahn has been a "star" off the field as well as on. No breath of scandal has ever touched him... No reports of carousings... no run-ins with umpires, reporters or fans. Spahn, indeed, is an athlete any youngster can afford to emulate.

The word around Comiskey Park is that Pete Ward may be transferred to first base by the White Sox in another year or two. Ward, who threatens to lead the American League in total hits and break a number of White Sox rookie records, also leads AL third basemen in errors. The former Fox Cities star's eventual position will probably depend on how well infielder Don Buford hits big league pitching. Buford just won the International League bat title.

Wisconsin's Ron Miller, who has failed to stick in the two American professional football circuits, now is getting a trial with the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian League. Badger fans, who remember the big thrills Miller provided during the 1960 and '61 seasons, hope Ron's perseverance pays off. An established Edmonton star, Johnny Bright, has made an expected move. A former Drake all-American, Bright recently took his Canadian citizenship oath. Bright has gained 10,518 yards in about 10 years of north-of-the-border competition.

Byron (Whizzer) White came up with a dandy at the pro football hall of fame ceremonies in Canton, Ohio, last weekend. Upon seeing Don Hutson, the "associate justice of the supreme court said, "This is the first time I ever saw you from the front. In my playing days, I never saw anything but your back while I was chasing you downfield." When Curly Lambeau spotted a painting of George Halas talking with an official, the long-time Packer coach said, "That's a characteristic pose, George. They caught you arguing with the officials." Lambeau, in turn, got the needle from another hall-of-famer, Cal Hubbard. "Look at the way they immortalized Curly," said Hubbard. "They painted him on the sidelines, shouting orders. I'll bet you he's ordering a forward pass. He never wanted to anything but pass." Lambeau had an answer for that. He hinted that until Hubbard starting playing tackle, the Packers never had a line. "We couldn't even walk, much less run with the ball," insisted Curly. "We had to pass."

On the basis of total home runs hit in organized baseball, Sheboygan's "Unser Choe" Hauser ranks as the seventh most prolific slugger of all time. Hauser hit 478 homers, all but 79 of them coming in the minor leagues. The only six men who hit more are Babe Ruth, Ted Williams, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx, Mel Ott and Stan Musial. Ruth hit only one of his 715 homers in the minors, while Ott hit all of his 511 in the majors. Eddie Mathews and Mickle Mantle rank right behind Hauser (at eighth and ninth, respectively), on the all-time list.

Sporting News Picks Ward as Top AL Rookie

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Two infielders, Pete Ward of the Chicago White Sox, and Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds, were named Saturday as the major league baseball's rookies of the year in the Sporting News annual poll.

The newspaper also named another White Sox player, Gary Peters, as the American League rookie pitcher of the year. Ray Culp of the Philadelphia Phillies was named as the National League's best rookie pitcher. Peters, the paper said, was the only one of the four who did not have serious competition for the honor he received. Culp was championed in the poll by St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Ron Taylor and Weyenberg's 544 series.

Milwaukee Braves hurler Bob Sadowski

In the rookie of the year race in the American League, Ward was pushed by Minnesota Twins outfielder Jimmie Hall and Cleveland Indians' infielder Max Alvis. National League runners-up in the rookie of the year award were Ken Hunt of the New York Mets, an infielder, and John Bateman, a catcher for the Houston Colts.

Maynard Eisch Hits 256 Game

Maynard Eisch combined a 256 singleton with a 585 series to take honors in the Businessmen's League last week at the 12 Corners Lanes.

Other high scores were Ervin Stewart's 238 game, Bob Jenged in the poll by St. Louis Cardinal pitcher Ron Taylor and Weyenberg's 544 series.

Packers, New York Will Win Division Titles, Says Hand

Colts, Lions, Bears to Give Bays Trouble, AP Writer Declares

BY JACK HAND
NEW YORK (AP)—Green Bay should win a third straight National Football League title by beating the New York Giants Dec. 29 in the Wisconsin snowbanks after surviving a bitter brawl with Baltimore, Detroit and Chicago in the Western Conference.

No team ever won three championships in a row since the NFL adopted the playoff plan in 1933. However, the Packers did take three straight from 1929 through 1931.

Despite the loss of Paul Hornung, who was suspended indefinitely by Commissioner Pete Rozelle for betting on football games, the Packers appear to have too much for the others in solid down-the-line strength.

Once again Coach Vince Lombardi's team will have a sturdy defense with a sound running game built around Jim Taylor and Tom Moore, plus an adequate air arm. After the shocking defeat by the College All-Stars in August, the Packers won five straight exhibitions leading up to Sunday's home opener with the Chicago Bears.

Surprising Strength
Baltimore (4-1 in the exhibitions) has shown surprising strength under new coach Don Shula. The Colts outgained the Packers in both meetings last year but lost both. They could be rough if J. W. Lockett can do the job at fullback and rookie John Mackey comes through at tight end. Detroit again has that back-breaking defensive unit, although Alex Karras is sitting out an indefinite suspension. The Lions' offense may not be enough.

The Bears haven't beaten the Packers since the 1960 opener and still are smarting from a 49-0 drubbing last season. Ron Bull should give the Bears a running game to go with Bill Wade's passes.

Minnesota has shown great improvement in the exhibitions, scoring consistently. If the Vikings have been able to tighten up the pass defense they could beat out both the rebuilding Los Angeles Rams and the San Francisco 49ers.

In the Eastern Conference, the Giants' hopes ride on Y. A. Tittle's arm, and a venerable but rugged defense. Dallas could give the Giants the most trouble because of its explosive offense. Tom Landry appears to have solidified his defense. Pittsburgh's running game and defense make the Steelers a factor. Cleveland has problems but the Browns still have Jimmy Brown.

To Miss Crow
St. Louis will miss fullback John David Crow while Charlie Johnson gets a chance to prove he ranks with the top quarterbacks. Philadelphia again looks like a good pass-no run club and Washington figures to be involved in some wild ones with Norm Snead throwing and the other club picking the Skins defense apart.

WESTERN CONFERENCE
1. Green Bay	1 1/2	4 1/2
2. Baltimore	1	1
3. Detroit	3	3
4. Chicago	3	3
5. Minnesota	2 1/2	2 1/2
6. Los Angeles	2	2
7. San Francisco	2	2
EASTERN CONFERENCE
1. New York	2	2
2. Dallas	2	2
3. Pittsburgh	2	2

4. Cleveland
5. St. Louis
6. Philadelphia
7. Washington
Lombardi appears to have come up with a top rookie in Lionel Aldridge for Bill Quinlan's old job. As Moore played most of last season when Hornung was injured and Jerry Kramer handled the place kicking, the Packers' figure to miss the Golden Boy most for his combative spirit. Green Bay is solid all the way.

The Packers play the Bears, Lions and Colts in that order in their first three games. By nightfall on Sept. 29 we should know if we will have a race in the West.

More Versatile
Johnny Unitas' sore arm forced the Colts to experiment. Tom Matte appears ready to play a more important role in a more versatile attack. However, Baltimore will miss Billy Ray Smith on that defensive line.

The Lions could use Dr. Kildare with Pat Studstill having knee trouble and Terry Barr still on the questionable list. You won't score often on Detroit. Their problem is getting on the scoreboard. Bull could turn out to be the man of the year among the NFL runners. For the most part, George Halas is going with the veterans who finished with a rush in 1962.

Norm Van Brocklin's Minnesota club can move when Tommy Mason is healthy and Fran Tarkenton is on target. There is no better pass rusher than Jim Marshall but that pass defense may leak again.

San Francisco, alarmed at its early troubles, picked up Sam Etcheberry after he was cut by St. Louis. Injuries to J. D. Smith, Leo Nomellini, Monty Stickles and rookie Kermit Alexander handicapped the training work.

The Rams still are experimenting and probably will continue all year with Coach Harland Sware and his staff of ex-Giants looking for the best combo. Zeke Bratkowski, Terry Baker and Roman Gabriel all had a shot at the No. 1 quarterback job.

The Giants will go with the club that won last year, hoping to get some mileage from Hugh McElhenny, ex-Viking. John Love, here has taken over Rosey Grier's old job.

I Was Linebacking Job
Lee Roy Jordan won a linebacking job at Dallas as a rookie. If Landry really has stiffened his defense, he has the horses to go all the way.

The Steelers attack consists primarily of Lou Michaels' field goals and the running of John Henry Johnson. That Pitt defense is tough. Cleveland has problems up front replacing Mike McCormack at tackle.

The Cards, Eagles and Skins all are passing teams. Johnson of the Cards, Sonny Jurgensen of the Eagles and Norm Snead of the Skins will score. Who will stop the other team?

The Legal Committee of the American Bowling Congress has suspended a total of 173 bowlers following hearings that were conducted this summer.

With only 173 suspensions among the thousands of men bowlers in the ABC the average may not seem too bad, but nevertheless, it is disheartening.

Better than half of the suspensions came as a result of bowlers dropping out of a league while being behind in fees. The major share of the other half came from treasurers dipping into league funds and also from league presidents shirking their duties and not checking the bank account frequently.

League presidents should know that under the ABC bonding program they are required to verify league accounts at certain intervals.

Many presidents will pass this aside and say, "It wouldn't happen in our league."

Well, let's hope it doesn't, but it could. Therefore, it is necessary that the president do his duty and check the league account regularly to make sure there are no shortages. A lot of embarrassment can be avoided by a few minutes of effort.

Bowling Magazine recently carried a couple of short items about some old-timers still bowling.

Edwin Barker, South Haven, Mich., has been bowling for 65 years. He is 83 years old, bowls regularly in five leagues and substitutes in a sixth. His composite average is 160.

Arthur F. Mills of Duluth, Minn., has been a member of a league here for 31 years and is starting his 30th year as secretary. His composite average for the 31 years is a respectable 182 and last year, when he was 73 years of age he averaged 195.

The next time you roll a gutter ball on the opening try of a series, don't throw in the towel too early.

Jack Frisbie, a Middletown, Ohio, proprietor, got off to this bad start but recovered enough for a 154 game. Then he followed it up with 12 straight strikes for a 300.

Personal Report: Things went much better this week than on opening night. I finished with a 312 series and anytime I get above the 500 mark I consider it a successful night.

Ron Glaser is Named Assistant Marquette Coach

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ron Glaser, highest scoring guard in Marquette basketball history, has been named an assistant coach at the school for the 1963-64 season, Ed Hickey, athletic director and basketball coach announced Saturday.

Glaser was drafted by the Baltimore Bullets of the National Basketball Association but he said he preferred to continue his education and enter coaching. He will take graduate courses in education while helping coach the Warriors and do some scouting.

Glaser, who graduated in June, scored 1,330 points in three years.

Three Part 'Formula' for Selecting Back to College Wardrobe Suggested

Guide Will Help Upperclassmen As Well as Freshmen in Buying

Most college catalogs go into great detail in describing the courses offered, the housing facilities available, the scholarships obtainable and the social activities on campus, but few devote even a line paragraph to the clothes that students will need.

In order to fill this gap of needed information, a formula has been developed to help the new crop of college freshmen. It also will serve as a guide to sophomores and upperclassmen in need of replenishing their existing wardrobes.

The formula to use for most college clothing requirements is based on a 3-1-1 proportion. Three parts casual (for classroom and campus); one part dressy (for dates, chapel and other dress-up occasions); and one part dual-purpose (can be dressed-down for casual wear — dressed-up for dressy dates.)

Major Style

Even though most schools have certain minor fads and foibles of their own, the "authentic, classic, natural-shoulder look" is the major style on the American college campus.

The suits are cut in the classic three-button model with straight pocket flaps, breast-pockets, belt-loop trousers. Many will have matching vests. Sport jackets and blazers will be cut on the same lines, the only difference being that some will be made with lower flapped patch pockets and have plain patch breast pockets, as well.

Slacks, while slim and trim, are cut fuller than the "pipe-stems" of the non-college youths. These, like the suit trousers, will carry belt-loops and will be worn longer than the high-school types — either just clear of the shoe top, or to show no more than an inch of sock.

Safe Bet

A safe bet in sweaters is the crew-neck shetland in softly shaded blends of blue, gray or olive. As far as shirts go, the classic selection is the long-pointed button-down-collar model. The fabric is oxford, usually of white, blue or striped.

So much for the general picture. Getting down to specifics, let's start with the classroom campus segment that comprises the heavy end of the 3-1-1 formula.

Among the basics needed in this group are six to eight pairs of slacks. These should include two pairs of worsteds flannels — one in dark grey, the other in either a medium gray or dark olive. The other should be wash slacks such as chinos, poplins and cords.

Dress, Sport Shirts

Depending on the school and the climate, a couple of pairs of Bermudas in India Madras, chino or poplin, cut the same as the slacks, may be included in the wardrobe.

The college student should have at least seven or eight dress shirts, depending on how often he intends to dress up and on how willing he is to have dress shirts double as casual wear.

The number also depends on what laundry facilities are available.

The number of sport shirts needed is inversely related to the number of dress shirts. A total of twelve is very adequate, experience shows.

Pack about eight pairs of crew socks for casual wear, too. Every-day shoes should include a pair of slip-ons, a pair of tennis shoes and, perhaps, a pair of desert-type boots. Be sure to have at least three pair of dress socks.

Three Sweaters

Three sweaters should be part of the wardrobe, particularly of the sleeveless variety. Outer-garments—depending on climate—should include a raincoat with

Striped Shirts Have Influence on Neckwear

The still growing popularity of striped shirts has had an influence on neckwear. There's been a minor resurgence of plain-colored knit ties, which will grow. And polka dots and neat patterns — especially in red and burgundy — will lead the cravat parade this season.

Classic Camel Shades are returning in sport coats this fall. This blazer, in a mixture of lightweight hopsacking of wool and synthetic fibers, has pitch framed pockets and etched metal buttons.

Brighter Shades Mark Men's Fall Suit Styles

Brown Expected to be Favorite as Death Knell Rings for Darker Colors

"The brightened new look of color in men's fall suits spells the death knell of the 'funeral director' fashions that have kept the sturdier sex in dark, somber garb for five years or more, says a top style expert.

"When all men took to the plain dark suit, they all tended to look alike," he said. "This fall a man can finally express some individuality through the new suit colors and patterns and even look younger and smarter in the bargain."

The new color look ranges from subtle shadings of iridescent tones to more pronounced patterns, he said. Sportcoats especially have a new look in that they are more rugged and more textured with colors and bold patterns not seen in suitings.

Brown is expected to be a favorite, said the stylist and clothing expert. He said brown suits have been virtually in a "fashion eclipse" since the war and estimated there are thousands of men who have never worn a brown suit.

The new brown shades range from a deep, dark, rich, chocolate shade, destined to be worn with black accessories, to a fresh, neutral blending of brown and gray dubbed "antelope" by stylists. This new shade can be worn with either black shoes or those in the new, rich, warm brown shades.

Camel is the glamour shade of the whole brown story and it stars in sportswear and topcoatings. In sportcoatings it either stands alone as a timeless classic updated to new fashion importance when worn with medium or light gray slacks, or it is combined with olive green, bronze, black or chocolate brown in strong, sure, masculine patterns such as herringbones or plaids.

Prestige Coat

The camel topcoat, whether in the half-belted classic model or a dressier version with set-in sleeves and a flat, notched collar, is the "prestige glamour coat of the season."

It will be seen on city streets or country lanes, either in the real camelhair or in the camel-colored cashmere, the expert said.

For men this fall the fashion guide line is color him brightly. "After all those years in his dark, somber garb he's earned it," say the experts.

'Iridescent' Suit To be New Trend

This fall's most newsworthy development is the emergence of the "iridescent suit," in which sparkling gold, olive, blue and green threads are woven together in the fabric so that suit actually changes color as its owner moves about.

Introduced by several major manufacturers, the "iridescent suit" seems a logical projection of the now well-entrenched lighter, brighter look in men's suits and in some circles is seen as the harbinger of a new and significant trend in this realm.

Consider Clothing's Use Before Choosing

When choosing apparel, be sure to consider its ultimate use. If a suit is to get frequent wear (business, travel) select a medium or hard finish cloth that will keep its shape and not get shiny. If suit is for dress-up wear, and will be worn infrequently, you can afford the softer finishes and more luxuriant fabrics.

Outercoat Styles Varied

Corduroy to be Used Great Deal in Men's Fall Fashions

The outercoat story for fall is varied and has several facets of fashion.

The first is the stadium coat, the 36-inch long coat that underlines the special importance of corduroy for fall. The corduroy is often treated like melton, and lined with bold plaids or pile. Details include detachable hoods, toggles, big patch pockets and defined yokes.

Still in the new long-coat category is the convertible coat that can go from country to town and back again in a shell of cotton or a blend, with pile, fur or fake fur collars that button off, and pile, laminated wool or fake fur linings that zip out.

Dressy outerwear will mean coats of wool in single- and double-breasted models. The herringbones are prominent here. These coats will be feature in diagonals and plaids in black and white as well as a variety of compound colors. In addition, a silvery sharkskin is a new entry. Fake fur collars, both shawl and notch, accent the coats.

In linings the new, bright ideas will be important. Piles are split into geometric shapes—diamonds or circles — and into colored stripes or bars. They will show up on all kinds of outerwear.

Rainwear for fall moves away from last year's Continental tricks and is crisp and tailored.

Designed for a Football Game or any other cool autumn event is this stadium coat — The Oslo — in wool melton with wool plaid lining, zip-off hood and heavy knit collar.

a zip-in lining, a waist length poplin and perhaps a topcoat. If the school is one where there are a lot of outdoor winter spectator sports, a ¾ length coat would be appropriate.

Two suits should be enough. Suggested colors are a dark shade in navy blue, deep gray or a deep olive plus a medium shade in gray, olive or brown. Making the second suit a herringbone in a tweedy shetland or cheviot with lower patch-flap pockets will give additional use of the suit jacket as a sport coat.

The most popular ties are now in rep stripes that are both wider and brighter than previous ones. A half-dozen probably will be enough.

Dressy shoes will be taken care of by a pair of plain-toe cordovan bluchers with double soles and all-around storm welts. Double their life by keeping them tread when not in use. Add a second pair, possibly in black, later.

Dual Purpose

Among the dual-purpose clothes—those that can be used for either dress-up times or casual wear—there will be blazers, sport jackets and raincoats.

The versatile navy blue blazer can be worn with a white shirt, smart tie, dark slacks and polished shoes for a dressy pitch. It can also be worn with Bermudas, sport shirt and deck shoes.

To the basic blazer add a good shetland or tweed sport jacket in a moderate plaid. If you can afford a third—make it a camel hair.

Very bold, striped button-down

This Coat provides the casual look — even in town. The garment is fully lined with extra warm alpaca and has a detachable alpaca collar to change the look for the occasion.

oxford shirts easily do double-duty for sports (worn open) and for dress (with a tie).

Raincoat styles vary quite a bit. However, the classic raglan bal-macaan in natural-color poplin is universally accepted. If you are headed for a cold climate, buy one with a warm zip-in liner.

Don't forget underwear, a robe, a dozen handkerchiefs, one or two mufflers, a couple of pair of gloves, three or four belts, pajamas and a toiletry kit.

Three 'Looks' for Men's Fall Suits

Each of Styles Avoid Extremes,
Have Appropriate Furnishings

American men today can choose from three basic "looks" in selecting their clothes. They span the style range from natural to moderate to advanced.

The styling concepts are:

The natural shoulder look with styling which avoids unnecessary padding, shaping or any special tailoring embellishments.

The All-American look whose expression is moderate yet modern.

The advance fashion look which encompasses the newest fashion ideas for men.

A national clothing manufacturer is presenting these "Three Faces of Fashion" in its fall and winter collection. The firm says it styles each of these looks for men who avoid extremes in fashion. The looks have their own appropriate furnishings which emphasize the style characteristics.

Trim Shoulders

The All-American look, which falls between the natural shoulder and the advance fashion concepts, offers a well-dressed appearance that is correct for nearly every occasion.

The model's characteristics are trim shoulders, straight slim lines, moderate-width lapels and a choice of either pleated or plain-front trousers. Fabrics are subdued in pattern and shade.

Shirts for the All-American look have regular collars and are white or soft-colored. Ties are neatly patterned and of moderate width while the shoes are of medium weight and usually a classic pattern.

Avoids Extremes

The natural shoulder look, as its name implies, avoids extremes of any sort. Suits are virtually unpadding and never adorned with anything ostentatious. This includes the elimination of any trouser pleats.

The natural shoulder jacket hangs straight from the shoulder with trim unaffected lines. Suit fabrics are the classic patterns—miniature glen plaids, checks or hairline stripes—and are subtle in color.

Furnishings, to, must be unobtrusive to carry out the natural shoulder style. Shirts usually are button-down oxfords although the English tab collar is gaining favor. Shirt colors range from white to soft pastels.

Dartless Coat

Ties are repp - striped, plain knits or have a small pattern. The "natural shoulder" shoe is the plain-toe cordovan or wing-tip brogue.

Details of the advance fashion look are a bold shoulder line on the jacket, shorter dartless coat distinctively cutaway at the bottom, side vents, slanted pockets, new stitching effects and plain-front trousers.

The advanced fashion fabrics for fall will have either an iridescent, a strong pattern or bolder colorings.

The look is completed with a shirt with spread or snap-tab collar and a stylish weave or special pattern interest. Ties, which are Windsor-knotted, often have an iridescence. Slim lightweight shoes round out the concept.

New lighter fabric shades will be seen in all three looks. Dark tones will continue their popularity, of course, but the new "lights" will have a definite influence.

Rain or Snow. It won't make much difference with this split-raglan raincoat. With a zip-in pile lining, the raincoat can double as a topcoat.

Red Major Color in Men's Sportswear

'Ski' Will Still Pack Wallop in Outerwear Styles

For wear during their leisure hours, men will "see red" for fall and winter. Shirts, outerwear, ski wear, sweaters, accessories and even red blazers will be featured.

The reds will show up in many interpretations and will include Tartan, Brigade, Firebrand, Ember and Oxblood.

Tartan is a bright firemen's red; Brigade, a rich cherry shade; Firebrand, a deep cranberry hue; Ember falls into the solid best shades; and Oxblood—the deepest of the reds—has a deep blackish-wine tone.

Packs a Wallop
In outerwear, "ski" will still pack a wallop. . . expect the classic hooded parka to appear in a new longer, belted style with less heavy quilting and trimmer, rader lines.

Quilted will reverse to printed nylon. Leather will be in for a major revival, and this will mean suedes as well as the classic finishes.

The cardigan will retain its favored position in the sweater picture with both the ski-inspired zip front models and the three-button and six-button styles in new ranges of brushed mohair and wool blends in heather and camel tones or in muted argyle and striped patterns.

Tweedy Look
In tailored sportswear sport jackets move away from the slick smooth fabrics in the style-leading presentations, and assume a rugged, tweedy look.

There will be emphasis on bold, rugged patterns, as well as on an entirely new group of hand-somely blended medium shades. Herringbones in bold, contrasty effects move up into a new style position, and camel shades are due for even greater acceptance.

Sharkskin Is One of the most often used fabrics in manufacturers' lines of new fall suits. This model is a two-button style which provides a long lapel line to accentuate the trimness of the suit.

as the nation continues to "move out of the dark."

Slacks are due to enter the fall season with a more moderate point of view, somewhat fuller but still definitely "trim and tapered."

Plain-front and single-pleat models will have their special adherents.

Leather Brogue Will be in Fashion, Give Ease Afoot

This fall, men look to the leather brogue for fashion and ease afoot.

While slimmer shaping and leatherweight leathers have brought a new lightness to this shoe classic, its traditional look of classic, its traditional look of substance has been retained through use of heavier detailing and higher silhouettes.

Lean but well-muscled, the new trimmer leather brogue achieves its beefy appearance with larger perforations and wing-tips, pink-ing, and heavier grains.

Accommodating the continued popularity of high-riding trousers, the shoe forefront has been heightened to effect an unbroken line between shoe and pants leg.

Medium Weight Soles
Medium-weight leather soles carry through the hefty look while providing a firm but flexible walking base, and lightweight leather uppers offer additional foot comfort. Smooth leather linings assure freedom from friction.

Most popular toe for this season's brogue is the "blunt," a square shape rounded off and swept back to present a graceful, flowing line from toeline to top-line. Also in the fashion picture is the "crescent," slopping at sides and front.

Higher Toplines
The leather brogue remains conservative as far as color is

Try on Different Hat To Test Style Changes

A recent check-up of men's wear stores revealed that about 80 per cent of the customers ask the clerks in the hat department for "a new hat just like the one I'm wearing." That's because the average man gets used to a certain style, and doesn't give a thought to changing.

But other hats, in this day of fast-changing fashions, might be far more flattering. So try on something different, men, and see for yourself.

Fall Fashions To Feature 'Foambacks'

Lightweight Fabrics Get Extra Weather Life With Laminates

"Foamback fashions for the family," is not an example of tongue-twisting, that's a fact, according to leading manufacturers of apparel for men, women, boys and girls.

Foambacks, as the English phrase it, or laminates, as is said in this country are expected to be front-runners in this year's fall fashion forecast. Lightweight fabrics take to foam for extra weather insurance, assuring a span-the-seasons life to new autumn outerwear.

Many manufacturers and designers are taking new and more adventurous steps with laminates, too, according to leading foam producers. In men's outerwear, unusual lengths in topcoats, new versions of carcoats and jackets and even rainwear designs are being adapted for the laminated fabrics.

Tailored Tweeds
Here are just a few of the leading trends in laminates for men and boys:

One of the more important fabrics for fall—classic tweed—used in items for every member of the family, reach greater fashion dimensions when backed with shape - holding urethane foam. Whether the fabric is 100 per cent wool, or the sturdier variety of wool and synthetic blends, the lamination provides insulation and, in many cases, water-resistance.

Colors are conservative and the total look is very dignified.

More Mohair
Mohair, the fluffy, airy, lightweight fabric that is perennially popular, will make its debut in men's laminates this fall. When backed with urethane foam, mohair keeps its shape and adapts to crisper styling.

Mohair laminates will be mainly featured in sports jackets and cardigan-type sweaters, including a new "indoors-or-out" cardigan cut in the traditional sweater fashion, but actually constructed as a jacket.

Stretch Dress Shirts To be Available Soon

It won't be long before you are able to buy stretch dress shirts in your favorite stores.

The present demand for tapered shirts has brought this development along faster than expected. Dress shirts with stretch will "give" 10 to 15 per cent — so that attractive tapered look can be had by all, without binding.

Two Two Cycles

When laundering a wash - and-wear raincoat in a washing machine, let it go through two rinsing cycles. If a touch-up is desired, set iron for synthetics.

Stretch Slack Style Fashion Note to Watch

An important style note in the stretch slack is double-halt wools and blends. But these are not the extreme cuts (like women's stretch slacks). They are conservatively styled for the traditional dresser and feature great comfort and draping.

Use Aluminum Foil When Packing Clothes

Use sheets of aluminum foil as dividers when packing your clothes. Then use them again when needed, to wrap wet or soiled items. Have you ever used shirt-bags for packing? These come in sets of three large envelopes, attached together, and they hold much more than just shirts. They're never completely unpacked. You just lift them from suitcase to bureau drawer, and take them out as needed.

Itinerary Given For 'Nonpolitical' Trip by Kennedy

President Will Visit 12 States,
Make 13 Speeches During Tour

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy will visit 12 states, make 13 speeches and spend one night in a log cabin during a coast-to-coast trip later this month.

Kennedy's preliminary itinerary for the five-day "conservation tour" which starts Sept. 24 was announced Saturday at the weekend White House. The schedule may be expanded.

Billed as a nonpolitical foray, the 10,000-mile trip was said to offer Kennedy a first hand look at conservation and natural resource programs.

City Speeches

The announced timetable included more speeches before city audiences than visits to wilderness areas and conservation projects. However, parts of the schedule were left hazy and it was possible that additional project inspection stops might be added.

Kennedy does plan to stay overnight at two scenic areas—Grand Teton National Park in Wyoming and Lassen Peak National Park in California.

Andrew T. Hatcher, acting White House press secretary, said Kennedy would spend the night at Lassen in a log cabin, adding, with a laugh, "redwood log cabin."

Keeping up with the announced schedule was certain to prove arduous.

Relaxing Weekend

The President was storing up energy by spending a relaxing weekend with his family at the Newport home of Mrs. Kennedy's stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

Kennedy took his wife, Jacqueline, and their two children, Caroline and John Jr., to fashionable Bailey's Beach for a swim before taking a trip aboard the White House yacht Honey Fitz.

Hatcher said that on the Western trip Kennedy will be accompanied by the Democratic senators in each state. He said he anticipates also that the governors of each state will greet the President, and that Democratic officials will join the presidential party along the way.

12 States

Kennedy's trip will take him to New York, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Utah, Washington, Oregon, California and Nevada.

Speeches are scheduled for Milford, Pa.; Ashland, Wis.; Duluth, Minn.; Grand Forks, N.D.; Laramie, Wyo.; Billings and Great Falls, Mont.; Hanford and Tacoma, Wash.; Salt Lake City; Whiskeytown Reservoir, Calif.; and Las Vegas.

At least one more speaking appearance will be added, somewhere in the Portland-Astoria area of Oregon.

Iodine 131 Averages In Milk Remain Low

MADISON (AP)—Daily averages of Iodine 131 in Wisconsin milk during August remained at the lowest levels recorded since the state network of six sampling stations was established, the State Board of Health reported Saturday.

Strontium 90 activity reported for August was 17.75 per cent of the activity which the Federal Radiation Council has established as "acceptable," the report said.

Sampling of Iodine 131 content in milk started in February, but August was the first month Strontium 90 reports were gathered.

Pro-Cuban Students Termed 'Most Un-American Ever'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Defiant students who jeered congressmen and touched off demonstrations that led to violence at the House hearing were following "the most un-American tradition ever" said the committee chairman who faced their scorn.

"In the American tradition we take our grievances to the court and not to the street," Rep. Edwin E. Willis, D-La., said Saturday in an interview. He spoke in condemnation of students who applauded in support of youthful Americans who defied a State Department travel ban and spent two months in Cuba this summer.

Bitter young witnesses who returned from the Communist island two weeks ago buried harsh words at Willis' Committee on Un-American Activities. "Despicable," "un-American," "racist," "Fascist," they said.

Loud Applause

These sallies during Thursday and Friday hearings brought loud applause from young spectators and resulted in orders from Willis to have police eject the applauders from the hearing room.

Willis has twice seen young Americans, most of them college students, engage in bitter demonstrations against his committee.

Three years ago Willis was presiding over a subcommittee hearing in San Francisco that was investigating communism in California when students rioted at City Hall.

That was the most violent episode in the committee's 25-year history. It came on what a committee report later called "Black Friday," Friday the 13th of May 1960.

"I realize they like to be ejected," Willis said after the latest turbulent session. "That's why I was so patient."

Valachi Found Mentally Ill Prior to Start of Protection

Underwent Psychiatric Exams
After Killing Fellow Prisoner

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A psychiatrist found Joseph Valachi mentally ill just a week before the federal government took the long-term convict under its protective wing as the outstanding authority on organized crime in the United States, the Philadelphia Bulletin said in a copyright story Saturday.

In a dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., the Bulletin said the psychiatrist, Dr. Harry R. Lipton, "examined Valachi two weeks after he murdered a fellow prisoner in a fit of rage at the federal penitentiary in Atlanta."

Valachi was serving a 20-year narcotics sentence.

'Cosa Nostra'

Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said last month that Valachi has been giving the government important information about the organized crime syndicate—"Cosa Nostra" (our thing)—from the time he was secretly whisked from Atlanta in July 1962 after being sentenced to life for the killing, and kept hidden away by federal agents.

Asked about the Bulletin story, Edwin O. Guthman, Justice Department public information officer, said in Washington:

"The important thing about Valachi is whether the information he has given the FBI about the highly disciplined criminal organization is accurate. Investigation by federal law enforcement agencies has corroborated the general outline of Valachi's information and a great many details about this organization which holds immense power in many areas of the nation through force, violence and corruption."

Sources Not Revealed

The Bulletin did not say what its sources for the story were. It said that Dr. Lipton, who has served as consulting psychiatrist to the federal prison in Atlanta for the past 26 years, would not discuss his report.

The Bulletin said Valachi was examined by Dr. Lipton in preparation for his defense against murder charges. The story continued:

"The psychiatrist said Valachi was suffering from a 'paranoid state' which is characterized by 'delusions of persecution.'"

Dr. Lipton also acts as psychiatrist in most criminal cases for the U.S. attorney's office in Atlanta.

Valachi, 60, was accused of assaulting John J. Saupp, 52, a petty thief with no mob connections, who came from western Pennsylvania, on the head with an iron pipe.

Fatal Crash Too Close To Home for Highway Patrolman on Scene

DELTA, Utah (AP)—Trooper Ken Clements lifted the telephone receiver and listened to the newsman's request for information on dead and injured in an auto-train accident Friday night.

"I guess you're talking to the right man," the Utah highway patrolman said.

Clements started to give out the information, paused in mid-sentence, and then murmured: "I'd better let you talk to someone else."

Clements' wife and son were critically injured in the accident and a daughter-in-law was killed. He was chief investigating officer.

Democrats Say Tax Cut Would Spur Economy

Claim It Would Boost Investment,
Cut Unemployment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic majority of the House Ways and Means Committee Saturday described its proposed $11.1-billion tax cut as the key to the nation's economic well-being.

In their report on the measure the Democrats said the biggest tax cut ever handed U.S. citizens would spur investment, help balance the budget, cut unemployment and reduce the balance-of-payments deficit.

Foreshadowing the battle expected when the bill goes to the House floor, committee Republicans attacked it Friday as "a program of deliberate and planned deficits in the guise of tax reform." They said it offers individual taxpayers little more than "cigarette money" and threatens ever-larger deficits.

GOP Provision

The Republicans are expected to offer a provision when the bill comes to a vote in the House that would make the second installment of the two-year tax cut contingent upon reduced federal spending. Such a proposal was only narrowly defeated within the committee.

The Democratic report carries a stiff warning to the administration to cut nonessential spending and reprints a letter from President Kennedy to Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., which it calls a presidential commitment to do just that.

In a letter Kennedy said a tax cut "must be accompanied by the exercise of an even tighter rein on federal expenditures, limiting outlays to only those expenditures which meet strict criteria of national need."

Proxmire Poll Shows Majority Favors Treaty

80.7 Per Cent of
State Residents
Want Ratification

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Saturday a poll he has taken showed that those replying support Senate ratification of the nuclear test ban treaty by a wide margin.

Questionnaires were sent by Proxmire to more than 40,000 Wisconsin residents. He said 80.7 per cent replied supported ratification while 19.3 per cent were opposed.

"The overwhelming support for the nuclear test ban in this poll is particularly interesting since my mail had been running about two to one against the test ban," Proxmire said.

Biggest Surprise

The biggest surprise of the poll, Proxmire said, was a 51 per cent to 49 per cent vote against hospital insurance for the aged to be paid by an increase in the Social Security tax.

In a similar but smaller poll taken by him two years ago, Proxmire said, the hospital care program was favored by a 3 to 2 margin.

Respondents favored the administration's civil rights proposal to require large hotels, motels and restaurants throughout the country to serve Negroes by a margin of 64.2 per cent to 35.8 per cent, he said.

12 Per Cent

"Only about 12 per cent would support the administration's proposed tax cut under all circumstances; 21 per cent would condition their support on tax reforms; 15 per cent would require a reduction in government spending before approving the tax cut," he said.

"And a majority, more than 52 per cent, would only favor a tax cut if the federal budget is balanced first."

In assessing the poll, Proxmire said, it should be kept in mind that about 38 per cent of those responding identified themselves as Democrats, only about 21 per cent as Republicans and 41 per cent as Independents.

$15,000 Taken By Armed Men

MADISON (AP)—A pair of armed men, clad in coveralls, held up an East Side Supermarket Friday and escaped with $15,000 in cash.

Madison Police said the pair forced the store manager to open a safe and dump the cash into a pillowcase. The men made their getaway in an automobile.

An 18-year-old employee of the store followed the men in his car until they eluded him near Stoughton, about 10 miles south of Madison on U.S. Highway 51. Police later found a pair of coveralls on the highway.

Cloth Hat Becomes Basic Part of Headwear Wardrobe

With the coming fall season, it appears that the cloth hat has, indeed, come "of age" — no longer a "novelty" but a solidly entrenched part of a man's headwear wardrobe. New fabrics and patterns are bowing in. Many hats are made to fully withstand the weather and to take crushing without damage. Broad treatments have been broadened to include every type of trim in addition to the usual self-cloth band.

In favor is the center-dart, followed closely by the center crease. Brims take 1½ inches as their pivotal point — narrower for the younger men—wider for the older and more conservative. Included will be new versions of the tele-

Lighter Colors
The trend is to lighter colors, getting away from the previously prevalent all-dark look. Grays and browns are clearer. Dark olives have been brightened up to willow. Blue-grays will be important.

Bands are often lighter than the body, going so far as to show white cord on Tyrolean and other sports-dress shapes.

Raw-edge brims reflect a traditional influence, and many are ¼ or ½ of an inch wider than the extreme 1½- and 1¾-inch styles.

Little Variety
Otherwise, silhouettes vary little from last year, except for growing interest in pinch-front and telescope models.

In sports headgear, there is much stress on compound colorings. All the cloth hat lines include some lighter shades as well as the blacks and dark tones. For real sportswear, some very pronounced patterns are being shown.

Dress caps are beginning to stage a comeback in sues, corduroy and wool.

This Bronze Colored Cardigan with metal buttons is an example of "Nantuck" knits, a new texture for fall. Worn with it are gray slacks in a stay-neat blend of "Dacron" polyester and wool.

Major Factor

Collegians Influenced By Girls in Purchases

Are college men bold and brave? traditional three-button, natural on campus — but putty in the shoulder models usually prefer hands of their best girls when red by young men shopping?

Here the news is in the wide-spread use of medium-tones — of masculinity, a man's right rather than darker hues — many to select his own wardrobe to go in blends of synthetic fibers and down the drain — even before worsted wool they're married?

Big Revival
Some light was cast on these questions at a Du Pont conference conducted by a national manufacturer of synthetic fibers to determine young men's apparel preferences. The meeting was held earlier this year at Mont Tremblant, Quebec.

Major Factor
In general a group of college students agreed that if a girl's friend expressed admiration for a particular garment, this was a major factor in influencing a student to buy it. In fact, several Tremblant conference the "Nantuck" were chosen overhwhelmingly by students over the months had to rely on their mothers. No student, however, admitted letting his mother accompany him.

In a more serious vein, young men's trouble getting the laundress has out men's clothing tastes, as the con of shirt collars and cuffs, tell her ference showed, are still fairly to try applying sal soda concentration. This conservatism is expressed in fall suits by the fore shirts are washed.

Color for Fall May be Safety Factor as Well as High Fashion

Designers React to Auto Group by Recommending (?) Women's Styles

BY JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
NEW YORK (AP) — For safety's sake, men had better bare their hairy legs, wear glowing clothes or hide behind the safe, short skirts of women — at least while walking.
That was the reaction of fashion experts to a report by the American Automobile Association that 70 per cent of the pedestrians hit by autos are men.
The AAA report pleaded with the ladies' hemlines high as a traffic safety measure.
No Worry
Women can sprint across the highway in relative safety, says the AAA, because they wear short skirts. Car headlights aim downward, readily picking up their stockings or bare legs.

Alas, the conservative garb of the walking male blends into the darkness — and most pedestrian accidents occur at night.
AAA needn't worry any more about longer hem lines for ladies. Paris designer Jacques Heim's scheme this summer to cover up two or three more inches of comely gams was a dud. "Too matronly," sniffed buyers.
Mao in Dark

Bold Stripes Take Spotlight In New Shirts

Red-and-White Ideas Lead Clothes In Dress Clothes

The fashion trend toward bold stripes in dress and business shirts will take hold for fall with the red-and-white ideas pacing the pack.

American couturiers are holding to the knee line, too. "I for one intend to keep mine short," said designer Pauline Trigere. But her primary concern is what to do for the man in the dark.
Her suggestions: bridescent gloves, ties or starch in shirts that might cause them to glow. Or walking shorts.
Bill Miller, a prize-winning designer of menswear, favors walking shorts, too, as well as a glittering buttons and luminous threads in garments. He believes togas are the best apparel for road safety, but suspects men would quit walking rather than ever come to that again.

Safety Factor
The AAA might do well to persuade more men to shrug off their inhibitions about lighted garments.

Fortunately, many have already begun to, claims Don Bernstein, a men's fashion guild buyer. By this spring, headlights should be casting their beams onto trousers in such hues as off-white, hot pink, salmon and old salt.

Ready-Made Clothing Comes in Many Sizes Now

Once, any man other than one with "average" proportions just couldn't be properly fitted in ready-made clothing — but today there are hardly any who cannot.
Just consider this line-up of models now offered: regular, short, extra short, long, medium long, extra long, portly, short portly, long portly, young man's stout, slender, short stout, stout and long stout.

With a line-up like that—there's truly a "fit for all." Naturally, the average store couldn't possibly carry all of these. But most can, and will, order any of them, short.

Following closely will be the black stripes, often with red, red stripes on blue and pink stripes so closely spaced that they produce a "pink-shirt" effect.
Color styles will again find the short-point spreads, button-downs and tabs important. Taper and exact sleeve lengths will be available in many dressy sport shirts.

Something New
Something new is the dual-purpose or dressy sport shirt. It is the sport shirt tailored like a dress shirt.

Cut-and-sewn sport shirts will reflect a classic approach to styling for fall and winter, highlighted by traditional patterns and collar styles. Plaids are on the dark side in large arrangements of color that seem to pop out of the shirt.

There will be a resurgence of real foulard prints on lighter grounds in traditional shirts. The popular sport shirts will be shown with coordinated turtle-necks.

High Band Collars
Typical dress-shirt fabrics will show up in sport shirts in high-band collars that ride high on the neck and are fuller with more roll.

Knit shirts will feature the classic pullover and button-front models in many variations of fibers, stitch treatments and a fresh array of colorings. Newest models will carry convertible turtle-neck styling.

Topping off the scene will be combination knit-woven shirts. Typical of these will be knit collars on woven bodies or bib treatments for a two-in-one look.

Check Shoes for Wear

Look at your old shoes for points of wear as clues to whether they fit properly. If linings are badly worn, it could mean they're too loose; if the tips show excessive wear, the shoes could be too short.

The Outdoor Life of Herringbone is emphasized in this suburban-length coat. In this model, herringbone has the fall colors of bronze and rich brown. The coat features elbow patches and is worn with brown slacks, a wool and mohair muffler and a beige suede hat.

Badgers Rated Seventh in AP Grid Poll

USC Called Solid Favorite to Repeat As National Champ

BY WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Southern California is a solid favorite to repeat as the national college football champion.
The titanic Trojans, who swept through a tough 10-game schedule in 1962 and then outscored Wisconsin 42-37 in the Rose Bowl, drew almost two-thirds of the votes in The Associated Press' pre-season poll.

Thirty-four of the 55 sports writers and broadcasters composing a special panel selected the West Coast powerhouse as the team most likely to come out on top.

Potent 1-2 Punch

Nine of them threw their sentiment behind Mississippi and five chose another perennial Dixie toughie, Alabama, winner of the mythical crown in 1961.

On the basis of 10 points for a first place vote, nine for seconds, etc., these loom as the "Big Three" of the 1963 campaign, followed in order by Oklahoma, No. 4; Texas, No. 5; Northwestern, No. 6; Wisconsin, No. 7; Arkansas, No. 8; Navy, No. 9 and Ohio State and Washington, who tied for the 10th spot.

Southern Cal, which returns 26 lettermen and a potent 1-2 punch in quarterback Pete Beathard and Willie Brown received an over-all total of 484 points. Where not picked for first, the Trojans get heavy support for a second, third or fourth place finish.

Perfect Season

Mississippi, which climaxed a perfect season with a 17-13 Sugar Bowl triumph over Arkansas, got 389 points for second place, followed by the Crimson Tide of Alabama, with 337. Ole Miss had another big, speedy team run by quarterback Perry Lee Dunn. Alabama has one of the country's strongest attacking units in quarterback Joe Namath, Mike Fracchia and Larry Wall.
Coach Bud Wilkinson's bounceback Sooners of Oklahoma, 17-0, and Ohio State, 6-3-0, tied for 10th place in the advance poll with 53 points.

Two-Button Suit Sets Pace of Fall Fashions

Two themes tie-up the fall and winter 1963 fashion story—the emergence of the two-button suit as the fashion pace-setter and the introduction of light and bright colorings and patterns into the fashion picture.

The two-button suit, in an abundance of interpretations, will be in the front line of fashion in light and bright colors and patterns this season. Keyed to both "high style" and "conservative" models, the two-button suit is due to regain the fashion leadership it held almost ten years ago.

Lighter Look Continues

The new lighter and brighter look of clothing will carry over into the fall-winter season with medium tones taking over from the formerly dominant darks. There will be some actually light colors worn during the cold season, and these will be led by the silver grays.

Another clothing development for next fall and winter is the return of figure-following suit silhouettes. Introduced almost two years ago as part of the British look, this silhouette traces the back line of the body as well as the side lines.

Quite a few fashion leaders will be moving this trend toward greater consumer acceptance. This will be found in some of the tweedy, country-type casuals such as the "Friday" or "Saturday Suits."

Iridescent

The "brighter" aspects of business suits will be expressed by sparklingly colored iridescent in worsted fabrics as well as in blend of silk and worsted and mohair and worsted.

The advancing two-button suit will be joined in the fall fashion parade by the three-button models in the traditional, natural-shoulder and the conventional, middle-of-the-road categories. The one-button models continue to gather their special adherents.

The fall pattern story is led by the resurgence of the classic herringbones. Part of the developing "classic look," herringbones are followed by the classic glens, diagonals, crowfoots and barley-corns. Some muted striping effects and self-weaves will be important.

The silvery grays headline the color story in suits for fall in the smooth worsteds, sharkskins and the lustrous mohair and silk blends. These tones are followed closely by the blues, greens and some brown tones. There will, of course, continue to be the staple blacks and navys.

Vests, that in some cases even went through the summer season, return for fall in both traditional and high-style fields.

Medium Tones, in contrast to last year's somber hues, are making style headlines in men's fall suits. Fitting into this category is this natural shoulder model.

Trojans Open Quest for Second Title at Colorado

Texas to Meet Tulane in Friday Night Grid Sendoff

BY BOB ROOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer
Muscular Southern California opens its quest for a rare second straight national collegiate football title in the rarified Colorado air Saturday.

Actually the first big campus gridiron weekend gets a Friday night sendoff when the fourth ranked Texas Longhorns of 1962 visit Tulane, Miami meets Florida State and Pitt invades UCLA. Hoping for continued swash-buckling successes in the best tradition of top Trojan fan John Wayne, Southern Cal carries an 11-game winning streak into the encounter with the University of Colorado making its debut under new coach Eddie Crowder.

Loss of offensive fullback Ben Wilson and four lettermen tackles worries coach-of-the-year John McKay but Southern Cal returns 26 monogram winners including 17 of the first 21 linemen. SC's bid to become the first national champ to succeed itself since Oklahoma (1955-56) rests heavily on the four "B's"—All America line-backer-guard Damon Bame, end Hal Bedsole, quarterback Pete Beathard and halfback Willie Brown.

Must Tell Quickly

However, the Trojans must tell quickly in this warmup test with the rebuilding Buffs because the four following weeks bring Oklahoma, Michigan State, Notre Dame and Ohio State in succession.

Colorado will unveil former halfback Ted Somerville in his new role as quarterback, display speedsters Bill Harris and Leon Mavity plus a tougher defense. But depth and passing are sub-par.

Not too many miles from Boulder, Colo., Washington bows in against Air Force minus defending Big Five rushing king Junior Coffey sidelined by a broken right foot. The improved Falcons, meanwhile, have more experience and quarterback Terry Isaacson.

Texas, unbeaten in the regular season last fall before losing to Louisiana State in the Cotton Bowl has handed field generalship chores to two-year defensive specialist Duke Carlisle who turned in four scoring tosses in the spring game.

Again featuring ball control and its Flip-Flop offense, the Steers face Tulane's recent Southeastern Conference doormats Friday night. The Green Wave went 0-10 last fall and already has lost No. 1 fullback George Cortez with torn knee ligaments. Coach Tommy O'Boyle compares his task to "running the Kentucky Derby with plow horses."

Miami coach Andy Gustafson launches his last season counting on intensive defensive drills to pay off. He knows the multiple talents of All-America quarterback George Mira but remembers how his one-man show fell short in the Gotham Bowl, 36-34, because of a porous defense.

Sophomores Russell Smith and Pete Banaszak give Miami an outside running threat it hasn't had in years.

Second-ranked Wisconsin warms up to the task of defending its Big Ten title by playing host to Western Michigan. The Badgers have speed and experience if only lightning will strike twice at quarterback. Ron VanderKelen had played only a few minutes before last fall yet directed Wisconsin to within five points of USC in the Rose Bowl. His successor is southpaw Hal Brandt.

Two Saturday games draw special attention: Northwestern at Missouri and Navy at West Virginia. Northwestern is a national championship candidate testing its improved defense against the always tough Tigers. Navy's Eastern title hopefuls send elusive Roger Staubach against third team All-America Jerry Yost in a battle of quarterbacks.

Mississippi, Alabama, Arkansas and Oklahoma are favored to successfully launch another big season. Talent-laden Ole Miss brings a 10-game winning streak and quarterback Perry Lee Dunn, converted from full, to bear against Memphis State.

Alabama, loser of only two games in the past three years, bumps into SEC rival Georgia just 12 months after the meeting on which the now celebrated, jury-refuted Wally Butts-Bear Bryant fix allegations were based. Bama again rules a solid favorite with Joe Namath still at controls and perhaps injured '62 backs Mike Fracchia and Larry Wall ready for combat.

Rebuilds Backfield

Forced to rebuild its offensive backfield, Arkansas remains Texas' strongest challenger in the Southwest. The Porkers open against Oklahoma State whose new coach Phil Cutchin helped Alabama whip Arkansas in the '62 Sugar Bowl.

Oklahoma's Big Eight defenders play host to a Clemson eleven rated strong enough to win the Atlantic Coast crown. Two other ranked teams of last year who anticipate tougher sledding—Louisiana State and Penn State—meet Texas A&M and Oregon, respectively. Conference games include South Carolina at Duke, Virginia at North Carolina, North Carolina State at Maryland, George Washington at VMI and William and Mary at The Citadel.

Other major games, Boston U. at Army, Iowa State at California, Duke at Cincinnati, Auburn at Houston, Virginia Tech at Kentucky, Boston College at Syracuse, Richmond at Tennessee, Kansas at TCU, Washington State at Texas Tech, Oregon State at Utah and Furman at Vanderbilt.

Men's Sleepwear To Have Ski Look

Fall and winter sleepwear will highlight ski-inspired knit ideas via Scandinavian patterns. A new team for sensible comfort combines a classic pajama with a shave or sleep coat that will appear with long sleeves. The Oriental styles will bow in for fall in more subtle fabrics.

Shift Tie Tack to Stickpin Position

As a change, shift your tie tack to the upper part of the tie, in the position of a stickpin. It will still hold the tie in place and is an elegant touch for a dress-up outfit. And why not keep your tie rack neater by storing away all ties you won't wear until the following season?

Men Are Not the Only Ones considered in the fall fashion parade. This boy's knit shirt features knitted collar and cuffs. Both shirt and slacks are guaranteed by the manufacturer for one year.

Men to Step Out in Colors If Designer's Suits 'Fly'

LONDON (AP) — Hardy Amies, designer of men's clothes, in showing his new models, disclosed.

A torreador hat with a short topcoat of ox blood red.

Jackets will be four-buttoned.

Some sports coats will have wide shoulders and narrow waists, and flare a bit at the bottom.

Trousers will be very narrow and cuffless.

The new colors for men are ox blood, torreador red and shades of green.

The five-button sports jacket is going to be a big fashion setter, according to the designer.

Last year he presented it in black, and won an award in New York. For 1964, Amies is showing it in color.

Irish Ashley, writer on female fashion, commented on the new male clothes:

"The whole thing cheers me no end.

"It will be such fun to hear men asking:

"What shall I wear tonight, darling, my red or my green?"

Scouts Step Up to Program Change

*Over 5,000 Area Girls
Join National Rush
For New Handbooks*

BY JEAN OTTO
Post-Crescent Women's Editor

All week long the stampede was on. Little Girls in Brownie dresses, others in green frocks and berets, some in crisp white blouses and dark skirts and still others in the dark green uniform of Seniors, went from classroom to store or handbookmobile. The Best Seller rush spread from Appleton and Neenah-Menasha to Hortonville, Kimberly, Seymour, Combined Locks, Harrison, Little Chute, Wittenberg, Tigerton, Marion, King, Weyauwega, Kaukauna, Wau-paca, Clintonville and Shawano.

Something new is afoot in Girl Scouting. Affected by the change are the girls themselves, and 1,525 adults working in the program in this council. What is new and different for each is outlined in the new handbooks.

Now Work at Four Levels

The handbooks, wrapped in colorful covers, went on sale nationally Monday. They mark the official beginning of the program change planned more than a year ago. Girl Scouts are now divided into four specific levels, according to ages. Brownies are seven and eight year olds, in second and third grades; Juniors, nine, 10, and 11 years old, in fourth, fifth and sixth grade; Cadettes, 12, 13, and 14, in seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and Seniors, 15, 16 and 17, in 10th, 11th and 12th grades.

The new program is designed for the continuous growth of the Scout, bridging progressive changes from second grade through high school smoothly, in every case challenging the young woman's imagination, talent and interest and giving her a meaningful experience that will last a lifetime.

Many years of study preceded the program change. Throughout, the new Scouting concept promotes the independence and individuality of the girls, leaving more of the planning and learning in their own hands, making the scope of a leader's duties broader and more flexible.

A Big First Step

The Brownie program is the launching pad for future scouting. It fulfills a young lady's desire for membership in a club that does more than organize one week and break up the next. The possibility of achievement and participation are provided, and the opportunity for constructive and creative expression is given. Girls participating in the two year program "... promise to do my best. ... To love God and my country ... To help other people every day, especially those at home."

In the Brownie program, aims are to give each girl a sense of personal worth and self-

The handbookmobile was 'literally' besieged Wednesday when it called at Harrison School in Sherwood. Above, Mrs. Hugh Leader, Cadette Troop 266 leader, passes out the books to her girls. Scouts to Work at Four New Levels scout, freedom to discover and create, a knowledge of health and safety, and the happiness of being part of an organized group. These are built on the framework of Brownie's B's—Be Discoverers, Be Ready Helpers, Be Friend-Makers.

By the time a Brownie reaches fourth grade she has a wealth of knowledge paving the way for her entry into Junior Scouting. She knows songs and how to sing them in harmony; she has learned about the great outdoors, probably collected leaves and acorns and pebbles and seed pods; she has participated in creative dramatics; she has learned the fun of being helpful at home, and she is ready for more knowledge, more friendship, more fun.

One of the first new things learned by a Junior Scout is the set of 10 Girl Scout Laws. By now she has the understanding to know the meanings of 'courteous,' 'honorable,' 'cheerfulness' and 'thrill.' Scouts at this age are less given to fancy and want to fill their wide breadth of interests with information and experience. Those who want to work in special fields may earn proficiency badges for their accomplishments. The Sign of the Arrow and Sign of the Star indicate proficiency in Junior Scouting.

By the time Scouts take part in a rededication ceremony and start their years as Cadettes they are challenged by social dependability, emergency preparedness, active citizenship and the fulfillment of the Girl Scout Promise. These young teen-agers take pride in their accomplishments and are aware of the need to build their own places in life. They are given greater responsibility and permitted both the independence and dependence that make the beginning of adulthood. Proficiency badges are given for more comprehensive work than that done at the Junior level. Work in Scouting now carries them outside of their own troops, and acquired skills are shared with the younger girls whenever possible.

Cadette scouts also have the chance to see Seniors in action, finding out at first-hand the senior program that most suit their own interests.

A girl reaching the age of Senior Scouting possesses many strengths which Scouting helps to further. She has the ability to reason well, a sense of civic responsibility, increased poise and equilibrium and greater selectivity in her interests. She is keenly aware of principles, standards, rules and religious codes. Major interests open to work in Senior Scouting are Arts, Community Action, Homemaking, International Friendship, Mariner, Mounted, Trail-Blazer, and Wing.

In the field of Senior Scouting, one of the most important programs is that of the Service Aide. To participate in this program a Scout must take special training for the service and complete at least 50 hours of service after training. Categories in which a scout may become a service aide are Animal Care, Aquatic Safety, Child Care, Aide to Handicapped Persons, Hospital, International, Laboratory, Library, Merchandising, Museum, Office, Program, Public Relations, Ranger and Teacher.

Senior Scouts also have the opportunity to take part in regional, national and international events. In the summer of '62, 16 girls from the Fox River Area Council attended the National Round-up at Button Bay, Vt.

For many of the young women who have carried their scouting careers forward from second grade, there is no desire to stop after high school graduation. The step into adult scouting is an easy and logical one—it involves the giving of all marvelous knowledge acquired during the years to those just starting the program. And it continues to involve learning—but of a different kind.

The learning which so delights adult leaders is seeing the wonders of the world again through the eyes of a child—sensing the excitement as an idea or skill finds its way into an eager mind—and the sense of fulfillment that comes from a worthy achievement.

A Room So Distinctive that it impresses everyone who sees it contains the model of an ancient sailing ship, an ebony chest and red secretary. The dark finishes of arm chairs, game table base and lamp table are varied by the light, high backed chair next to the secretary cabinet. The sofa is beige leather.

Designing Woman Total Impression Is One of Comfort

This room is long remembered by everyone who sees it. The model of an ancient sailing ship, the brass-bound ebony chest, the lacquer red secretary — any or all of these leaves a lasting impression. But no one misses the overall effect of smoothness and great comfort, the kinds that make a room a quiet family favorite. Stand-out elements create distinctive atmosphere together before they ask for individual attention.

Interior designer Hoygood Laster, F.A.I.D., background unusual furnishings with unusual wall treatment. Heavily textured, weathered wood panels the end walls horizontally, and frames vertical panels of loosely woven rattan peel to vary the glass wall. Brass ship's lanterns are supported by and electrified through the wood posts. Arm chairs and the game table base are of rattan, ebony-finished, like the lamp table, to match the Oriental chest. The dark finishes are varied by light finishes for the high-backed chair beside the secretary cabinet, the handsomely carved coffee table base and the blockfront cabinet which supports the ship model.

The only repeats of the lacquer red of the secretary cabinet are in small accessories, and in pattern on orange background for pillows on the sofa. Orange weaves through green and black rough-textured plaid on large arm chairs, one shown in the foreground, and the coffee table top is near orange color in mottled leather. The sofa is covered with beige leather, and like the curtains and carpet, tones into the grayed light brown and honey shadings of the wood on the walls.

Create Casual Recreation Room

Practical and pleasant can be the passwords for changing a little-used basement area into a recreation room the whole family will enjoy. Use a light color ceiling paint so the room will seem more spacious and bright. To hide overhead pipes and ductwork, go whimsical with a length of inexpensive fish netting tinted the same shade as the ceiling, draped across it and attached at each end of the room. Use a dark tone of heavy duty paint for the floor. Walls can be paneled in a cheery wood grain plastic laminate. To finish the room, check for bargains in casual furniture. Or you may find you've stored away some comfortable chairs or a sofa that need just a little touching up in gay colors and can be cushioned readily with budget materials.

Your Problems

Mate Suspects Long Distance Love Kindled by Ham Radio

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is a ham radio nut. He spends every spare minute by the set and I'm sure if the house was on fire he'd run for the set and let me get out as best I could.

The reason I am writing is because of a certain woman operator who lives out west.

She and my husband have been yakking it up every night for weeks. At first I pretended not to notice, but now I see he can't wait to get through dinner so he can rush to the set and talk to her.

Last night they were having what sounded like a pretty flirty conversation. She has a low, sexy voice and I can't tell how old she is. I walked into the room and told my husband to call it a night or he'd never be able to get up in the morning. She stormed back and said "Tell your wife to get a license, or get off the air."

We are people in our late 30's. Our children are grown and we are too old for real trouble. But this annoys me, nonetheless. What shall I do about it?—Mrs. Ham.

DEAR MRS.: It's only a voice from the west—so calm down. These two will probably talk themselves out, unless you continue to make an issue of it. Your irritation gives the whole business a dimension it doesn't deserve.

DEAR ANN: My parents always called me "the plain one." My sister Fern was "the pretty one." Fern and I never got along. I have a responsible secretarial position and am married to a fine man. "The pretty one" has messed her life up but good. Fern is on her third marriage but it is by no means her last. She trades in husbands whenever she can find a man who makes more money or is a better dancer. The problem is this: My mother and dad live with us. They are nearly 70 and we are happy to have them. Fern comes over here five nights a week with the excuse she wants to visit the folks. She says hello to them and then tries to pick an argument with my husband or me. We want nothing to do with her because she is a troublemaker. When my husband and I entertain friends Fern joins the party as if she were invited. We want the folks to feel that this is their home, too, but what can we do about privacy for ourselves?—Dandelion

Dear Dandelion: It would be well worth the investment to redecorate your father's bedroom into a studio type room where they can entertain guests who come to see them. Five nights a week

I'm 16, look normal and healthy, and have a lot of friends. I started to date about six months ago and I've gone with some nice fellows. One fellow in particular (Joey) has a weird effect on me. He has taken me out about eight times and when I'm with him I simply can't eat a bit of food. My stomach tightens up in knots and I have no appetite. It's all I can do to make a pretense of drinking a cup of hot chocolate.

I never have this feeling when I am with any other boy—only Joey. Please tell me why this happens to me and what to do about it.—Stomach Trouble

Dear Friend: Your real trouble is under your nose. You probably like Joey more than any body you've ever gone with and are uncomfortable about the violence of the chemical reaction. If the problem persists you should get professional help and remove this clunker from your thinker.

Are you going steady? Making marriage plans? If so, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry—Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bobby Krieg, shown above when he was a patient at the University of Wisconsin Children's Hospital at Madison this summer, is now back at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krieg, Neenah, and brother, Jim, 11, and sister, Karen, eight. Bobby, five, was in the hospital for six weeks, undergoing surgery aimed at helping him walk. His mother reports that most of the time he was kept too busy to be lonely or sad. At right, Mrs. Dorothy Thompson, head nurse, supervises the hustle and bustle of daily hospital life.

Children's Hospital Provides Special Care

Young Bobby Krieg Neenah One of Thousands Treated at Madison

Bobby Krieg is home again, his six and a half weeks at the University of Wisconsin Children's Hospital in Madison behind him. Bobby, five years old, has never walked. Someday his parents hope he will, and his stay in Madison strengthens the probability.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Krieg, 113 Landan Blvd., Neenah, suffering from a birth defect, had two operations this summer in Madison. Heel cords were lengthened, hip tendons cut and knee surgery performed. Lots of therapy lies ahead for the little boy, but no additional surgery is scheduled in the near future. Now at home, he's attending Morgan School every day, doing the necessary exercises and receiving expert help.

2,500 A Year

medical institutions. The hospital, which has served thousands during the last 30 years, has recently completed an extensive remodeling project.

Smaller rooms will give young patients more privacy, and cheery colors have been chosen for the hospital which provides special service to young orthopedic patients. An entire wing has been remodeled to give more space and better care. This wing, for children acutely ill, has the most modern medical facilities, including piped-in oxygen and suction in each room. Rebuilding large wards into two and three-bed rooms increased the capacity and provided extra room space.

More Efficient Set-Up

The first floor area is devoted to doctors' offices, libraries and the headquarters of the University of Wisconsin Department of Pediatrics. The second floor centralized nursing station provides faster, more efficient care for patients from five to 18 years. Similar facilities on the third floor are restricted to patients from one to five years. Future plans call for a pre-school nursery area for patients, with an adjoining observation room for parents.

Mrs. Krieg reports that Bobby handled his first hospital stay very well.

"He only cried when we had to leave," she says, adding that he otherwise was kept busy. She was pleased with the care and attention her son received. Two girls came in every morning and afternoon to entertain the children, and a room of toys is designed to keep them content with the long hours of recuperation.

This Ivy-Covered Plaque Identifies the Children's Hospital at the University of Wisconsin, which has recently been remodeled to provide better service for young orthopedic patients. At left, a young girl, wanting to look her best for visitors, is given an assist by one of the special assistants who help care for the youngsters. Below, framed by the shiny head of a rocking horse, children work at coloring books. Not all patients are confined to bed, and pastimes are provided to keep them busy. (Tim Wyngaard Photos)

hints from Heloise

Dear Heloise:

When going on camp-outs or cook-outs and you take along that good old iron skillet, here's a great way I've found to clean it: Crumple some leftover foil into a little ball. Use this to clean your skillet and the rungs on your grill, especially if the grill has accumulated residue from hamburger patties. It sure gets it clean.

Better than washing the bottom of the skillet and the outside of the utensils, the coffee pot and so forth . . . I cover the outside of these utensils with foil! This way the soot never even touches the finish. No after-washing is the finish. No after-washing is the finish. No after-washing is the finish.

Fixin' the Tocsin

Dear Heloise:

For those who have acute hearing and cannot stand the loud bell of an alarm clock . . . did they know that they could take a plain, old, rubber band and place it around the bell on the alarm clock?

All one has to do is open the back of the clock and look for the alarm.

The thicker the rubber band is, the quieter the alarm!

Hate to Wake Up

Dear Sir:

Now, you are a real corker to think of that one!

I opened two clocks. One, like you said, had the bell. I tried the rubber band. It works! Another clock had a little

"knocker," so I put a piece of adhesive tape around it. Worked fine!

Happy sleeping . . .

Glove Liners

Dear Heloise:

You can do dishes and other cleaning jobs far more comfortably with a pair of cotton gloves worn underneath the rubber or plastic type gloves. Keeps hands from perspiring, too.

Roundabout Sheets

Dear Heloise:

Tell all your readers who would like to use contour sheets . . . they are so hard to put on . . . to buy Top contour sheets only.

One week use them for the top sheet and next week as a bottom sheet. They are only fitted on one end. This also rotates the sheets and they will wear evenly.

Too (and that's a great big . . . too), there is no separating them in the closet or hunting for which is which, as they are all alike.

Sure saved me lots of linen closet digging!

Tearless Onions

Dear Heloise:

I prevent "tears" when cutting of these utensils with foil! This way the soot never even touches the finish. No after-washing is the finish. No after-washing is the finish.

I then slice or chop while the cut side is still down.

Simple and effective.

Eating Aprons

Dear Heloise:

A need for large aprons at lunch time for the children, while they are still in their good school clothes, prompted me to make some from small and medium-size turkish bath towels.

Dear Heloise:

GLOUDEMANS SHOE DEPARTMENT

Wm. "Fuzz" Riley, Your Congenial Manager

This Four Piece town and travel costume in mink brown wool knit gives a girl a wardrobe item she can wear around the clock. The almost full-length cape is molded at the shoulders for a softer fit and has a flattering collar and three button closing. The cardigan jacket is high-lighted with beige at the neckline, front closing and pockets. The long-sleeved beige blouse with trimming is fashioned from a silky acetate knit.

This Eye-Catching blue plaid suit in wool mohair is poised between the dressy and casual occasion, with only appropriate accessories needed for a push either way. The front has a slim fitting zipper closing that compliments the casualness of the elbow-length-sleeved jacket. Its tapering skirt gives the final touch to a look of sleekness and ease.

Suits are spreading — into areas previously dominated by other clothing types. No longer is a suit merely for tea-time or that slightly dressy occasion. This fall, suits are designed for sportswear, cocktail and even formal evening wear.

That slim, skimming look is the result of careful structure beneath the suit's chic exterior and clever seam structures. Fabrics and trim also lend their own richness. Mohair loops and lush mohair tweeds, rich and smooth meltons, warm and light bubble cloth and flowered or printed wools are all waiting to add variety to ensemble appearance. Fur trim enriches suits in many luscious tones of mink, beaver, leopard and civet cat, fox and lynx, and sable.

Costume suits are more important than ever. A jerkin or sleeveless "woolover" peeks out from under a wool suit or a cape-jacket tops a slim skirt or dress.

High-rising lines for young flattery are emphasized, though more restrained than the empire line of season back. Interest is focused on the front.

Sleeves slide down to meet once-exposed wrists and shoulders are generally raglan. Vents, newsy tabs, cape treatments and bold buttons add interest to jackets.

Reds lead the color scheme, followed by wood tones, blues, goldenrods and greens.

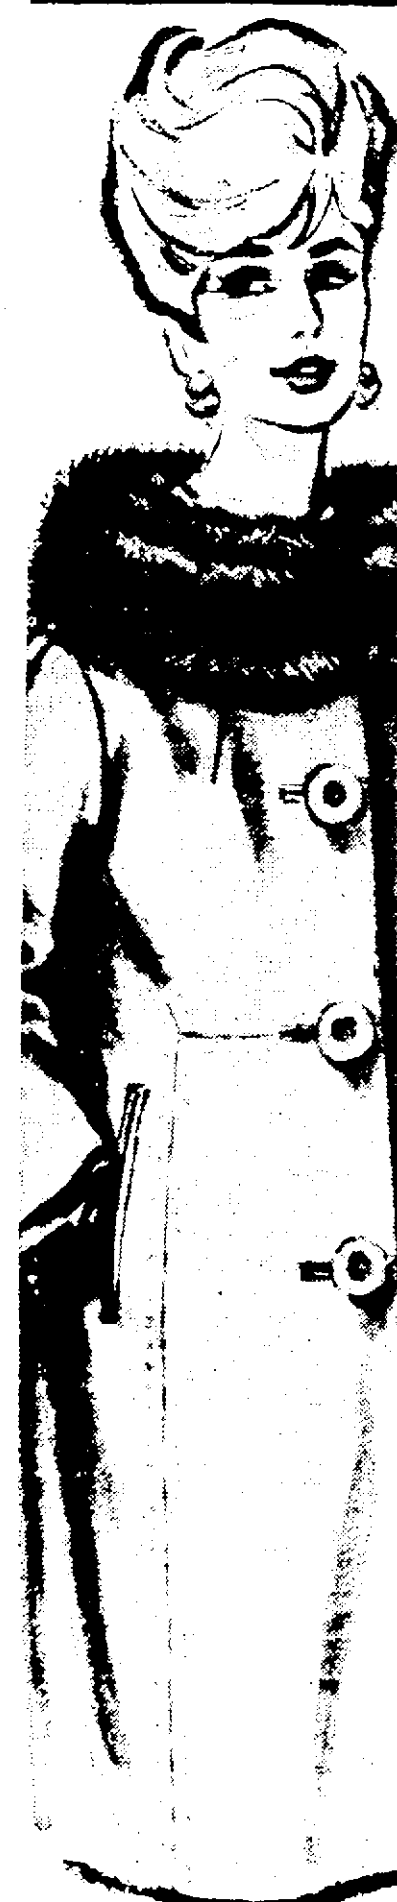

This Little Double-Breasted suit carries comfort for the traveler or style for the afternoon tea-goer. The fully-lined jacket and hugging skirt come in coky tweeds with soft overplaid, twist tweeds and solid colors. At left, the warm but chic look of camel is put to exciting use in this martial-looking suit with its high collar and looped buttons. The fabric for this energetic number is cavalry twill.

Homemaker Clubs Improve Family Life

BY JUDITH STELLWAGEN

County Home Economics Agent

Now that you've gotten your children back to school it's time to take advantage of the homemaker program, a program planned by the women of your community to be of help to you.

The homemaker organization is an informal adult educational program which supplies information to improve family and community life. It is a part of the University of Wisconsin coming to you.

How do the women of the community get this information the University provides? Usually from 10-20 neighborhood women form a local club. Each month they send two women to a meeting, held in the county, where a subject matter specialist from the University, the home economics agent gives the representatives information to take back to the other club members.

Colorful Programs
Since the women of this county indicated that they would like more information on color and design the program emphasizes this area. Titles of projects include: "Color and Design in the Kitchen," "Color, Line and Design in Clothing Selection," and "Brighten Your Home With Color."

Through these projects homemakers obtained a basic understanding of color terminology, principles of color relationships and become aware of new materials available on the market.

Application of this information will make you a better person and your home a better place to live.

Other Aspects Too
Even though color and design is being emphasized, other aspects of homemaking will also be studied. Would you like to learn how to make and equip a family picnic basket; how to plan nutritious picnic meals, how to involve all family members in picnic planning; how to handle food in hot weather? If you would, you would find the lesson on outdoor meals especially interesting. Perhaps you've had problems freezing fruits and vegetables or with your flower garden then undoubtedly these would appeal to you.

It's not too late to become enrolled in this program. If you are interested in forming a local club talk with your friends and neighbors about it. Then contact my office and I'll be happy to further explain the dues for our county program, and help you organize. We have homemakers in all areas of the county.

Mrs. Leo Butler

Calls Scouting Her First and Last Love

Mrs. Leo Butler, 88 Cherry Court, is so thoroughly sold on Girl Scouting that she's held almost every post and done almost every job in the organization. With the Scouts making their program change, her efforts in and for girls in the Fox River Area Council have earned her this week's orchid citation as an outstanding Fox Cities woman.

"I wish every girl could have the advantages of scouting," she comments with conviction. "Adults in the program get more than they give — in fact it's almost like having a second childhood. New and exciting things are happening all the time."

Singled out as one of the "best" of times was the Heritage Trail trip taken in the summer of '62 with a group of senior scouts. Mrs. Butler says it was thrilling to see the young women, traveling in the southwestern part of Wisconsin, able to take care of themselves so efficiently.

In Many Roles

The mother of three daughters — Sandy, about to begin her freshman year at Earlham College, Richmond, Ind.; Linda, a junior at Appleton High School, and Vicki in second grade at Foster School — Mrs. Butler says it's most important to participate in activities of one's children. She was an assistant leader when Sandy was a Brownie at Jefferson School. She later became a leader and has been so for one or the other of her girls all the way through. Neighborhood Chairman is a post she calls one of the most important and least appreciated jobs in the whole scouting program. It is the chairman's duty to see that troops are organized and have good programs, that all girls who wish to be in scouting have the opportunity to do so, and that leaders get the help they need. She served in that capacity for four years.

She and her husband, who is with the Neenah Paper Division of Kimberly Clark, are members of the Chalk Hills Camp Committee, helping get the camp in condition before and after the camping season. Mrs. Butler is also troop organizer at Foster School and "is always on a troop committee."

Sees Other Needs
Although she has undertaken almost as many tasks as possible, Xonia Butler feels there are many areas in which help is needed. Speakers bureaus, where anyone with a flair for addressing a group, could inform people about scouting and other organizations, would do a tremendous service. People in the personnel field are also needed, to help people who want to serve find the place where they are needed. She believes there is no talent that should go unused. It's simply a matter of finding the right place for it.

In the senior program there is also a need for adult volunteers. People with special skills or knowledge willing to spend a few hours imparting that information to both girls and leaders. Many fathers, she says, are experts in outdoor cookery or crafts, and the girls would be thrilled to learn, if only the experts would offer to teach. Music is another area where a volunteer would be welcomed. A Girl Scout Chorus would give the young women the direction they need to use their love and ability for singing.

Even though scouting has been her major interest since the Butler family arrived in Appleton in 1946, the charming Mrs. Butler's scope is not limited. A graduate of the University of Nebraska with a home economics major, she last year returned to school, taking courses at Lawrence College that will eventually enable her to teach art. In the past she has devoted some of her energies to the League of Women Voters; AAUW, where she belongs to study groups and especially enjoys the art study; Sunday school, where she has taught for 12 years, and day camp at New London, where she worked last summer and is now on the program committee. She has also been a United Community Services volunteer, a Y Drive volunteer and member of various PTAs.

Whatever else she becomes involved with, Mrs. Butler says she'll never give up scouting. And with daughter Vicki about to become a Brownie, it looks as if she may be right.

Tell About Programs

Co-chairman of the program committee, Mrs. Dennis Bahcall and Mrs. Harry Millstein, lined up an agenda of programs to be held at the social center.

On Oct. 8, Miss Beverly Umuth will present a musical resume of "Milk and Honey" at the annual luncheon given by the vocational education committee. Later that month, Oct. 15, regional officers will conduct a leadership training caravan.

Drying Fabrics

When drying laundry in a clothes dryer, it is a good idea to sort fabrics by weight. For instance, heavy fabrics can be dried at high temperature while sheers are better dried at a somewhat lower temperature. Most clothes dryers have flexible time settings for all weights of fabrics. Most delicate fabrics are safe in modern clothes dryers because they are never exposed to direct heat.

Poached-Fried Eggs

If you have trouble achieving that perfect, filmy look with poached eggs, fry the egg in a small amount of fat with the burner of your range set at 225 degrees. Add a teaspoon of water for each egg and cover the skillet tightly for a few minutes. The eggs will be just right to serve on corned beef hash, chicken hash, Eggs Benedict or any way you wish to use them.

Hostesses will be Mesdames Joseph Bailin, Jay Wallens, Henry Schlossmann, Oscar Nemshoff and Abe Polisky.

"The Essence of It All," a Hadassah medical organization film will be shown Nov. 12 by hostesses Mmes. Isadore Baron, Henry Belzer, Louis Blinder, Harry Bliss, Abe Brundnick and Tany Agnon.

Chinese Auction
Mmes. Louis Blum, Frank Bahcall, Goldie Brooks, Maynard Burstein, Joseph Burstein and Arnold Cohodas will organize the Youth Aliya Chanukah Party and Chinese auction for Dec. 10.

On Jan. 14 the Hadassah supplies committee will be hostesses for their annual pancake luncheon. Mrs. Charles Cohen, Milwaukee, will tell about "My Trip Around the World" and show slides.

Mrs. Jack Weiner, education chairman, is handling the Feb. 11 program, a book review of "Aliyah." Hostesses will be Mmes. William Chudacoff, Ben Cherkasky, Louis Blacher, Lester Chudacoff and Harold Abramson.

Civil Rights Panel

Judge Gustave Keller, V. I. Minahan, Rabbi Gilbert Silverstein and moderator Dr. Marvin Kagen will present a panel discussion of civil rights March 10. Hostesses for the American affairs - brotherhood evening program will be Mmes. George Block, Norman Friedman, Irving Green, Donald Garelick, Thomas Genda and Frank Cohen.

"A Hospital Called Hadassah" is the program highlight for April 14. Mmes. Grady Forbes, Abe Goldin, Sidney Chudacoff, Louis Fustfeld and Joseph Gabriel will be hostesses.

Past presidents will have charge of a donor affair in April. Mrs. Henry Chudacoff, Mrs. Fred Danieko and Mrs. Max Freeman will be hostesses for Friday night services.

Jewelry Addsto Fashion

Fall jewelry matches the mood of fashion with elegant accents for evening, and sportive touches for autumn's casually relaxed daywear.

Emphasis is on pins and earrings.

Fashion adds the finishing touches to fall's easy styles with country - casual jewelry. Very much in the sportive spirit are chunky pins, bar pins, fob pins, and stick pins for scarves, along with cuff links, "heavy" bracelets and necklaces, and wooden beads.

Bangles, bangles and beads look very new for fall in leather, suede, lizard, alligator and leopard.

The gold rush is on for fall, with fashion prospecting for gold on jewelry to accent fall's sporty styles. Casual, yet feminine, are gold earrings, woven gold chain bracelets and necklaces.

After-five, femininity comes to the fore in exquisite jewelry to accent fall's elegant evening wear. Fashion likes a luxurious "antique look" in jewelry inspired by actual heirloom pieces. Real-looking stones look even more authentic in antique settings. Luxurious-looking Victorian pendants, cameos, Renaissance enamel pieces and long, dramatic earrings carry out fashion's opulent theme for evening.

In necklaces, two-strand matinee length beads are a popular choice for fall, as are cultured pearls mixed with colored beads and stones. Low-cut evening gowns will feature multi-strand necklaces.

The Spanish influence is seen in jet and ruby jewelry, and drop earrings with a tasseled look that give the young women the direction they need to use their love and ability for singing.

State's Goldwater Enthusiasts Reveal Reservations Over Chances to Capture Nomination for President

(Ed. Note: This is the second and concluding article based on findings about sentiment in the Wisconsin Republican party organization about the 1964 party presidential nomination as shown in a poll of the county chairmen of the party in the state.)

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — There is no doubt about the deep desire of a majority of the working captains of the Wisconsin Republican organization for the nomination of Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona for the presidency by the Republican convention next year but there is less confidence among them about the probability of his nomination. Moreover, there is a gnawing doubt among some of the most zealous of the Wisconsin Goldwater backers in party politics that he would be the best nominee in vote-attracting terms or that he would be able to defeat the second term candidacy of President Kennedy on the Democratic ticket that is universally regarded as certain.

Salient Facts

Here are the salient facts about today's desires of Wisconsin Republican county organization leaders, and their speculations about the 1964 presidential nomination which many of them volunteered might be crucial in the history of the Republican Party as a national organization:

1. In personal preference terms, Sen. Goldwater is probably a more enthusiastic choice of Wisconsin typical party workers, among all potential bidders, than any other politician has been in a similar context in the recent history of politics in Wisconsin.

Fifty-six of the 12 county chairmen of the state replied to a poll arranged by this newspaper's Madison bureau.

Thirty-nine of them named Goldwater as their personal choice for the nomination.

All other candidates together got only 17 personal preference votes among the county leaders. A poor second runner was Gov.

George Romney of Michigan, elected in a hard campaign in that neighbor state last fall. He was chosen by nine of the county party chiefs.

Other Names

Former Vice President Nixon won four votes, and Sen. Morton of Kentucky, Gov. Scranton of Pennsylvania and Sen. Keating of New York got one each.

One county chairman named Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, but then added a postscript which said he wrote with "tongue in cheek," without further elaboration.

2. While the personal feelings of the county party leaders can only be described as overwhelmingly favoring Goldwater, there is a different picture presented when the same local politicians are asked to name the "probable" nominee of the party, as they assess developments, current and prospective, and according to their own experience and understanding of national Republican politics.

In that test, Sen. Goldwater retains a commanding lead over any other single aspirant, actual or prospective, but the chairmen are evenly divided about whether the nominee will be Goldwater or another.

Nothing Clear

There is no clear pattern of opinion about the probable alternative, but half of the county chairmen are willing to guess now, nearly a year before the event, that the nominating convention will turn to another man.

Again, however, there is little comfort in the situation for Gov. Rockefeller or his friends. The New York governor was named as the "probable" nominee by six chairmen. But Richard Nixon got seven votes. Romney got four. Sen. Norton five. Scranton three, and five were scattering. One man guessed the party would turn to Gen. Eisenhower.

A fair conclusion from the poll results, fortified by some of the comments of individual party leaders replying, is that there is a good chance that the party will turn to a candidate with a posture of moderation in the next campaign.

One representative county leader put it succinctly:

"I don't feel either Goldwater or Rockefeller can win. Their supporters will have to compromise."

Dark Horse

Typical comments noted that while Goldwater has enormous and sometimes fanatical backing among "party people," there is less evidence of such strong general public support.

The only man who was referred to in significant frequency as a promising "dark horse" was Sen. Thurston Morton of Kentucky, apparently because he is known to be one of the fond favorites of Mr. Eisenhower and served as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

There remains some suspicion and resentment about what has often been called in Wisconsin Republican politics the power of the "Eastern liberal international group." Several county leaders predicted that the Eastern forces will be able to maneuver the convention into nominating their choice for the party ticket leadership, whatever it turns out to be.

While it is reasonably evident that Gov. Rockefeller's highly publicized divorce and remarriage has damaged his political standing, the poll brought few direct comments about those events.

It is a plausible conclusion that popular reaction to the governor's marital history has been unfavorable and that such reaction has persuaded county party leaders to write him off as a serious candidate, thus backing up their own ideological objections to what several key party officers called a "me too" candidate.

Dominant Choice

Thus Sen. Goldwater emerges as the dominant choice of the representative local Republican campaign workers, although it is clear also that he faces some practical problems of important dimensions.

Said one chairman in a strongly Republican district of conservative inclinations:

"If the convention was held next week, I believe Goldwater would win easily. He has filled vacuum for the conservative. I admire his conservative thinking, but the man written and said so many stupid statements that Kennedy would cut him up in little pieces."

Perhaps even more representative of the basic convictions of typical Republican politicians of experience was this comment from a man who has had a broader experience in campaigns and Republican organization affairs than most.

"I prefer Goldwater as of now for the reason that the voters will have a clear cut choice between a conservative and a liberal for the first time in 30 years and I think it would be healthy."

But then he added what many other politicians who want their party to win, but more than anything want it to survive historically, appear to be thinking however uncertainly:

"If Goldwater is nominated and soundly defeated, then the moderates and the conservatives will have to conclude that they are out of step and old-fashioned. They can then retire or change their thinking. Personally I think there is a vast under-cover volume of conservative thinking in this country."

Camp Director Worries About Public Reaction

Prison Work Facility Practices System of Careful Selection

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

McNAUGHTON — The problem of maintaining satisfactory relations with the surrounding community remains a key concern of the managers of the state reformatory work camp located here in the heart of the northeastern Wisconsin resort country.

The problem of "developing healthy public relations" in the community was listed prominently in a report to the State Board of Public Welfare filed by Winston Hughes, new superintendent of the camp.

The report emphasized that the camp has lately functioned with a population under capacity, in part because of "extreme care given to the selection of the men who make up the camp membership."

"Least Aggressive"

The least aggressive and troublesome of the reformatory inmates are selected for camp assignment, and most of them are preparing for their release on parole.

The correctional work camp system has been gradually expanded in recent years, partly as a result of a higher prison population, partly as a design for prisoner rehabilitation. This camp in Oneida County was one of the first of its kind. Located in a woodland district famed for its lakes and fishing opportunities, most of the prison camp work projects are centered on conservation-related activity.

Hughes related that one of his subsidiary problems is the development of a winter season recreational program for the inmates.

Training Program

Eventually, Hughes said, it may be possible to evolve a formal training program for camp inmates to prepare them for a return to their homes and families, after the model of the new Walworth County pre-release center which receives inmates of the state prison at Waupun who are scheduled for parole.

On the public relations problem here, Hughes said he intends to invite more local residents and community leaders to participate in the camp treatment programs.

"Efforts will be made to bring people into the camp simply to show them what we are trying to do and to let them get acquainted with problems of camp administration as well as the problems faced by the young men upon release."

Home Pool Should Enhance Landscape Improvement, Recommend Changes

Family Room and Kitchen floors are finished in resilient tile, floors of both pool service areas are tiled in ceramics and walls of all three areas are plastic coated wood grain panels. Area excluding garage and porches is 2,167 square feet.

There was a time when swimming pools, like air conditioners and two-car garages were considered extravaganzas of the idle rich.

But the trend toward family pools is gathering momentum rapidly. Already there are so many types of pools available it's getting confusing. Installation has become a business in itself, and the indication is that it won't be long before pools have stepped down from the luxury category altogether.

Recreation First

Though recreation plainly is its primary purpose, a pool should be more than just a back yard swimming hole. The refreshing natural beauty of pooled water as a landscaped attraction is recognized everywhere from the Taj Mahal to the Washington Monument—and so it can be with your home.

Today's House of the Week, J 93 in the series was designed by architect Rudolph A. Matern to take maximum advantage of both the recreational and aesthetic functions of a pool.

Moreover, the arrangement of the house is such that the pool could be added later. Meanwhile the convenient shower room adjoining the laundry could be used for storage; a partition could substitute for the door between the pool bath and main bath.

Interior Subdued

The house is a crisply contemporary four-bedroom ranch. Its exterior is subdued and uncluttered. A dramatic prow-shaped living room bay with exposed roof beams complements the sturdy rectangular shapes of the bedroom and garage wings and the chimney. Vertical siding contrasts with the horizontal roofline. Living area excluding garage and porches is 2,167 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 85' 4" wide by 47' 2" deep.

The delightful vista of the pool can be enjoyed not only from the broad terrace and pool porch with its angled walls but from five inside rooms as well: the family room, kitchen, dining room and even the living room and master bedroom.

Because of the excellent show or arrangement in the service area behind the garage you might choose to eliminate the pool bath in the bedroom wing. If so it could become a large walk-in closet. The hall door to the adjoining bath then would be walled making it a private master bath. A family bath still remains nicely placed to serve the three family bedrooms.

Face of Upkeep

The house is furnished for ease of upkeep—a factor all pool owners will appreciate. The family room and kitchen floor are finished with resilient tile in a flagstone design and the walls are plastic coated.

Different Ceiling

If you are tired of flat and staid looking ceilings, why not have beveled cedar siding installed in your family room? This will give you a shadow line and will make a most attractive ceiling which will be a conversation piece in your home.

Vital to Avoid Flood Damage

Outline Methods Of Preventing Costly Losses

If you're tired of "passing the bucket" or bailing out your basement after every heavy downpour, consider three important ways of preventing flood damage in your home.

The most common cause of basement flooding is heavy rainfall forcing water to back up through the drains in the floor of the basement.

Since raw sewage is sometimes carried with the water, the homeowner faces an additional health hazard.

The three most widely used methods of preventing flooded basements are:

- 1 The automatic electric sump pump or cellar drainer which keeps rain water from reaching the floor level of the basement.
- 2 The automatic back-water valve which closes when the sewer backs up.
- 3 The overhead sewer which carries waste from laundry drains and other water connections from the house at a higher level than the basement.

It is important to remember that each of these devices is designed to serve a special situation. What will work in one house will not necessarily be best in another because the conditions may be different.

Hose Stands Up To Heat, Cold

A new all weather hose made of Hypalon synthetic rubber is on the market. This should prove a boon to the lazy gardener who leaves his hose out in the baking sun or sudden freezes.

The developer (Du Pont) says the hose will not soften, stiffen, crack or become brittle and will resist discoloration. The hose is reinforced with cord to prevent kinking.

Innovations in Styling and Design Embodied in New Home of Azco, Inc.

More Than 9,600 Feet of working area for shop personnel is provided in the new building of Azco, Inc., on U. S. 41. The mechanical contracting firm primarily serves commercial and industrial clients. (Post-Crescent Photo)

BY JAMES AUER
Post-Crescent Building Editor

When a mechanical contractor moves into a new building, that building can be expected to embody more than a few innovations in styling, design and construction.

And the recently-completed home of Azco, Inc., Appleton mechanical contracting firm, on U. S. 41, is satisfyingly different from both aesthetic and practical viewpoints.

First of all, though the building appears to be a modest size from the highway, there is a surprising amount of space for office and shop workers.

John Barlow, Azco's president and treasurer, pointed out to a visitor that the office provides 4,000 square feet of area while working space in the shop amounts to 9,600 square feet.

Area Doubled

In all, the building contains twice as much office and shop space as the structure Azco occupied from 1951 to earlier this year.

"Getting away from the ordinary" is the way Barlow describes Azco's efforts to design a building that not only suited its physical needs, but embodied modern design principles and durable, low-maintenance construction.

Raymond N. LeVeé and Associates served as consulting architects while Chris Borggren, formerly of Appleton and now of California, worked with Azco executives in the general design of the building.

First of all Azco wished "to get away from masonry block construction," Barlow said. The new building is mostly of steel construction with Consoweld walls in the lobby, conference room and president's office.

Consoweld, manufactured at Wisconsin Rapids by Consolidated Paper Co., is a new type of wall material of paper impregnated with resins. The wall of the lobby and conference room are decorated with Consoweld of Cathedral walnut pattern while Barlow's office is decorated with English walnut.

The building contains, in addition to a shop, a conference room, engineering department, accounting department, eight private offices and a reception room in which equipment may be displayed.

Founded in 1949, Azco's first office was located in the Spector building in downtown Appleton. In 1951 the firm moved to a building on U. S. 41 and was located there until this summer.

Offering complete mechanical contracting services from A to Z, Azco handles heating, ventilating, plumbing, air conditioning, fire protection, sprinkler systems, metal fabricating, power plant, industrial process piping and stainless steel piping.

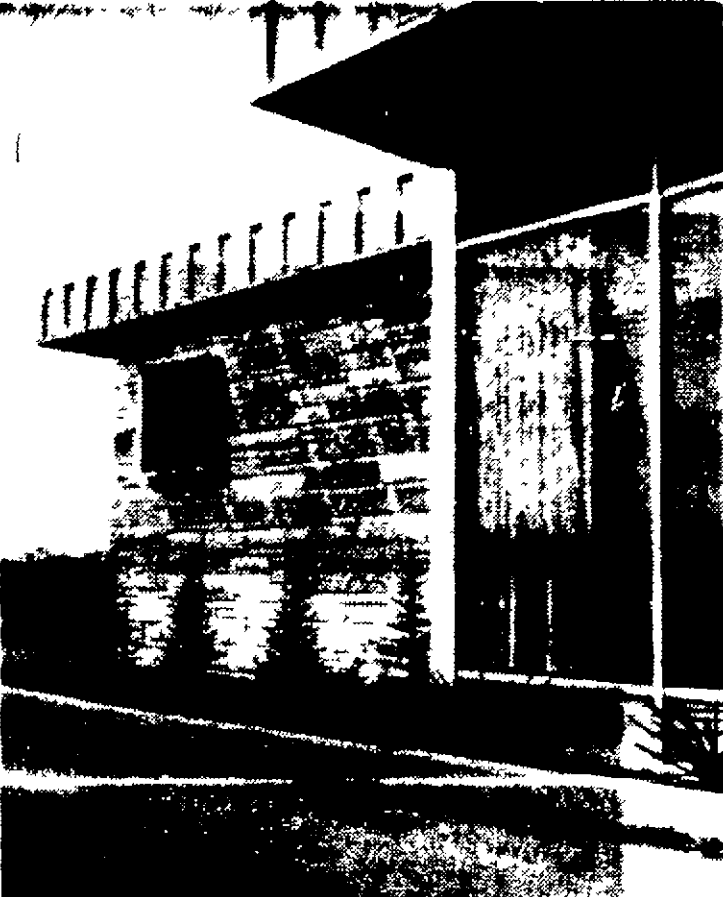

Area Projects

Although many of its jobs are outside the immediate Fox Cities area, the firm lists among its projects the Appleton H. C. Prange Co., the Appleton First National bank, the Wisconsin Telephone Co., Theda Clark Memorial Hospital, main office building, Kimberly-Clark Corp. and the Conway Motor Hotel.

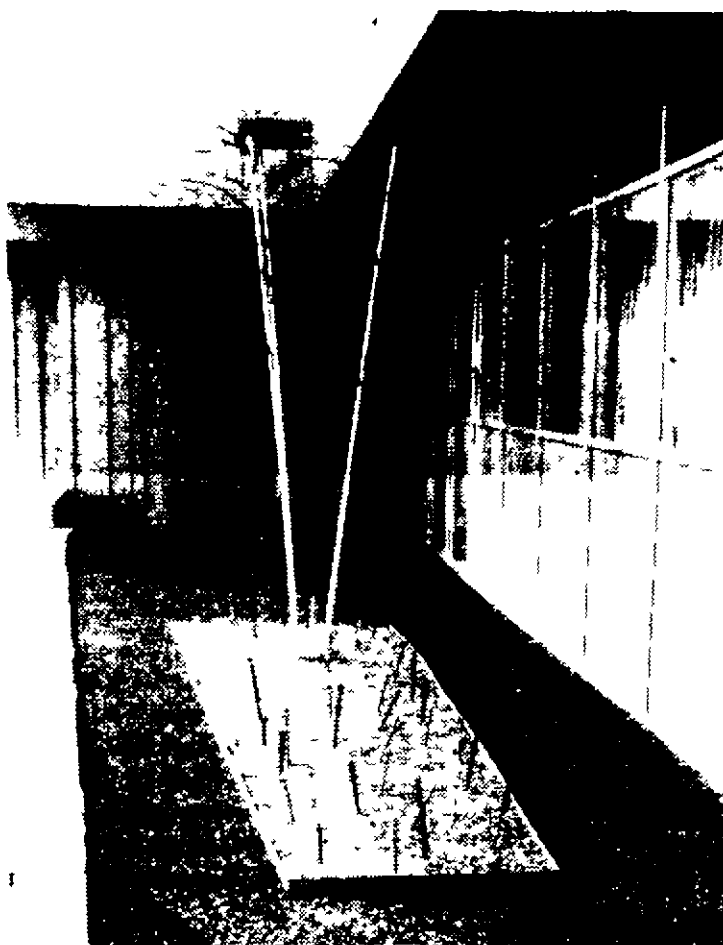

The firm currently has 85 persons on its payroll. Annual volume is approximately $2 million. Landscaping for the Azco building developed in consultation with John Gillespie and Associates is as unusual as the building itself. Unique evergreen trees, fabricated out of steel, greet the visitor.

The trees, of two sizes, are set in black marble chips. The belts from new cars permit ground around the trees conscious judges to suspend as well as of green stones with the steel voke driver licenses regulate birch clump growing out of a truster hitches and require driver bed of crushed granite with many training.

Garage Rooftop Offers Privacy

Asphalt Roofing Can be Covered With Wooden Deck

If your garage or carport has a flat roof, this might be the perfect place to put a secluded sun deck.

The asphalt roofing of the flat-topped carport can be covered with wood decking to provide a cool, comfortable surface for the outdoor room. Using hardy fir lumber, build the decking in squares of four feet. Deck boards should be 2x4s installed either on edge or flat, and runners underneath should be 4x4s to lift the deck well away from the asphalt. The decking can be built in the home workshop, then transported to the rooftop.

Movable Squares

The squares of decking will not be permanently attached to the rooftop, but rather will be movable. This permits easy removal for any needed future repairs to the roofing underneath.

Screens can also be added around the edge of this rooftop room to provide privacy or to control wind, and of course an outside stairway will be needed to reach it. Both can be interestingly designed in Douglas fir.

If you want to get sophisticated, add a garden to the rooftop sundeck with planter boxes of greens and flowers. Imitation river rock—actually lightweight plastic—can be also used to create gravel beds. The rock should be contained in shallow boxes and may be alternated with squares of decking for natural appearance.

Ailing House Now's Time to Make Repairs to Thwart Winter's Destructive Blasts

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Predicting weather in September is a tricky proposition. This statement is true at least for the northern two-thirds of the country. In some years September brings long stretches of clear, dry bliss. Other years suffer under the frequent equinoctial storms.

No one ever knows about September. But in this unpredictable month a homeowner can't go wrong by making his castle tight and ready for the possible high winds and slamming rains that can characterize the beginning of fall.

Besides, it will be a big favor the homeowner is doing himself for he will be saving many last minute preparations for the winter. These have to be done sooner or later.

If it's done sooner in the pleasant weather for outdoor jobs the working is more enjoyable. Similarly, there'll be less struggling needed during the winter weather when it's no fun to be out doors anyway.

Start With The Roof

Starting with the roof, it should be checked to see that there are no shaky shingles which a gusty wind could loosen. Once this happens, rain can be driven in and there's the start of what can be an expensive leak.

At the risk of being a frightful bore by repeating this theme, let me say again that for those of us unused to working at heights, don't send for a professional to do the roof. Accidents aren't exactly unknown as a result of amateur tacking jobs on a pitched roof. But if roofing repairs are not a problem here are some of the things you can do to make that roof tight and leakproof. Slide a dab of roofing cement under any loose shingles. If a shingle is curling or split (or both), flatten down all corners with rustproof nails after working the cement in. Doing this on a hot day is better because the sun's heat will make the cement spread better.

If the gravel coating on asphalt shingles is starting to loosen, it can be anchored firmly with a compatible type finish such as vinyl plastic latex paint. Of course, for loosened shingles of any type, anchoring with roofing cement works as just described for the wooden variety.

Don't Forget Flashing

Carefully examine the flashings—the metal stripping which seals the joints between the roofing and the chimney, around the base of vent stacks and the lining of valleys between gables. Needless to say, there'd better not be any loose or areas where the metal has sprung away or nails beginning to work out. Any of these can lead to leaks and all the subsequent expensive damage.

Lucey 'Retirement' Expected to End

Might Succeed Rabinovitz As Party National Committeeman

Post-Crescent Staff Writer
MADISON — The political "retirement" of Patrick J. Lucey of Madison, who quit the Democratic state party chairmanship in June, probably will be short-lived. Lucey is universally expected to be chosen as the new Democratic national committeeman for Wisconsin as soon as David Rabinovitz of Sheboygan, the present Wisconsin member of the ruling national party group, is confirmed for the Wisconsin U.S. district judgeship to which he was nominated by President Kennedy recently. Wisconsin Democrats have been informed that the U.S. senate will confirm Rabinovitz without delay or other difficulty.

The succession will be determined by the state Democratic committee, but Rabinovitz has indicated to the committee that he won't resign until he is confirmed in the judicial appointment.

There is some opposition to Lucey within the Democratic party organization, but it is not likely to be effective in this instance, according to the best informed leaders of the party.

Louis Hanson, the new chairman of the state committee, holds that job in part because he won the backing of Lucey for that succession.

The committeeman's job is more important at a time when the party involved is in control of the national administration. Lucey is also a trusted friend of the Kennedy administration, so that in the new party assignment he would have a powerful hand in the dispensation of patronage. His election would also certify his informal rank as the most powerful of the organization politicians of the state today.

Lutheran Feels His Church Nearing Spirit of 'Oneness'

Appleton Delegate to Helsinki Convention Gives Some Opinions

An Appleton man who was one of five laymen appointed as official delegates from the American Lutheran Church to the Lutheran World Federation meeting in Helsinki, Finland, said the most significant thing he observed there was "a feeling that a oneness is something which is coming to the Lutheran Church and it is just a matter of time."

Earl Arnold, 901 E. Marquette St., was one of five laymen appointed as official delegates from the American Lutheran Church to the Lutheran World Federation meeting in Helsinki, Finland, said the most significant thing he observed there was "a feeling that a oneness is something which is coming to the Lutheran Church and it is just a matter of time."

Before attending the Helsinki meeting, he was a delegate of the American Lutheran Church to the German Kirchentag, a biannual meeting which he called "the high point of the German church life," in Dortmund, Germany.

9-Day Meeting
About 45 delegates from the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America attended the nine-day meeting in Helsinki. About 1,000 official delegates, visitors and observers there represented some 53 million Lutherans in 38 countries.

Arnold said about 2,000 Americans attended the meetings for one or two days each. These included Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Ohlrogge, 333 River Drive. Dr. Ohlrogge is president of the Northern Wisconsin District of the American Lutheran Church. The Rev. E. B. Steern of Trinity Lutheran Church, Madison, was also there. Arnold said the meetings were held in a large hall, and the atmosphere was very friendly. He said the meetings were held in a large hall, and the atmosphere was very friendly.

Finance Post To be Filled In Appleton

Mitchell Says Valley Applicant Ranks First for Position

Mayor Clarence Mitchell will announce the appointment of Appleton's first municipal finance director at Wednesday night's meeting of the common council.

Several local, state and out-of-state men applied for the new position which was created this summer by the council.

However, it was disclosed Saturday that no one from Appleton passed the examinations conducted by the State Bureau of Personnel.

The finance director's post will have a pay range of $8,700 to $10,380.

Mitchell said he would spend most of the weekend and early next week interviewing the top-rated candidates. He received the list from the bureau of personnel Friday.

The common council wants to hire a finance director as soon as possible so he can assist with preparation of the 1964 budget. He will assume several fiscal duties in addition to carrying out assignments from the mayor and the common council.

Mitchell said the No. 1 ranked candidate for the post was a Fox Cities resident and the mayor expressed hope that he would accept the position.

The starting salary will be set by the personnel and finance committees, subject to council approval.

Hearing on CNW Marina Scheduled
OSHKOSH — A public hearing has been set for 10 a. m. Thursday at the courthouse on the application of the Chicago and North Western Railway Co. to construct and operate a marina near the entrance of the Fox River into Lake Winnebago here.

The hearing will be conducted by the State Public Service Commission.

The railroad early this summer had announced eventual plans for developing a marina and motel complex on railroad property on the south side of the Fox River.

A breakwater would have to be established and some fill would be required, the railroad's plans indicated.

No date for when the project will be undertaken has been announced.

Appleton Woman Found Unconscious In Front of Home
Mrs. Sally Graham, 53, 705 N. Appleton St., was found by police about 1 p. m. Saturday, lying unconscious in a pool of blood in the street in front of her home.

Police have not been able to determine how she was injured. She was lying in the street, nine feet from the curb.

An attending physician said Mrs. Graham had a large, jagged wound on the left side of her head behind the left ear. He said there was no indication as to what caused the injury, but he did not believe she was struck by a car.

Mrs. Graham was taken to Appleton Memorial Hospital by Larry's Ambulance Service.

Outagamie, Winnebago Take Firm, Opposing Stands on Proposal for Joint Field

BY DICK LYNEIS
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

"East is East, West is West, and never the twain shall meet," Rudyard Kipling made that statement in the late 19th Century — long before federal agencies and officials recommended that Outagamie and Winnebago counties get together and construct a regional airport.

However, his words seem just as appropriate today. One side (Winnebago County) insists that before it sits down and talks regional airport with the other side (Outagamie County), two other counties — Fond du Lac and Green Lake — must be considered.

Outagamie County, on the other hand, maintains that since Edward S. Stodola, trial examiner for the Civil Aeronautics Board, and the CAB's Bureau of Economic Regulations recommend that the two counties meet jointly to consider a regional airport in the Neenah area, there can be no other basis for discussion.

And if the meeting isn't held by next Thursday, A. W. Ponath, Outagamie County corporation counsel says, there never will be a meeting. The deadline puts Winnebago County squarely on the spot — either meet alone with Outagamie County by that date, or have no meeting at all.

No Alternative
As Appleton Supv. John Dietz, a member of the Outagamie County airport committee, says, "As long as they're not willing to discuss a new regional airport near Neenah, we have no alternative but to build our own airport in Outagamie County."

The Outagamie County Board concurred Tuesday when, by a vote of 20 to 23, it decided to advertise for bids on construction work for an airport in the Town of Greenville.

The bids will be opened by the airport committee Oct. 14 and the board will meet the next day to consider recommendations of the committee. Unless several supervisors have a change of heart in the meantime, it can be expected that the board will approve the necessary contracts and construction work will begin.

Dietz said that "with good weather, we can get in at least a full month's work this fall. We will complete a good share of the grading."

Dietz Optimistic
Dietz was also optimistic about the bids. He said Outagamie County may get lower bids at this time of year since most construction companies have completed their road building work and are anxious to obtain contracts to keep their men busy as late in the year as possible. He added that the same contractors will be influenced by the knowledge that more construction work will be available immediately after the winter thaw.

The 23 votes cast by county board members in opposition to advertising for bids came because several rural and a few Appleton supervisors want to wait for a decision by the CAB as an aftermath of the regional airline hearings held recently in day.

Some of the supervisors think, too, that Winnebago County may change its position and agree to build a regional airport in the Neenah vicinity.

'Not Interested'
But Ponath said, "We are not willing to meet with Winnebago County on their terms. We will consider a site near Neenah as recommended by Stodola and the Bureau of Economic Regulation and nothing else. It's quite apparent that they want to discuss the Oshkosh airport and nothing else. Well, we're not interested."

Ponath also answered the Outagamie board members who advocate waiting for a CAB decision. He said, "The earliest time we can expect a decision is early in 1964."

Ponath stated, "however, based upon past CAB decisions, their final word may not come for two years. We cannot hold up our construction that long."

Supv. Elmer G. Steinhilber of Oshkosh, father of Winnebago County Dist. Atty. Jack Steinhilber, referred to the recent Bureau of Economic Regulation position as a "lot of gobbledygook."

Issue Is Area One
Winnebago's aviation committee Tuesday reaffirmed that it will meet with Outagamie County to consider regional airport plans only if "the issue is an area airport and the entire area is considered."

The committee formally restated its position that "inasmuch as the issue is an area airport, we should include in the discussion the entire area," citing Fond du Lac and Green Lake.

Winnebago County Board Chairman Joseph Drexler said any meeting with Outagamie County should not be construed as approval of relocating their present airport.

Dist. Atty. Steinhilber said it would be best for Winnebago County to wait until the engineering survey of its own airport is completed. This report is expected in late October.

"Who is being unreasonable?" Dist. Atty. Steinhilber asked. "They are going ahead and spending on a large project. They issue an ultimatum and say we are to do this or they will go ahead. Who's being unreasonable? We just ask them to wait for the engineering survey and get the facts."

Ponath said Outagamie County is not interested in a survey of the Winnebago County Airport, only a new regional airport.

"East is East and West is West." And it seems very unlikely that the twain will ever meet.

Fond du Lac's Police Chief to Retire After 33 Years as Enforcement Officer

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

FOND DU LAC — Police Chief James D. (Jim) Cahill has been a pistol-packing policeman for 33 years now.

The other day he took note that his tenure as a law enforcement officer adds up to half his life-time.

"I've been thinking about it for quite sometime," Cahill said as he took a big puff on a favorite cigar, "and I think the time has come to retire."

Hang Up His Gun

It was the likeable Cahill's way of announcing without fanfare that this fall he will be hanging up his gun and stepping down as head of Fond du Lac's highly-rated police department.

Cahill, who started as a rookie and worked his way up through the ranks, has been chief for the past 17 years. During that time the department underwent a complete reorganization and today is comprised of 45 officers and six civilian employees.

"I'm going to take a few weeks vacation and then I will be leaving for good," Cahill said, referring to his office in the Safety building.

Cahill, a witty Irishman who was born and raised on a Fond du Lac County farm, said he would like to bow out quietly. "I'd just as soon not have any fuss about my retirement," was the way he put it.

While Cahill has never been a publicity-seeker, he always has been most cooperative with newspapermen. Cahill has long had a reputation of being firm but fair. He is well respected in the community and law enforcement circles throughout the state.

"A policeman always should use common sense and good judgment because he is constantly dealing with the public," is Cahill's basic philosophy.

Although Fond du Lac County has popped into the public eye periodically because some undesirable characters are known to frequent the area, the Fond du Lac Police Department under Cahill has had an outstanding performance record. The city's crime record is one of the lowest in the state.

During Cahill's tenure as chief, there were 10 murders with every one solved. Years ago it wasn't always that way, and there are many other departments that envy such a performance record.

Joined During Depression

Cahill joined the force during the depression—Jan. 18, 1930 to be exact—and in one year received two promotions. He was appointed detective on May 1, 1936, and served in that capacity until April 1, 1945, when he was promoted to lieutenant of detectives.

On April 11, 1946, Cahill was appointed acting chief. A month later he took over as head of the department. During the 17 years that followed there were many changes in the PD operation—all for the good.

Getting Cahill to talk about himself and his long career would be like getting President Kennedy to invite Sen. Goldwater to tea.

One thing is certain, however, and that is that Cahill holds some sort of a record for cigars smoked during a lifetime. While holding a conversation, he has also mastered the art of moving a cigar from one side of his mouth to the other with comparative ease without slurring a word.

Over the years, Cahill has been able to do the job while still maintaining a sense of humor in spite of pressures.

"I think the world would have been a lot better off without newspaper reporters," is one of Cahill's favorite expressions when he gets into a "ribbing" session with newsmen. The latter have on occasion jokingly accused him of clouding the discussion with cigar smoke.

The 66-year-old Cahill is a crack shot with a pistol and doesn't do bad either with a rifle during the performance record. The city's crime record is one of the lowest in the state.

Although an excellent shot, Cahill says there was never an occasion when he had to shoot it out with a criminal, and he managed to cope with quite a few.

Over the years Fond du Lac police have dealt with a variety of tough customers and Cahill recalls that his two fists were put to protective use on several occasions. Jim Cahill long ago gained respect for being able to handle himself in any given situation.

In the old days it was no party raiding the moonshine stills, breaking up gambling dens and that followed there were many changes in the PD operation—all for the good.

"It was heavy work hauling those big slot machines out of second story buildings," Cahill recalled with a grin.

On the serious side, Cahill said he feels the Thomson Anti-Gambling Law is the best piece of legislation ever passed in Wisconsin.

Passed Bad Checks In 17 Counties; Gets Stiff Sentence

WAUSAU (AP) — A 44-year-old man who admitted cashing 43 worthless checks in 17 northern and central Wisconsin counties was sentenced to a year on each count Friday.

Frank M. Walsh pleaded guilty before County Judge Ronald Keberle. Walsh said that he used the money "to finance a perpetual drunk." Keberle directed that three of the one-year terms be consecutive, the others concurrent and added a six-month sentence for jail break involving a brief escape from the Marathon County Jail last Tuesday.

Elks Asked to Give More to Youth Fund

Delegates to State Conclave in Menasha Hear Past Grand Ruler

MENASHA — Wisconsin Elks you will receive back," he said to the delegates. Bohn is the representative of the Grand Lodge Advisory Board for the Michigan-Ohio-Indiana-Wisconsin district. The board is composed of past grand exalted rulers — the highest ranking position in the Elks — who advise and counsel the present national ruler.

The plea came from Fred L. Bohn, Zanesville, Ohio, a past grand exalted ruler. He was the featured speaker Saturday at the annual fall conference of the Wisconsin Elks Association conference-workshop at the Neenah-Menasha Elks Lodge.

The convention of 500 Elks and their wives is to end at noon today.

Bohn reminded the Wisconsin Elks that last year their 38 lodges contributed $12,832 to the National Foundation and received $7,499 in youth scholarships and stipends.

The national foundation was founded in 1928 to provide scholarships and financial assistance to youths. It is run in conjunction with the National Elks Youth Programs.

Each donates annually to the fund and receives awards — financial and scholarships — for its youth. The fund has reached a market value of $14 million of which $1.5 million has been received in the last two years, Bohn said, indicating the recent growth in contributions to the fund.

Only the interest accrued from this fund is used for the youth scholarship and financial assistance programs.

Second Place Bohn said the Wisconsin Association ranks second in the Grand Lodge (the nation) in youth activities, headed by Ohio.

"The more you are willing to contribute to the fund the more

Waupaca Area to Get New Phones

Work on Replacing Crank Style Scheduled to Begin Monday

Waupaca — Conversion of some of the rural magneto "crank" telephones to modern dial telephones will start Monday along State 54 west of here, J. P. Oberlin, branch manager, said Saturday.

The old telephones are being replaced with dial units, although the dial equipment will not be installed until the new telephone company building on Jefferson Street is completed.

Installers, under the direction of Clarence Lukasavage, Stevens Point, will begin the job of rewiring the premises of patrons on the western border of the Waupaca exchange.

The work will progress toward the Chain O'Lakes area which is being equipped with new cables and lines.

The Wisconsin Telephone Co. is building new line facilities consisting of aerial and underground cable and wires. Most of the rural area will be served by underground lines and the Chain O'Lakes area by overhead construction because of the terrain, trees and soil conditions.

Crews have been working on the project for four months, installing and connecting these lines to cables leading through Waupaca proper to the switchboards.

Speed Service

Use of the new numbers will speed-up service to all of the subscribers because it will save the operators time in completing the calls.

Work on the construction project and conversion will continue through the winter months in other rural areas surrounding Waupaca.

the rest of the Federation," Arnold said.

Wisconsin Synod

"My personal observations and discussions lead me to believe that eventually the Missouri Synod will take its place within the Lutheran World Federation," he said. The Wisconsin Synod had no observers there, he said.

Arnold said that after a long discussion on the doctrine of justification in the Lutheran Church, the assembly issued a statement giving the position of the church. "Some national publications have insinuated that this was somewhat of a fight," he said. "I don't share this conviction after having been there. It was a good discussion."

The Federation is a free association of churches and not a "super-church," that can establish a policy and dictate it to other churches, he pointed out. Its constitution includes subscription to the Augsburg Confession and the three creeds (Apostles, Athanasian and Nicene), he said.

Language Barrier

Most Americans faced a language barrier in Finland, Arnold said, but the Finnish people were "very kind and considerate." As soon as they realized how much English was being spoken, they placed school children, who are required to study English, in the stores and restaurants to help the visitors.

Dr. Frederick Schiott of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the American Lutheran Church, was elected president of the Federation, succeeding Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the Lutheran Church in America.

Motivating Forces

The younger churches from the foreign mission fields were the motivating force in Dr. Schiott's election, Arnold said. He has worked in the mission fields and they have a "tremendous regard for his ability to know their problems and understand them," he said.

At the German Kirchentag Arnold observed the effects of having state churches. "Here was where I had my first real appreciation of why our forefathers came here for religious freedom and I gained a new appreciation of the guarantee of religious freedom in our Constitution," he said. Under the system of state

Paralyzed Kimberly Boy Example of How Youth Can Adapt to Adversity

'Mike' Jansen Has Lived With Results of Polio Eight Years

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KIMBERLY — Youngsters can overcome many handicaps and can readily adapt themselves to change. These are two observations about the wonders of youth.

Truth of both can easily be seen in a short visit with Michael "Mike" Jansen, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Jansen, 141 S. Lincoln St.

Mike was 4 years old when the polio epidemic of 1955 struck the Fox Cities. Daily reports came from cities and villages about new cases of the disease. City fathers took precautions, warnings about health habits were given, but still the disease spread.

Struck Severely

One day it happened to little Mike. His temperature rose, aches and pains developed and before long his illness was diagnosed as polio.

The disease struck the boy severely, hitting every part of the boy's body but his right leg. For 13 days Mike hovered near death. His right leg could be moved, but the rest of his body was paralyzed. His voice was almost gone, he had difficulty breathing, had to be placed in an iron lung and fed intravenously.

His condition improved gradually and after five months he was released from the first of many long stays in the hospital. Home meant continued stay in bed.

Constant Therapy

For more than a year, his parents took the child to the hospital for regular therapy treatments besides doing some therapy at home.

As he grew older he was taken to Morgan School in Appleton for two years of intensive therapy and later enrolled in the school where therapy became an every day part of living together with his classroom work.

Although polio crippled his body, it was apparent to teachers and the parents early that the disease had no effect on his mind or his desire to become a normal boy. His marks in school were usually A's and B's and continued to be the same upon transferring to regular classes at the Kimberly Public Grade School.

Despite six operations with lengthy stays in hospitals, wearing three different braces in his life and more operations forthcoming, Mike has been able to stay up with his class in school. This fall he is anxiously looking forward to joining his Boy Scout friends in the seventh grade at Holy Name of Jesus Catholic School.

Handicap Helps

His handicap has helped in some ways. He is perhaps one of the best soccer players of his age, his legs and feet being extra strong since these are often used in place of his arms.

Six Operations

He recently learned to shoot a bow and arrow with his feet at Camp Waubeek. When he went to Gardner Dam with the Boy Scouts, Mike led his patrol in archery scoring. He also can tie knots with his feet, do some croquet and has become the neighborhood croquet champ.

Wants to Help

His mother says he is very interested in reading and constantly is trying to learn more about his hobbies and the world in general. His favorite school subject appears to be science, but he works very hard in attempting to do well in all subjects. When Mike grows up he plans to be a lawyer or medical scientist.

Mr. and Mrs. Jansen realized early that it would be a mistake to treat Mike differently from other children. Everything in his nature seemed to indicate he desired to "be one of the gang." "I want to be something which will enable me to help others," he says.

Although Handicapped Since early youth by the aftermath of a crippling polio disease, Mike Jansen, Kimberly has learned to participate in nearly all activities which his classmates do. Here, he is shown lining up for a shot with a bow and arrow, a sport at which he ranked number one in his scout patrol recently at Gardner Dam Camp. (Post-Crescent Photos)

A 7 p.m. reception will precede the meeting. Dr. A. P. Popelka, 1907 N. Gillett St., county GOP program chairman is in charge of the arrangements for Olson's visit.

He stated that this meeting is as well as all future meetings as the always are open to the public.

Several Olson for governor committees have been formed throughout the state including an Appleton group headed by William Fisher, 2304 S. Greenview St.

Trial of Man Charged With Murder Moved

RACINE (AP)—Racine County Judge Howard Pfeiffer has ordered the trial of Thomas C. Morris, 27, on charges of first degree murder and attempted murder moved to Milwaukee.

Morris is accused of the shooting of two police detectives last May. His counsel contended he could not get a fair trial in Racine. Morris has pleaded innocent.

Some Communicable Diseases Show Drop in Past Decade

NEW YORK — Some communicable diseases have decreased off sharply in the near future with the mass scale use of recently developed vaccines.

Venerable diseases have not recorded the sharp reductions expected because of antibiotic therapy. In 1962, nearly 125,000 cases of syphilis and about 260,000 cases of gonorrhea were reported in the civilian population of the United States. The case rates for these conditions have shown little improvement since 1957, although they had been falling for some time before that the statisticians reported.

Erfatic Results

Two groups of diseases have shown erratic results in recent years. The incidence of infectious and serum hepatitis rose steadily from less than 15,000 cases in 1957 to an all time high of about 72,500 cases in 1961. Last year, however, the trend was reversed and has so far continued downward this year.

A rapid rise has occurred in the incidence of streptococcal sore throat and scarlet fever—from 73 per 100,000 population to more than double that rate in recent years. About a third of a million cases are now reported annually. But the statisticians believe that much of the increase reflects more complete reporting of these diseases.

Whooping Cough

Diphtheria and whooping cough have diminished to a fraction of their incidence of a decade ago. The statisticians said. Diphtheria dropped steadily from about 3,000 cases in 1952 to less than 500 in 1962. The drop in whooping cough, though not quite so steady, has nevertheless been noteworthy.

The case rate for measles has not changed appreciably in level, but this most common of childhood infections is expected to fall cent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Oconto Area Parks Need Improvement

State Request Cites Recreational Development Assets

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
MADISON — Oconto County has not developed its public park and recreational sites for fullest use and maximum contribution to the economy of the community, the parks advisory service of the state conservation department says in a report submitted to the Oconto County government.

A comprehensive county recreational development system to add new areas to the list of public recreational sites within the county is urged by the report.

Emphasizing the county's excellent recreation potential, the report urges a comprehensive plan for recreational development within the county-owned forests.

Economic Factor
"With a deadline in industry, agriculture and other economic bases, it is important the county realize that recreation is a means to economic rehabilitation," the county officials were told.

The report urged the county to plan for the improvement of five desirable sites within the present county park system. Most important is the North Bay Shore Park No. 2, seven miles north of Oconto, which it said will almost surely become the most heavily used recreation site between Green Bay and Marinette.

It said the second most important park in the county system is the White Potato county park. It said Ranch Lake could form a use complex with the Potato lake area, because of superior swimming opportunities there. The county was advised also to Chute Pond park, the development of a park on land owned by Anton Anderson on Kelly lake, and the lands bordering the Machichane flowage.

River Potential
Other potential development sites were named as tracts on the south branch of the Oconto river and access points on the Oconto river. The county forests provide numerous opportunities for smaller recreational sites, it was stated.

Park visitor totals each year the report continued, now substantially exceed the county's population, but the authors commented that all public officials apparently are not aware of the economic potential of the area recreational opportunities.

"It would appear that one of the greatest problems in Oconto county is the need for county and town officials to realize the need for park development and to act accordingly. The board (county) has an obligation to the people within the county to set aside the prime recreation lands, historic and scenic areas for public use so that this heritage may be passed on from generation to generation," the state advisors said.

The county was told that the lands already in public ownership and devoted to forestry, local, state and national, which account for about a third of the country's land area, have a "very great recreational potential."

Cottage Demand Grows

Waushara County Resort Owners Consider 1963 Their Best Season

Pine River Resort owners of Waushara County's lakelands are entering the 1963 season high on the credit side of the ledger.

Over the Labor Day weekend cash registers played a merry prosperity tune. Financial and musical notes were heard during the season now in its wind-up phase.

A spot check of the lake-spanned, pine-bordered area tells the story.

"Red Letter"
The season was a "red letter" one. To this tavernmen and motel operators agree. And, there's the concurring voice of realtors with marketable lake frontage property.

Demand for summer cottage building sites in the mid-Wisconsin region, they agree, outdistances the supply of desirable sites as in ever increasing volume, the "butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker," seek for themselves a summer retreat.

The bullish market for lake fronting sites has, they say, resulted in an inflationary land boom. And there's a scramble to open and sub-divide undeveloped lake areas for cottages.

Mass Migration
In this regard, the man-made saucer-shaped, level-controlled Lake Kristine is representative. It was opened during the past summer season, making available new cottage sites in the Saxeville area.

The phenomenon of cottagers' mass migration during the summer is represented at Pearl Lake, not far from Red Granite. During the winter's freeze-up, the lake colony numbers about 74 so-called "regulars."

This season, by actual nose-count taken by Walter Piekartz of the Pearl Lake Resort, the population, slept through his arrest Friday.

Police said Karl Harris, 40, of South Bend, snoozed peacefully as they handcuffed him to the chair and checked the store for missing items. They awakened him then and took him to jail.

Harris, clad in a bathrobe, had an assortment of liquor bottles display lawn chair inside a drug and cigarettes beside him. Two of the bottles were opened.

tion swelled to 2,500. That does not take into account the transients who used the beach swim facilities of the resort.

Best Season
"The past season was one of the best in our books," says Piekartz. "The guests and vacationists appeared to have money and, what is more, were willing to spend it. Naturally, that makes us happy."

Jerry Noll, of Silvercreek Resort near Wautoma, came in with additional support on the general theme of 1963 as a "red letter" season.

"While I, along with many other resort men, often hesitate to make rash claims and are generally given to understatement, I can say that the season now ending has been one of the best in the entire history of Waushara County."

Hope for Repeat
"People came in ever-accelerated numbers to swim, to dine and to enjoy the facilities of Silvercreek and we're only hoping that we can repeat this in the years ahead."

Tom and Leona Markey, operators of the Pine River Resort spoke for area tavernmen.

"Business was brisk to very good; fishing was generally good and we surely can't complain. We but wish that the season was longer and that this current boom will extend itself into the seasons ahead."

"We will write down 1963 as a 'vintage' year," the Markeys said. Further confirmation comes from Harmon Mumbrue and his mother, Mrs. Dora Mumbrue. They operate Mumbrue's Landing on Long Lake, in the Saxeville-Springwater town area.

"It was a very good year, in fact our very best, and we are fortunate in the type of people who make their summer homes here; our clients, if you can so designate them, are good, reliable and outstanding people."

"They had money to spend, not lavishly but freely, and seemed to thoroughly enjoy their outings on Long Lake. In fact, at least a dozen newcomers to the colony 'pitched tent' here during the summer, swelling our nose count to around 3,100 — when all the kids are here."

Neenah Company Named Agent for Florida Realtors

This is the first time Florida land and developments have been approved for sale in the state of Wisconsin. All lots are approved for FHA loans and, for the first time, long term loans are available to the elder citizen. Announcement of public Florida parties will be made later.

GOP Calls for Economy With Tax Cut Action

Jobs by stimulating our free enterprise economy through immediate enactment of individual income and corporate tax cuts to provide increased employment through incentive to capital investment for plant expansion, and action to hold federal government spending to present levels," the statement said.

In another policy statement, the Republican governors criticized the Kennedy administration for "by-passing the states and their well established agencies and programs in many fields," saying it causes unnecessary duplication of government services, inhibits the states and wastes tax revenue.

The governors named Govs. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania and John A. Love of Colorado to serve on the executive committee with Smylie.

Coordinated Effort
Their efforts will be coordinated with those of the national committee and the two Republican congressional campaign committees.

Smylie said they plan to concentrate on 10 states—which he did not name—where Democratic governors won election by less than three per cent of the total vote.

A note of optimism about GOP chances pervaded the meeting. Rockefeller called the outlook for election of a Republican president in 1964 bright.

Scranton said there has been a tremendous upsurge in Republican chances partly because of the "backlash" on civil rights, which he said harmed President Kennedy.

National Chairman William Miller admonished the governors to tell voters in their states that conservation projects which Kennedy will visit during his Western swing were initiated in former President Dwight Eisenhower's administration.

BYG. K. HODENFIELD

AP Education Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. James B. Conant, president emeritus of Harvard and an influential commentator on U.S. education, proposes in a new book that America's brightest high school graduates be given a free college education if they become teachers in the public schools.

Conant said each state should provide a program of all-expense loans for high school graduates who plan to become teachers and who are in the top 30 per cent of their graduating class.

The loans, Conant said, should be canceled after four or five years of teaching in the public schools of that state. He did not specify terms of repayment for those who went into another field or left the state.

27 Proposals
This was one of the 27 proposals on the recruitment, preparation and certification of teachers outlined by Conant in his latest book, "The Education of American Teachers" McGraw Hill, 275pp, $5.

The book follows a two-year study that took Conant and his staff to 77 campuses in 22 states. Conant also has written best-selling books on the American high school and junior high school, and was chairman of a national conference which produced a controversial booklet on the teaching of reading.

Unlike his earlier reports on education, which were directed to local school boards and parents, this one is addressed to the 1,150 colleges and universities which presently prepare teachers.

The average reader consequently may find it tough slogging through the long and detailed discussions of state requirements for teacher certification, and the never-ending war between academic professors and the professors of education.

Loud and Clear
But Conant comes through loud and clear in the concluding chapter which sums up his proposals, some of which seem certain to stir debate among those charged with training the nation's future teachers.

President has scheduled stops on his Sept. 25-29 cross-country tour have Republican governors.

He suggests, for example, that the present complex and unwieldy steps toward teacher certification should be reduced to just three requirements:

1. A baccalaureate degree from "a legitimate college or university."

2. Evidence of participation in a state-approved practice teaching program.

3. A certificate from the college or university attesting that the institution considers the recipient adequately prepared to teach in a designated field or grade level.

Teacher Education
This would permit the institutions to devise their own programs of teacher education, free from state requirements of a specified number of courses in such subjects as methods of teaching, child growth and development, history of education, etc.

Conant does not recommend that these courses be abolished, only that each institution be free to chart its own path.

Dr. Conant places heavy stress on the practice teaching program for future teachers. He proposes that only the best teachers be appointed to supervise the teacher candidate, and that clinical professors from the colleges and universities be appointed to oversee the program.

Civilians to Resume Administrative Role In South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Martial law which has prevailed in South Viet Nam for 25 days will end at noon Monday and civilian agencies will resume all administrative functions, President Ngo Dinh Diem announced Saturday.

Even while student unrest was reported expanding to the countryside, the president rescheduled for Sept. 27 a National Assembly election that had been postponed from its original date, Aug. 31.

Dropping of martial law would be one step toward a return to normalcy sought by the United States, a worried ally of Diem's administration in a war against Communist guerrillas.

The Rev. Felix McGowan, a Roman Catholic priest, said he had been suspended by his superiors. He made the announcement in Washington Friday in an address to students who were being questioned about their unauthorized visit to Cuba. He said he considered himself a friend and an ally to the group. (AP Wirephoto)

UW Enrollment at Record of 36,267

MADISON (AP) — Enrollment at the University of Wisconsin reached a record of 36,267 students Saturday at the close of the regular registration period.

The total is 3,105 more than the number of students enrolled at the close of registration last year, the university said.

L. Joseph Lins, coordinator of institutional studies at the university, said late registrations could push total enrollment at all units of the institution to 37,000.

Of the total, 23,701 students are enrolled at the Madison campus, 9,514 at the University of Wisconsin Milwaukee and 3,052 at the eight freshman-sophomore centers.

Using West India Coin for Toll Costly

BLOOMFIELD, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Highway Authority said Gerald Buehler, 26, of Maple Shade, tossed a West India coin instead of a quarter into the automatic toll collection booth on the Garden State Parkway last week.

He pleaded guilty to disorderly conduct in municipal court Friday and Magistrate James Marinello fined him $205.

USSR Imposes Blackout on News of 1963 Grain Harvest

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has imposed a virtual blackout on news of this year's grain harvest, which Western specialists predict is going to be another agricultural disappointment for the Kremlin.

The prediction was backed up Saturday by a report the Soviet Union will shell out about $500 million in scarce foreign currency for a record order of more than 200 million bushels of Canadian wheat. Informed sources in Ottawa said Canada is expected to announce the deal in a day or so.

The Soviet press has carried comparatively little news on this year's harvest in a season when "victories on the agricultural front" are normally top news of the day.

Propaganda organs have concentrated instead on wastage of bread by the Soviet people.

The chief complaint is that some Russians are fattening not only themselves but their livestock on cheap bread.

Crackdown measures — discontinuance of free bread in restaurants and cafes, limitations on per-customer purchases, and heavy punishments for peasants who feed their animals baked bread — have received wide publicity.

The Soviet Union's latest agricultural troubles began with the severe winter of 1962-63 and a delayed spring.

A summer drought, particularly damaging in the arid virgin lands territory of Kazakhstan, added to the difficulties.

'Voice' of Satellite Silent After 7 Months

WASHINGTON (AP) — After 7½ months of transmitting experimental data, the Explorer XVI satellite has ceased broadcasting from outer space.

Dr. Raymond L. Bisplinghoff, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's office of advanced research and technology, said Saturday the satellite "yielded the first statistically significant data on the penetration of meteoroids."

Farm Program May be Altered

and plans for new farm legislation will be held against a background which has been disappointing to the administration. When the latter took office, it envisioned broad programs of producer-approved government supply management controls to stabilize production, supplies and prices. But its various proposals along this line have been rejected either by Congress or by producers voting in referendum.

The result has been a shift, in the case of a few commodities, from the mandatory to voluntary control approach to obtain the desired stabilization. These programs depend heavily on government payments to get compliance.

Voluntary Mechanism
Some farm leaders believe the administration will come forward with a program recommending broader use of the voluntary mechanism. They contend that Freeman, in taking a pulse of farmer thinking, can come up with no other conclusion than that commercial farmers want a minimum of federal regulation.

This contention is based on the facts that producers, voting last year and this, soundly defeated rigid control proposals for turkeys and wheat and that many congressmen from farm states are themselves opposed to rigid controls.

The administration is faced with a necessity of revamping its agricultural thinking because of unsolved farm problems and also because next year Kennedy will seek re-election.

Who Made This Family Smile Again?

It Could Have Been the Appleton Apostolate, Lutheran Welfare or The Salvation Army

Regularly the Appleton Post-Crescent lists marriage licenses taken out in the area. Every day birth announcements are listed. On the society pages, engagements and marriages are recorded, parties are noted, anniversaries are headlined. These are the happy announcements.

Also, regularly, divorces are noted, drunken drivers — men and women — are printed on the front page and then detailed on the inside. Obituaries are a must in every daily paper. These are the sad announcements.

In between there are "family" headlines: "Jury Debating Homicide Case", "Youth Admits Forging $267 Stolen Check", "Police Hold Suspect For Morals Offenses", "Argument Nets Man $30 Fine", "Car Strikes Child on Road", "Seven Injured in Two Car Accident", "Green Boy Man Jailed on Vagrancy Count", "Time May Eliminate Migratory Problem," "Young Father Convicted of Child Beating." These are the tragedies.

Behind Headlines—A Family

Behind each and every tragic headline there is a family such as the one above. There may be a teen age son or daughter at home. There may be other members, such as in-laws, not pictured. When tragedy hits a family like this, they're in shock, and sometimes the shock lasts a long time. Our families may be the next one to make newspaper headlines. Or we may have serious problems not newsworthy enough to make the papers.

When families hit trouble, they need help, and the faster they get it, the smaller the trouble becomes. In sad times, families need objective viewpoints, professional assistance, and sometimes, cold, hard emergency cash.

Where To Go

In Appleton, through the Red Feather agencies, there is help for families with problems. Lutheran Welfare, the Appleton Apostolate and the Salvation Army caseworkers are trained to help. You can keep your problems out of the factory or the office or the store if you talk them over with a person trained in the ways of giving help to people.

Read the newspaper headlines above again, and imagine the state of shock you would be in if any headline referred to your family. Put yourself in the place of a wife whose husband is held for murder, a father whose son is picked up on a morals charge, a son whose father brawls in public, the parents of a child who is perhaps crippled or gone, a worker who is suddenly out of a job, children whose parents are in the hospital instead of at home, a sorry sick man who is picked up because he doesn't have a dollar in his pocket, a field hand far from home who finds himself in difficulties, a father who realizes he is sick enough to beat his child.

Who Made The Smile?

We who, so far have been fortunate, are the ones who put the smile back on the faces of the family in the picture. We who contributed in last year's Red Feather Campaign are the ones who did it. This family needed help. They went to a Red Feather Agency to get it. It doesn't matter which case worker from which agency is absent from the picture. Any of the three — the Appleton Apostolate, the Lutheran Welfare or the Salvation Army could have done it with our help.

This is a paid advertisement. The money for the ad was contributed by Appleton area business and industry.

Brillion Police Chief Reynolds Recalls Experiences of Career

BY JAN ALBERT

BRILLION — "I consider my eight years in Brillion a major high point of my career," says Brillion Chief of Police Delos Reynolds who retires from active duty today, thus ending a distinguished career of 40 years of police work.

Chief Reynolds marks his 65th birthday this month making retirement compulsory. During the years he has been a police officer he has had myriad duties and has experienced almost every type of action known to police work.

Reynolds began his police career at the age of 25 in Kenosha on Dec. 1, 1923, when he was appointed a patrolman. At that time, all patrolmen were given a one year probationary period during which they had their schooling. Instruction was given by a senior officer and consisted of such things as target practice, city ordinances and state laws, and physical education necessary for police work. Each week all patrolmen had to attend school on their time off. During the 22 years Chief Reynolds served on the Kenosha police force, he recalls that he had some sort of schooling every year.

No Holidays
The shift Reynolds worked as a patrolman was from 10 p.m. to 7 a.m. seven days a week. The eighth day was his day off, and then he would start another seven day stint. All legal holidays were workdays.

In Kenosha he served as a motorcycle officer, ambulance driver, desk dispatcher, plain clothesman and Red Cross first aid instructor and many other duties. For five years he was a pistol instructor for the department and its pistol team.

He was instrumental in getting rifle ranges and pistol shoots organized for the state and was a member of the state board of directors of the Policeman's Protective Association when the state-wide pistol matches were started.

He won four medals at PPA state pistol matches. His team was one of the top three in the state.

He became a charter member of the Wisconsin Police Protective Association about 1927. The first meeting of the group was in Kenosha, with a sergeant from the Kenosha force the first president.

Pistol Shoots
Chief Reynolds feels the highlights of his early career in Kenosha were his activities concerning pistol shoots and teams and his state office in the state Policeman's Protective Association. He says interpretation and application of laws are the phase of police work he loves best, and considers the combination of both the basis for good police work. Since Reynolds was a Kenosha policeman during Prohibition he had some unusual experiences.

One incident he remembers took place during a routine check of a tavernkeeper. The Kenosha force maintained a regular raid squad consisting of a sergeant and three patrolmen whose duty it was to raid bootleg establishments. The tavernkeeper being investigated had about 200 empty bottles standing in a corner, very much covered with dust and cobwebs. The squad made a routine search of the area, including that under the bar, but found nothing that looked suspicious.

A squad member was making out an OK slip for the tavernkeeper when, he, as a joke, asked for a drink. Much to his and his co-workers surprise, the tavernkeeper reached into the middle of the dusty empty bottles, pulled out one that was obviously filled, and poured four shots. The officers confiscated the four shots and the bottle, arrested the tavernkeeper, and took him to court.

Stake-Out
With Kenosha so close to Chicago, it was easy for Chicago gangsters to slip over the state line to try to find haven there. Reynolds recalled spending weeks in a parked car with a tommy gun doing surveillance work because of a bank robbery scare. This was during the reign of Baby Face Nelson in Chicago. When Reynolds retired from the Kenosha force in 1945 he resided on his 80-acre farm in Kenosha County for about a year. He and his wife then moved to Ladysmith in northern Wisconsin where he was in retirement for about five years. During this period he acted as a deputy of Rusk County.

In 1953 he came out of retirement to become marshal of the village of Bruce, while retaining his duties as county deputy. He continued his work in Bruce until he was appointed chief of police of Brillion on Feb. 15, 1955.

He also was appointed a deputy sheriff of Calumet County, and when the Civil Defense was activated a few years ago, he was appointed chief of Civil Defense of Brillion.

Mayor's View
Clarence Wolf, mayor of Brillion, who has been either a council member or mayor since Chief Reynolds came to town, said, "He has done a fine job, particularly in respect to working with the youths of the community. He has taught them respect for laws, and has made all the citizens of the community realize that what he does is for the good of Brillion."

Reynolds says his biggest single task in Brillion occurred about five years ago when St. Mary's Catholic Church had a regional meeting which brought about 10,000 people to the community. He worked out an orderly plan for the day and was assisted by state policeman and county police officers, American Legion and the Civil Defense auxiliary police which he took place during a routine check heads.

Other memorable events were the Main Street opening festivities in 1959, and the regional band festival this May which brought about 1,700 students to the community.

Reynolds plans to stay in Brillion after his retirement. He is an avid outdoorsman, loving both hunting and fishing, and he hopes to do some of both.

Aid to UW Centers Up $511,000

MADISON (AP) — Legislative appropriations for operation of the eight University of Wisconsin centers were increased by $511,000 for the 1963-64 school year, the extension division's dean said Friday.

L. H. Adolfson, said that 56 percent of the total increase will be covered by increased student fees and the remainder from state appropriations.

Beginning July 1, 1964, the centers will be given separate status with their own provost. The freshman-sophomore centers are at Green Bay, Menasha, Manitowish, Marinette, Kenosha, Racine, Sheboygan and Wausau.

A new center soon to be built at Marshfield is not included in 1963-64 appropriations, but will be included in the budget for the second year of the biennium.

A breakdown of the increase granted the centers this year shows that $33,000 will go for added staff, supplies, equipment, and books and for salary increases for the present faculty.

Winneconne Central

New School Dedication Will be Held Nov. 10

WINNECONNE—Dedication and open house for the new addition at the Winneconne Central School has been set for Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, according to Supt. Arthur H. Lehman.

The dedicatory address will be at 2 p.m. by William Kahl, first assistant superintendent of public instruction. The open house will be from 3 to 5 p.m.

Completion of the new addition at Winneconne brings all of the school district children into either the Central School at Winneconne or the school at Winchester. There now are 800 grade school children at Winneconne and about 200 at Winchester. The high school has 368 students.

Discontinue Branches
Discontinued this year are the branch schools such as Allenville, Mikesville, Butte des Morts, Pingry, Mathison and the annex which will be sold at auction on Saturday, Oct. 5.

The schedule for the auctions that day are the Mathison building and property at 9 a.m., Mikesville building and land at 10 a.m., Allenville building and property at 11 a.m., Butte des Morts building only at 1 p.m., Pingry building only at 2 p.m. and the annex building at 3 p.m.

In the case of Butte des Morts and Pingry schools, the land reverts to the original property owner and the purchaser must either move the school building from the property or acquire the land from the owner. The annex building must be moved from the property which is owned by the school district.

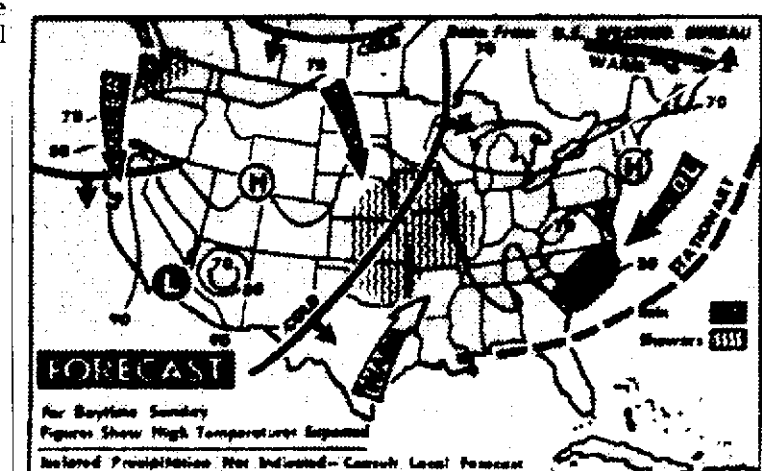

Work is now underway in fixing the new section of offices at the Central School and to the building exterior. A new entrance arrangement also is being constructed.

Spacious Cafeteria
The Central School classrooms are now being used but the building has not been officially accepted as yet, Supt. Lehman said.

One feature of the new building is the spacious cafeteria and kitchen from which 750 noon meals are served daily. This room has one section for elementary school pupils and another section for high school students. The room is used for study hall, a morning milk break for those from kindergarten through sixth grade, the noon meal and for meetings after school or in the evening. A folding door at one end which adjoins the elementary music room will make that section available for school programs.

Rural Man Gets Ticket For Imprudent Driving like looking for someone who doesn't read newspapers

Very hard to find. 99 million people in almost 9 out of every 10 homes read newspapers. It's the most sought after, often bought, eagerly consumed, intensely depended upon product in the world. The reason is obvious. We can't do without it. The need to know about the news and events that touch and shape our lives is deep, intense, unending. And the need to know is now. Today. So it's not very hard to figure out why more advertising dollars are spent in daily newspapers than in TV, magazines, radio, and outdoor combined.

Archers Take Aim On Deer Saturday

SINGLE SHOT

Someday I am going to start keeping track of how often it rains on my day off. It happened again this last week as Thursday morning brought a drenching, and I might add, cold downpour.

Perhaps it is just as well though. My original plans were to hit Lake Winnebago early in the morning and do some casting along the east shore near Lower Cliff. Just a week ago today two fellows from Milwaukee worked the east shore, picked up a limit of walleyes early in the morning and several were in the 4-pound class.

However, an evening outing Tuesday left a lot to be desired in the line of success. Four of us arrived at the lake around 4 in the afternoon, supposedly a good time of day for fishing. However, three hours of soaking minnows and night crawlers produced only two fish. One was a white bass and the other a "mooneye."

If Winnebago follows true to form, there should be some top-flight fall fishing coming up. Last year the walleyes went on a late binge and were hitting well right up until the time it was getting too cold for enjoyable fishing.

County game warden Al Vander Bloemen dropped a line the other day telling of the good fishing of late on Black Otter Lake at Hortonville. Bluegills, bass and perch have been hitting, especially in the evening hours.

The warden says fishing is best near the small island in the lake and in the end near the railroad tracks. There is a public access spot off Highway 45 just as you enter Hortonville. Vander Bloemen suggests that as much fishing pressure as possible be directed toward the lake so the fish population can be reduced. The lake is classed as a freeze-out lake for the winter.

Vander Bloemen also had another thing to point out. Last week, in one of the Sportsman's Digest columns that ran in the Post-Crescent, it gave the hint that hunting deer from a tree provides the hunter with an extra advantage.

The warden was quick to explain that such a procedure is illegal in Wisconsin. Hunting from platforms off the ground or in trees is common in southern states.

Here's a tip from the Wisconsin Hunt Association for you hunters who will be traveling to western mountain states for a big game hunt:

If your hunting area is at a higher altitude than you're used to, go a few days early and give yourself time to adjust before you start active hunting. Also, just for safety sake, have a physical exam before your trip.

Hook and line fishing for rock sturgeon in Wisconsin opened Sept. 7 and will continue through Oct. 15. The bag limit is one per season and the fish must be 40 inches long.

Special regulations apply on the Michigan boundary waters where the bag limit is two and size must be 42 inches. Minnesota boundary waters which have been open since May, close on Oct. 31, have a bag limit of one per day and 30-inch size limit.

Several questions have come up about using a pistol to finish off a bear after it has been wounded with a bow and arrow.

The warden says the answer is definitely, NO. While the regulation has been changed and now allows the possession of a firearm while hunting during the bow and arrow only season, it does not allow the using in any manner of such a firearm to shoot any deer or bear.

Learn Outdoor Lore

Young Hunter's Key Task Is to Build Knowledge of Nature

The hunter is the sum of his outdoor knowledge and how he applies it. His sport is fullest when he owns a large personal fund of outdoor lore—an intimate knowledge of plants, animals, weather, soil and the effects of each upon the others.

The young hunter's most important task is to increase his first-hand knowledge of nature through careful study and personal observation. Every race of hunters has known this and has broadened their knowledge by passing it on to their youngsters to obtain. But even in the suburbs, serve, learn, think and apply there are insects, birds, trees and knowledge as they acquired it, in weather to study. Keen observation to cement that knowledge of the available outdoors.

The American Indians trained their hunters from boyhood and although an Indian hunter's great skill was bound out with magic and mysticism, it was solidly based on his own immense fund of practical outdoor lore.

The best of such knowledge is the hunter's own, earned by him self. Some may be gained by formal education, but the printed page of a book is no substitute for personal field experience and keen observation of the printed page of nature.

Fine woodsmen and hunters have three things in common: alert minds, sharp powers of observation, and years of outdoor experience.

We once heard a veteran Pennsylvania hunter and woodsman flatly declare, "Well, I'm gonna kill a wild turkey tomorrow afternoon."

It takes a lot of gall to make an announcement like that. Some men try all their lives to shoot a wild gobbler and never come any closer. But this woodsman knew the difference in the immediate environment, and the young hunter what he was talking about, and he quickly gains a vast new respect for the ability of a hunter.

He had located a turkey flock, but hadn't with its enemies and use its own hit the panic button or done anything foolish. He wasn't prepared, nor in the proper position, to not only in the success of the day, but to your comfort and health. Such abilities as sensing weather changes, choosing a proper campsite, using the right wood for a cookfire—all can spell the difference between fun and misery.

Treasure every scrap of your outdoor lore. Somewhere, sometime, it will be invaluable.

Big Turnout Is Expected At Necedah

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

With silent footsteps, someone will enter the woods about a half-hour before sunrise Saturday morning and a short time later the first prized white-tail deer of the season will be in the game "bag."

There will be no loud, booming explosion to mark the opening of the season. For the most part, the woods will remain as silent throughout the day as they are for those first hours in the morning.

The occasion will be the opening of the bow and arrow season on deer at one-half hour before sunrise Saturday morning. The bow season precedes the regular gun season which will open state-wide for nine days on Nov. 23.

Heavy Concentration

As usual, the heaviest concentration of archers will be in the area of the Necedah Wildlife Refuge. Here, archers equipped with camping gear will start gathering on Friday, camp overnight and take out to the woods in the early hours Saturday morning.

However, while archers are concentrated in the Necedah area, thousands of other men and women armed with bows varying from a 35-pound pull to as high as 60 to 70, will be out in various spots.

In most cases the archer has been out on several occasions prior to opening day. He will have scouted over areas frequented by deer so he can pick out a good spot to take up a stand. His meanderings in the woods will have led him to a couple of well-worn runways where there are numerous indications that deer have been frequenting the area.

Getting out before opening day also assures the archer that he will know exactly where to go in the shortest amount of time and in the most silent manner.

For you neophytes who will be taking out with the bow for the first time, here is a little advice:

Get in as much practice as you can this week yet before opening day.

Good Deer Sign

Get out in the woods and find an area with good deer sign and acquaint yourself with the surroundings.

Pick out a stand where you can conceal yourself for a couple of hours in the morning, but remember you must allow for enough arm-room so you can look around and also have room to draw your bow. Arrows have a way of getting tangled in the smallest branches, so keep this in mind.

Conservation Council Will Meet at Gillett

The Northeastern Conservation Council, consisting of delegates from sportsmen's clubs in Brown, Florence, Forest, Langlade, Marinette, Oconto, Outagamie and Shawano counties will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Legion Hall in Gillett.

The meeting is open to the public, according to Maurice E. Kroil, president.

Proposed New Kettle Moraine Boundaries to Get Hearing

MADISON — Proposed new boundaries for the Kettle Moraine State Forest will be up for public hearing Wednesday at 7:30 p.m., the Conservation Department announced today.

The hearing will be held in the courthouse annex in Waukesha. The proposed boundary revisions make these changes:

1. Widen the whole Kettle Moraine complex, adding enough land to create practical-sized recreation units.

2. Formally establish the Pike lake unit in Washington county near Hartford, a recreation area comprising about 1,400 acres.

3. Reduce the length of the southern unit, eliminating high-priced lands located near towns, especially in the vicinity of Chequamegon, Hartland and Wales.

Although shortened in length,

All of the Catfish Fishing isn't done on rivers. Raymond (Pete) Mortimer, Chilton, is shown with a day's catch taken from Lake Winnebago. The catch totaled 40 pounds. The heaviest fish was 18 pounds and the lightest just under nine pounds. And how heavy is an 18 pound cat? Just check the expression on Steve Kampfer, right. That's heavy, man! (Post-Crescent Photos)

Time for Hunters to Get Out And Exercise Sporting Dogs

Good Performance Cannot be Expected With Some Practice

BY BUD LARIMER

It will soon be time for you nimrods of the swamps and fields to begin hardening up those sporting dog companions of yours.

You cannot expect such a dog, who has been kept more or less closely confined and under-exercised for months, to prance out and render a polished performance on the first day of the season.

Muscles must be toned up, wind increased and pads hardened up. Take down any overweight before fall and freshen him up on voice and whistle signals. Run him enough to work off that first wild spirit of relief and help him to become bird-wise and get down to productive quartering and field range.

Pointing Breed

If he is one of the pointing breed, get out your check cord and training collar and work him as many times as is needed for absolute steadiness to wing and shot. When running him free, zig-zag your field to encourage quartering. Always urge the dog to range out and never let him putter along, ground scenting. Try to run him into the wind, pointing breeds should work always with a high head. Encourage him to work fence rows, ditches, and likely looking brush clumps. As you walk, speak or whistle as you turn different directions, also use a hand signal and you should soon be able to turn him this way and that by the whistle alone.

When the dog is locked up on point, approach him briskly but calmly. No screaming and braying, should be able to trust him to be steady if you have done your training job well.

The English Pointer and some setters may need to have their tails taped. They work with such merry tails and the heavy brush of this territory is pretty tough on them. Bandage and tape early, before the tail becomes bloody. Be sure to check eyes each night for seeds and dust — best to wash

Fishery Men Watching for Pink Salmon

Expect Greater Numbers to be Caught This Fall

MADISON — Fishery men are watching Wisconsin's special fall trout season in Lake Superior and north-flowing streams for the appearance of pink or humpback salmon this year. About a dozen specimens are known to have been caught since 1959 and greater numbers should be found this fall.

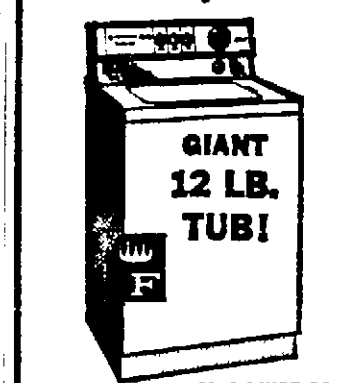

The special late trout season in northern Wisconsin started last Sunday and continues through Nov. 15. About a dozen streams listed in the regulations are open. The bag limit is five and the size limit is 13 inches.

Pink or humpbacked salmon were accidentally introduced into Lake Superior when they escaped from a Canadian hatchery. They are native to the Pacific ocean. Males are distinguished from other members of the trout and salmon family by the distinct "hump" just forward of the top or dorsal fin. The hump is less obvious in females, but the tail on both sexes is marked with large rectangular black spots up to one-half inch long.

Since pink salmon typically spawn in river estuaries, they are most likely to be found near mouths of streams in Lake Superior. Those caught in previous years were all taken on hooks baited with night crawlers by anglers fishing for lake-run rainbows. They measured about 18 inches in length and weighed about two pounds.

Persons who suspect they have caught one are asked to contact the local conservation warden or fish manager for positive identification.

New London Man Enters First Big Brook Trout

Only two new entries were recorded in the Post-Crescent's Master Angler contest in the last week, but both were new leaders in their division.

2 Men Cited For Work in Conservation

Awards of Merit For John Baker, M. N. 'Mully' Taylor

MADISON — Two well-known Wisconsin men have received national recognition for outstanding work in promoting good conservation.

They are John Baker, long time author of "On Wisconsin," the front page editorial column in the Milwaukee Journal, and M. N. "Mully" Taylor, Merrill, director of the Trees for Tomorrow camp at Eagle River.

Both were voted Awards of Merit by the American Assn. for Conservation Information (AACI), an organization made up of top resource promotional people from governmental agencies throughout the U. S. and Canada.

Baker, who retired last year, was cited for "his many years of vigorous editorial support of the use of scientific management principles in the field of natural resources."

Taylor was cited for "directing the activities of Trees for Tomorrow into a strong conservation education program which has made an outstanding contribution toward wise resource management in Wisconsin."

The awards were presented recently by Arthur W. Jorgensen, superintendent of Information and Education for the Wisconsin Conservation Department, in ceremonies at a Science Teachers' Workshop at the Trees for Tomorrow camp in Eagle River.

In making the presentation, Jorgensen, a former AACI president, praised Baker and Taylor for "the impact they have made in educating and informing the people of our state in regard to good, wise resource management."

several times this summer but never managed to hold it. Finally, on the last day of the season, the brookie hit again and this time Cupp was successful.

The other entry was a small-mouth bass weighing 4 pounds 14 ounces. Lee Dammerich, 1417 W. Wisconsin Ave., Appleton, landed the fish in the Menomonee River on a night crawler.

The bass was 8 ounces heavier than the previous leader entered by Albert Gradl of Appleton.

Spare Time Business

Brillion Couple Completes 30 Years Serving Popcorn to Area Picnickers

BY JAN ALBERT

BRILLION — A trim, white popcorn stand has become a pet project and an enjoyable and profitable hobby for a Brillion man and his wife. Elmer and Hildegard Schmelter started their venture 30 years ago and are as enthusiastic about it today as they were when they began.

In 1933, the Schmelters began their spare time business with a hamburger shack on the corner adjacent to the Brillion Public School. There they sold moon lunches. Soon they bought a window popper to sell popcorn during the city band concerts which took place at the high school.

The Schmelters decided it might be fun and profitable to start taking their popper to picnics, dances, etc., in the area, and they found themselves attending firemen's picnics, Lions picnics, and other public functions. A wooden milk bottle throw concession became a permanent fixture in their travels with their popper.

As they traveled to more and more places, the Schmelters felt the need for bigger and better popcorn popper, and they purchased an electric table model popper. It was about this time that they started making annual trips to the Calumet County Fair to sell their wares.

Their Own Trailer
In 1946, Mr. and Mrs. Schmelter decided they would like a stand in which to sell their popcorn; so Schmelter set about to build one that could be pulled behind his car as a trailer. The trailer he built was one of his own design, and he stated that he had never seen any home-made ones before his own.

He said that it is possible to buy elaborate $7,000 to $8,000 trailers equipped with their own power plant. The Schmelter stand, which is trim and neat and 6 by 8 feet in size, can accommodate two to three people for working, and is easily pulled by the family car.

The Schmelters are still using the large gas popper they purchased as soon as the trailer was ready for use. It pops two pounds of raw popcorn at one time. In 1960, they added a cotton candy machine to their operation.

Family Affair

The Schmelter's stand and concession business always has been a weekend project, and many times Mrs. Schmelter works in the popcorn stand alone, especially when Schmelter is busy with the milk bottle concession. Sometimes their daughter, Sally, helps in the stand during a busy time.

When the first of June comes the Schmelters usually set out with their stand for the band concerts at Hillbert and Chilton. In addition, they usually take their stand and concession to firemen's picnics at Reedsville, Hillbert and Morrison and to the Brillion Conservation Club annual picnic. This year they began their season early with an area high school band festival in Brillion in May.

Less Travel

The Schmelters largely confine their venture to the Brillion area now, but there was a time when they did a lot of traveling. About 1948 Schmelter recalls that they attended a picnic at Marion, which along with Algoma and Appleton, is the farthest they ever traveled with their stand. They travel less now because there are fewer picnics and much greater competition from other popcorn stands.

The busiest day the Schmelters recall was a Jaycee Fourth of July celebration in Appleton in the late 1940s. They were so busy that day that relatives who happened to come to the celebration pitched in and helped.

The Schmelters have been in the popcorn and concession business long enough to see children who used to patronize their stands grow up and bring their own children.

Schmelter observed that his primary customers for the milk bottle concession are teen-agers, and that some of them are really good with a ball. The couple observed that both grownups and children love their popcorn, but the children far outnumber the adults in the purchase of cotton candy.

Tigerton Native Named to Head Machinery Unit

In his new position, Gates will coordinate all construction equipment manufacturing at the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Springfield and Deerfield, Ill., plants. His duties include inventory control, coordination of product engineering and development of improved operating methods. He will be assigned to the firm's West Allis office.

Gates was employed by the La Plant Chote Manufacturing Co., Cedar Rapids, in 1941 and works manager when Allis-Chalmers acquired the firm in 1952.

Pastor Assumes Church Duties At Clintonville

Takes Place of Rev. John Murphy At St. Rose Parish

CLINTONVILLE — The Rev. Thaddeus Koszarek, former spiritual director of Sacred Heart Seminary, Oneida, assumed his pastoral duties at St. Rose Catholic Church Thursday.

He replaces the Rev. John J. Murphy, who was named pastor of St. Patrick's Church, Green Bay.

Father Koszarek, the first of 17 children was born in 1912, at Antigo. Two of his brothers also are priests and six of his sisters are dedicated to the religious life as Sisters of St. Joseph and the Third Order of St. Francis.

Army Service
Father Koszarek studied for the priesthood at St. Bonaventure's, Sturtevant, St. Mary's College, Orchard Lake, Mich., and St. Paul Seminary, St. Paul, Minn.

After his ordination in Green Bay May 31, 1939, he served as an assistant in the diocesan chancery office. In September, 1939, he was named as assistant at St. Stanislaus Church, Stevens Point.

A U. S. Army chaplain from 1943 to 1946, Father Koszarek was awarded the Silver and Bronze Stars, Croix de Guerre and Gold Cross of Merit from the Polish government in exile in London.

Upon his return to civilian life

Helpful Handiwork Clintonville Man Makes His Garden Tractor, Accessories

CLINTONVILLE — Clifford Schlender, route 1, is proud of the riding garden tractor he built. Several attachments, including a plow, cultivator and drag are also products of his handiwork.

Among the parts used in building the tractor were a rear end from a Willys car, one transmission from a 1923 Chevrolet, and a steering sector from an old Moon car. The engine is a seven-horsepower Briggs and Stratton. He purchased the wheels and tires, with the rear one having been ordered special from the Goodyear Co.

The weight of the tractor is 820 pounds. The tractor is 71 inches long and 47 inches wide. There are individual wheel brakes.

Actual Cost
Schlender said the actual cost of materials used amounted to $250.15. He estimated 200 hours of labor went into the construction of the tractor.

The tractor is used extensively around the farm. Schlender said, as well as being used to plow quite a few gardens for other people.

Schlender attended night school courses in welding at the Clintonville High School with E. A. Hutchinson as the instructor. Later, he assisted Hutchinson in some of the welding classes. Schlender is employed at the Marion Body Works, Marion, and also works on the farm.

Some of the other articles he has built are a post hole digger, manure loader, grader blade, trailers, power hack saw and air compressors.

Mayor Helps Pick Beauty Queen

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — A committee headed by the mayor of Blackpool decided Friday that Diane Westbury won the title Miss United Kingdom of 1963. But it recommended that the judges adopt new rules to avoid a repetition of this year's row.

Right after organizer Eric Morley proclaimed the 19-year-old fashion model the winner on Sept. 5, three of the four judges said they didn't vote for her. The committee found she got one first place, two seconds and a fourth. Thus, it was ruled that she outpointed the other contestants; although one had received two firsts.

Speech Teacher Addresses Club

SHERWOOD — Kenneth Smith, speech correctionist in the Kaukauna school system, was speaker at a meeting of the Harrison School Community Club. Speech therapy is being offered for the first time in the system this year.

Smith defined defective speech, delayed speech and stuttering and explained how it can be corrected. He works with pupils at Harrison twice a week.

Future programs for the club include, October, conservation; November, slides on a world tour, and December, a talk by a foreign exchange student.

Man Fined $50 On Traffic Count

Taken into custody by Fond du Lac police Thursday evening was David A. Lambert, 28. They turned him over to Calumet County authorities.

Lucey 'Retirement' Expected to End

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The political "retirement" of Patrick J. Lucey of Madison, who quit the Democratic state party chairmanship in June, probably will be short-lived.

Lucey is universally expected to be chosen as the new Democratic national committeeman for Wisconsin as soon as David Rabinovitz of Sheboygan, the present Wisconsin member of the ruling national party group, is confirmed for the Wisconsin U.S. district judgeship to which he was nominated by President Kennedy recently. Wisconsin Democrats have been informed that the U.S. senate will confirm Rabinovitz without delay or other difficulty.

The succession will be determined by the state Democratic committee, but Rabinovitz has indicated to the committee that he won't resign until he is confirmed in the judicial appointment.

There is some opposition to Lucey within the Democratic party organization, but it is not likely to be effective in this instance, according to the best informed leaders of the party.

Louis Hanson, the new chairman of the state committee, holds that job in part because he won the backing of Lucey for that succession.

The committeeman's job is more important at a time when the party involved is in control of the national administration. Lucey is also a trusted friend of the Kennedy administration, so that in the new party assignment he would have a powerful hand in the dispensation of patronage. His election would also certify his informal rank as the most powerful of the state today.

Marines End Gunnery Training

OSHKOSH — Three members of the 95th Rifle Co. of the Marine Corps reserve unit here recently completed their marksmanship training at Paris Island, S. C., while attending six months active duty. Capt. G. P. Miley, commanding officer, has announced.

Pvt. M. L. Mutz Jr., 231 W. Irving Ave., fired a score of 237 out of a possible 250 points, which is currently the record high for the Third Recruit Training Battalion where Mutz presently is assigned.

Pvt. Richard Spanbauer Jr., 726 W. Sixth Ave., also qualified as an expert rifleman and Pvt. D. R. Patrie, 1015 Frederick St., qualified as a sharpshooter. A score of 220 and 210 is required for expert and sharpshooter respectively.

The three are assigned to the same platoon in the third battalion.

Little Known of Gronouski Prior To WW II Era

Records Say He Was Debater at OSC Before 1941

OSHKOSH — "He has a good war record and he is a good administrator," President Kennedy said of his nominee for Postmaster General, Oshkosh's John A. Gronouski.

Prior to that war record, not much is known of the controversial man who was moved up from being Wisconsin's Tax Commissioner to the nation's postmaster general.

The controversial part results from Gronouski being an active Democratic speaker while in supposedly a non-partisan type post. A check of his school records at St. Peter High School and Oshkosh State College here reveals basically two things — he was a good debater and he had good marks.

Gronouski graduated from St. Peter High School in 1937 and went from there to Oshkosh State College for three years. While at the college he was on the debate team for each of his three years. He was on the negative team each of those times and built up a good record.

Worked Part-Time

While attending college he worked part-time, according to the records which show he could not take some courses because of his working at the times those courses were offered. The records do not indicate where he worked.

The records also show Gronouski to have had a B average while at Oshkosh State.

He was vice president in his junior year of Pi Kappa Delta, honorary college forensic fraternity, the only organization to which he is listed as belonging. He also is listed as winning first place in an extemporaneous speaking contest at the college in 1939. He was a district champion in oratory as a high school senior.

Gronouski studied mostly political science and economics while at Oshkosh State College and then went on to the University of Wisconsin where he received his bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees.

His father was an industrial arts teacher who came out of retirement several years ago to teach machine shop at Menasha High School, retiring a second time in 1959.

13,087 Enrolled in Schools at Oshkosh

Public System Has 9,686 Students; Increase of 271 Over 1962 Total

OSHKOSH — Enrollment in Oshkosh area elementary and secondary schools reached 13,087 as students returned to classes for the 1963-64 term. The total number includes the public and parochial schools.

Supt. of Schools Perry A. Tippler announced that 9,686 students were enrolled in the public schools, an increase of 271 over last year's total of 9,415. The major increase was at Oshkosh High School where 2,141 students enrolled as compared to 1,925 for the 1962-63 session.

Four public schools have been closed, and students have been transferred to newer schools. Schools closed were Black Oak, Brick, Red, and Jackson, all one-room schools, and Howlett, a two-room school. Students from Howlett have entered Lakeside School while the others have enrolled at Green Meadow School.

Enrollments Told

Broken down into individual figures, enrollments are: Boyd 136; Dale, 325; Emmeline Cook, 375; Franklin, 340; Grange, 92; Green Meadow, 202; Jefferson, 301; Lakeside, 270; Lincoln, 200; Longfellow, 275; Merrill Elementary Division, 532; Merrill Junior High Division, 517; Oaklawn, 231; Oakwood, 160; Read, 567; Roosevelt Elementary Division, 323; Roosevelt Junior High Division, 200; Smith, 274; South Park Elementary Division, 333; South Park Junior High Division, 457; Sunset, 205; Utica Center, 74; Washington, 12th, 555. Parochial schools have absorbed 3,401 of the 13,087. Lourdes High School has 758 students enrolled, 390 in the girls' department and 378 in the boys' department.

List Increases

All but two of the parochial elementary schools reported slight decreases in enrollment. Sacred Heart School has 671 students registered, 20 more than in 1962. St. John School, with an enrollment of 138, also reported some increase.

Six fewer students, 234, are attending St. Joseph School than last year while St. Vincent School has seven less than in 1962, with 428 enrolled. St. Mary School has 467 registered, a drop over last year's total because the first grade there was discontinued this year. St. Peter School reported 410 students enrolled, seven less than in 1962.

Grace Lutheran School reported 174 students registered, seven less than last year. A slight drop in enrollment was reported by Trinity Lutheran School, where 101 students are attending classes.

Marine Reserve In Oshkosh to Mark Birthday

95th Rifle Company Was Activated Here On Sept. 23, 1953

OSHKOSH — Tenth anniversary of the 95th Rifle Co. of the Marine Corps Reserve will be observed during its next drill on Saturday and Sunday.

Activated in Oshkosh on Sept. 23, 1953, the unit's first commanding officer was Capt. R. A. Bergeson, USMCR. Since activation, the unit has grown from 16 members to the present strength of 94. One of the original members of the unit, N. R. Durkee, 1267 Elmwood Ave., Oshkosh, presently is serving as a platoon sergeant in the unit.

This fall also will mark the unit's 10th consecutive year of active participation in the USMCR's country-wide "Toys for Tots" program.

Over the last decade, the unit has undergone two weeks annual field training "summer camp" at such diverse locations as Camp Joseph H. Pendleton, Oceanide, Calif.; Marine Corps Cold Weather Training Center, Bridgeport, Calif.; in the high Sierra Mountains; Camp Lejeune, N. C., the largest amphibious training base in the world and the base from which Marines "moved out" to Lebanon during that crisis; Landing Force Training Unit, Pacific, Coronado, Calif.; and Marine Corps Base, Twenty-Nine Palms, Calif., the largest Marine base in the world, located in the high desert country of Southern California.

California Trip

This unit is tentatively slated for a repeat performance at Coronado, Calif., during the summer of 1964, with a chance of assignment to Vieques Isle, Puerto Rico, for summer training.

During the last decade approximately $240,000 in payroll alone has been disbursed to unit members for performance of training duties and in excess of $30,000 has been spent locally for procurement of funds, transportation, food and sundry housekeeping supplies.

Currently commanding the 95th Rifle Co. is Capt. G. P. Miley, USMCR, a 1956 graduate of Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh. Capt. Miley joined the unit initially as a private, advanced to the rank of sergeant within the unit, attended the Marine Corps platoon leader's class for six weeks in the summers of 1953 and 1954 and was commissioned a second lieutenant upon graduation from OSC.

Immediately after receipt of his commission, he was ordered for active duty for two years during which he served as a platoon leader, executive officer and commanding officer of a rifle company in the Fifth Marine Regiment of the First Marine Division.

Gen. R. R. Van Stockum, USMC, the director of reserve, recently stated that in the event of hostilities, units such as the 95th would reinforce the existing three regular Marine divisions. In the director's words, "they are first stringers—and may actually be the first to fight in the event of mobilization."

Merchants In Oshkosh Ask Solution

BY ALLAN EKVALL

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Downtown businessmen have advised city planners they are strongly opposed to any idea of making Main Street in the business district a one-way street south.

And while they are on that subject, they have several other "gripes" they would like aired.

One is that the Friday night "no turn" rule in the business district in their opinion is "stupid."

This has caused confusion and resentment among their customers, they stated.

A second is that they would like police protection put back on Main Street. "Where do we go if we are held up?" one merchant asked.

Pedestrian Control

Another merchant proposed that pedestrians be allowed to walk in any direction, including kitty-cornered across the street, on a change of the traffic light sequence.

This merchant said pedestrian congestion on Friday nights was just as bad as traffic congestion. He suggested there be a time for pedestrians to cross the street rather than walk with the light and wait at the opposite corner for the light to change again if he wants to end up kitty-cornered from where he began.

Several merchants suggested the flow of traffic on Algoma Boulevard and High Avenue be reversed so that Algoma Boulevard would bring traffic downtown rather than take it away from the business district.

Some inquired if High Street could be made a two-way street between Main Street and Jackson Street.

Ramp Location

They said it is hard for customers to reach the municipal parking ramp under the present street traffic flow "and harder to even direct them to the parking ramp." The parking ramp is located on High Avenue.

One merchant wondered if a sign could be placed on top of the parking ramp which would make it more noticeable from a distance.

Quite a few voiced their opposition to parking meters, stating their customers wanted to know why they had to pay to shop downtown and not have to pay to shop at a shopping center.

One merchant suggested the city write to the Corps of Engineers and ask that boats be allowed to pass through the Main Street bridge only at specified times each hour. When a boat goes through, traffic is backed up on Main Street for several blocks, the merchant said.

Bottle-necks Noted

As to the one-way street idea for Main Street, wherein Main Street would handle southbound traffic only and State Street and Jefferson Street would be one-way for northbound traffic, several businessmen called attention to bottle-necks at the Ceape and Main Street intersection and where State, Washington Avenue and Jefferson Street intersect near the Oshkosh Public Library.

One businessman proposed the city purchase the houses on Division Street between Church Avenue and W. Irving Avenue and convert that area into an off-street parking area. The Soo Line now runs down Division Street in that area. If the railroad should ever be relocated, that property then will become quite expensive, this businessman thought.

The presence of the Soo Line railroad tracks so close to the downtown business district is one of the problems facing the orderly business growth of the downtown area, it was mentioned. This has kept business from moving westward and has led to the business section being narrow and long rather than compact.

Relocation of the railroad has been one of the long-range planning suggestions by city planners.

Opinions Sought

M. Edward Kelly, executive secretary of the Oshkosh Chamber of Commerce, who outlined the one-way Main Street suggestion to the Downtown Association, proposed immediate contact with the Soo Line to learn the problems involved and the costs of relocating its tracks. He indicated this is something that takes considerable time.

The City Planning Commission has sought opinions of city residents and businessmen about the one-way idea and has not received any comments. This is why the subject was made part of the agenda for the monthly meeting of the Downtown Association, a group of merchants and businessmen of the Downtown area.

Kelly cited the need for a comprehensive study of alternatives to a one-way street program and help both the public and those having businesses in the downtown area, plus those business-

Long a Feature of the Oshkosh Downtown area has been the Civil War monument which dominates the monument square. Council members have thought of moving it to the Algoma Boulevard side of the new city hall but are not so sure now, having learned it will cost about $2,875 to move the statue and put a new base under it. Some wondered if there was any money left in the fund set up by Col. John Hicks, donor of the statue to take care of the moving cost. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Fond du Lac's Police Chief to Retire After 33 Years as Enforcement Officer

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

FOND DU LAC — Police Chief James D. (Jim) Cahill has been a pistol-packing policeman for 33 years now.

The other day he took note that his tenure as a law enforcement officer adds up to half his lifetime.

"I've been thinking about it for quite sometime," Cahill said as he took a big puff on a favorite cigar, "and I think the time has come to retire."

Hang Up His Gun

It was the likeable Cahill's way of announcing without fanfare that this fall he will be hanging up his gun and stepping down as head of Fond du Lac's highly-rated police department.

Cahill, who started as a rookie and worked his way up through the ranks, has been chief for the past 17 years. During that time the department underwent a complete reorganization and today is comprised of 45 officers and six civilian employees.

"I'm going to take a few weeks vacation and then I will be leaving for good," Cahill said, referring to his office in the Safety building.

Cahill, a witty Irishman who was born and raised on a Fond du Lac County farm, said he would like to bow out quietly. "I'd just as soon not have any fuss about my retirement," was the way he put it.

While Cahill has never been a publicity-seeker, he always has been most cooperative with news. He is well respected in the community. Cahill has long had a munity and law enforcement reputation of being firm but fair. cles throughout the state.

Chief James D. Cahill

"A policeman always should use common sense and good judgment because he is constantly dealing with the public," is Cahill's basic philosophy.

Although Fond du Lac County has popped into the public eye periodically because some undesirable characters are known to frequent the area, the Fond du Lac Police Department under Cahill has had an outstanding performance record. The city's crime record is one of the lowest in the state.

During Cahill's tenure as chief, there were 10 murders with every one solved. Years ago it wasn't always that way, and there are many other departments that envy such a performance record.

Joined During Depression

Cahill joined the force during the depression—Jan. 18, 1930 to be exact—and in one year received two promotions. He was appointed detective on May 1, 1936, and served in that capacity until April 1, 1945, when he was promoted to lieutenant of detectives.

On April 11, 1946, Cahill was appointed acting chief. A month later he took over as head of the department. During the 17 years that followed there were many changes in the PD operation—all for the good.

Getting Cahill to talk about himself and his long career would be like getting President Kennedy to invite Sen. Goldwater to tea. One thing is certain, however,

Elks Asked to Give More to Youth Fund

Delegates to State Conclave in Menasha Hear Past Grand Ruler

MENASHA — Wisconsin Elks were complimented Saturday on their work in past fund raising for the National Elks Foundation but also were urged to increase their contributions to the organization.

The plea came from Fred L. Bohn, Zanesville, Ohio, a past grand exalted ruler. He was the featured speaker Saturday at the annual fall conference of the Wisconsin Elks Association conference-workshop at the Neenah-Menasha Elks Lodge.

The convention of 500 Elks and their wives is to end at noon today.

and that is that Cahill holds some sort of a record for cigars smoked during a lifetime. While holding a conversation, he has also mastered the art of moving a cigar from one side of his mouth to the other with comparative ease without slurring a word.

Over the years, Cahill has been able to do the job while still maintaining a sense of humor in spite of pressures.

"I think the world would have been a lot better off without newspaper reporters," is one of Cahill's favorite expressions when he gets into a "ribbing" session with newsmen. The latter have on occasion jokingly accused him of clouding the discussion with cigar smoke.

Crack Shot

The 66-year old Cahill is a crack shot with a pistol and doesn't do bad either with a rifle during the pheasant and deer hunting seasons. He also claims to be a fisherman of some renown but when the chief gets together with some of the old-timers in the area they kid him that his talent is debatable.

Although an excellent shot, Cahill says there was never an occasion when he had to shoot it out with a criminal, and he managed to cope with quite a few. Over the years Fond du Lac police have dealt with a variety of tough customers and Cahill recalls that his two fists were put to protective use on several occasions.

Jim Cahill long ago gained respect for being able to handle himself in any given situation.

In the old days it was no party raiding the moonshine stills, breaking up gambling dens and hauling away slot machines. These "rituals" were par for the course throughout the state then.

"It was heavy work hauling those big slot machines out of second story buildings," Cahill recalled with a grin.

On the serious side, Cahill said he feels the Thomson Anti-Gambling Law is the best piece of legislation ever passed in Wisconsin. Without the law and its enforcement, Cahill says, it would be impossible to keep big syndicate gamblers out of the Fox Valley and other parts of the state.

"They should keep the law the way it is," Cahill added. "We don't need legalized bingo, either."

Local Yokels

Cahill said every community is bound to have a few of its own "local yokels" but they can be kept under control.

"Fond du Lac is a good, clean city and the residents of the community have always been most cooperative," Cahill commented. "The cooperation of the people

State Balance

Bohn reminded the Wisconsin Elks that last year their 38 lodges contributed $12,832 to the National Foundation and received $7,499 in youth scholarships and stipends.

The national foundation was founded in 1928 to provide scholarships and financial assistance to youths. It is run in conjunction with the National Elks Youth Programs.

Each donates annually to the fund and receives awards — financial and scholarships — for its youth. The fund has reached a market value of $14 million of which $1.5 million has been received in the last two years. Bohn said, indicating the recent growth in contributions to the fund.

Only the interest accrued from this fund is used for the youth scholarship and financial assistance programs.

Second Place

Bohn said the Wisconsin Association ranks second in the Grand Lodge (the nation) in youth activities, headed by Ohio.

"The more you are willing to contribute to the fund the more you will receive back," he said to the delegates.

Bohn is the representative of the Grand Lodge Advisory Board for the Michigan Ohio-Indiana Wisconsin district. The board is composed of past grand exalted rulers — the highest ranking position in the Elks — who advise and counsel the present national ruler.

Year's Plans

The various state committees of the Wisconsin Association met here Saturday to plan their programs for the Elks' year which started with the national convention in July.

The conference - workshop is scheduled to end after a general session at 9 a. m. today.

Saturday morning, the president's advisory committee met in the lodge to discuss the state plans for the coming year.

Local past presidents attending the meeting were Judge A. W. Parnell, Appleton; Ray J. Pink, Menasha; and J. Martin Van Rooy, Appleton.

means an awful lot in police work."

Two years ago Cahill lost one of his men—Officer Nick Klasko—shot down by out-of-state safe crackers. No one mourned the loss of the young officer more than Cahill.

To best describe Cahill's philosophy one would say he combines "the old school" with enough of the new to make for a happy medium.

Cahill intends to make good use of his retirement time and it is likely he will be cast in the role of a babysitter for his grandchildren now more than ever before.

"And, you can bet your last cigar he'll get caught up on his hunting and fishing, too."

Between 250 and 300 Cars will be accommodated in the new parking lot along High Avenue for Wisconsin State College-Oshkosh students, faculty members and visitors. The site is where the former Oshkosh Luggage Co. plant once stood. It is expected to be completed during the coming week. Parking has been a serious problem in the college area as the result of its large enrollment increase and the construction projects underway at the college. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Lutheran Feels His Church Nearing Spirit of 'Oneness'

Appleton Delegate to Helsinki Convention Gives Some Opinions

An Appleton man who was one of about 45 U.S. delegates to the Lutheran World Federation meeting in Helsinki, Finland, said the most significant thing he observed there was "a feeling that a oneness is something which is coming to the Lutheran Church and it is just a matter of time."

Earl Arnold, 901 E. Marquette St., was one of five laymen appointed as official delegates from the American Lutheran Church to the world meeting.

Plans Laymen's Work

Arnold is a member of the board of the Brotherhood of the American Lutheran Church, which plans the laymen's work; president of the ALC Brotherhood of the Northern Wisconsin District, and a member and former president of the First English Lutheran Church, Appleton.

Before attending the Helsinki meeting, he was a delegate of the American Lutheran Church to the German Kirchentag, a biannual meeting which he called "the high point of the German church life," in Dortmund, Germany.

9-Day Meeting

About 45 delegates from the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church in America attended the nine-day meeting in Helsinki. About 1,000 official delegates, visitors and observers there represented some 53 million Lutherans in 38 countries.

Arnold said about 2,000 Americans attended the meetings for one or two days each. These included Dr. and Mrs. Theodore Ohlrogge, 333 River Drive. Dr. Ohlrogge is president of the Northern Wisconsin District of the American Lutheran Church. The Rev. E. B. Steem of Trinity Lutheran Church, Madison, was the only other Wisconsin delegate from the A.L.C.

Plan Action

The purposes of the World Federation meeting, Arnold said, were to plan Lutheran action throughout the world and to consider "what is our responsibility to Lutherans in other parts of the world and what is our responsibility to other Christian churches in the world."

The assembly decided to establish an interconfessional body to carry on a dialogue with other Christians, he said. "All agreed there is a real need in the world for Christians to present a united front and to see what the real ling been there. It was a good discussion."

The Federation is a free association of churches and not a "super-church," that can establish a policy and dictate it to other churches, he pointed out. Its constitution includes subscription to the Augsburg Confession and the three creeds (Apostles, Athanasian and Nicene), he said.

Language Barrier

Most Americans faced a language barrier in Finland, Arnold said, but the Finnish people were "very kind and considerate." As soon as they realized how much English was being spoken, they placed school children, who are required to study English, in the stores and restaurants to help the visitors.

Dr. Frederick Schlotz of Minneapolis, Minn., president of the American Lutheran Church, was elected president of the Federation, succeeding Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the Lutheran Church in America.

Motivating Forces

The younger churches from the foreign mission fields were the motivating force in Dr. Schlotz's election, Arnold said. He has worked in the mission fields and they have a "tremendous regard for his ability to know their problems and understand them," he said.

At the German Kirchentag Arnold observed the effects of having state churches. "Here was where I had my first real appreciation of why our forefathers came here for religious freedom, and I gained a new appreciation of the guarantee of religious freedom of a fight," he said. "I don't don in our Constitution," he said, "share this conviction after having Under the system of state

Work on Replacing Crank Style Scheduled to Begin Monday

Waupaca — Conversion of some of the rural magneto "crank" telephones to modern dial telephones will start Monday along State 14 west of here, J. P. Oberlin, branch manager, said Saturday.

The old telephones are being replaced with dial units, although the dial equipment will not be installed until the new telephone company building on Jefferson Street is completed.

Installers, under the direction of Clarence Lukasavage, Stevens Point, will begin the job of rewiring the premises of patrons on the western border of the Waupaca exchange.

New Line Facilities

The work will progress toward Waupaca and spread into the Chain O'Lakes area which is being equipped with new cables and lines.

The Wisconsin Telephone Co. is building new line facilities consisting of aerial and underground cable and wires. Most of the rural area will be served by underground lines and the Chain O'Lakes area by overhead construction because of the terrain, trees and soil conditions.

Crews have been working on the project for four months, installing and connecting these lines to cables leading through Waupaca proper to the switchboards.

To Cost $250,000

The project of replacing the lines which were previously owned by Almond and Weyauwega telephone companies will cost an estimated $250,000 in the Chain O'Lakes area, according to Wayne Thiel, Appleton, engineer.

Thiel said the new lines are being built primarily for the dial system but will provide "greatly improved" service for the area until dial equipment is in operation. No more than eight subscribers will be on any one line and the ringing on each line will be reduced by at least one-half the present number.

As the lines are changed, new numbers are being assigned to these new telephones. Helen Grill, chief operator, urges patrons with new telephone numbers to let their friends and neighbors know them and use them in calling.

Speed Service

Use of the new numbers will speed-up service to all of the subscribers because it will save the operators time in completing the calls.

Work on the construction project and conversion will continue through the winter months in other rural areas surrounding Waupaca.

Survey Needed

One part of the study needed is an origin and destination survey which will show where the people came from, where they are going and what streets they plan to use. These replies are run through computers at Madison which will indicate if those streets can handle such traffic through 1980.

Also needed is a study of the transit facilities and bus service available in Oshkosh.

Plan Necessary

Kelly said federal law now requires a city of 50,000 to have a comprehensive transportation planning process or it will not receive any federal aid for street projects. Oshkosh is rapidly approaching that 50,000 mark, Kelly indicated.

He continued that the American Automobile Association in its traffic study of Oshkosh did not recommend a one-way street for Main Street but did suggest additional off-street parking be acquired with the eventual removal of parking from Main Street.

Kelly has indicated there should be a positive approach to the central business district problem with a competent study and listing of alternatives.

Former Appleton Man Directs Fun On Morning Television Game Show

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

If smiling, personable Don Bohl were to ask you, "What's My Line?" your impulse might be to guess that he was an accountant . . . a teacher . . . a successful young retailer.

But Bohl—the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bohl, 1201 E. Pacific St.—is none of these.

Instead, this graduate of Appleton High School and Valparaiso University is deeply enmeshed in show business, as the director of "Say When," a TV game show seen daily in this area at 9 a.m. over Channel 5, Green Bay.

"Say When" is produced by the Goodson-Todman organization, a game show factory that occupies three stories of the Seagram building in New York City.

Largest Firm
As the largest firm of its type in the world, Goodson-Todman Productions is also responsible for such long-term favorites as "What's My Line?", "I've Got a Secret," "The Price Is Right," "To Tell the Truth" and half a dozen others.

Before being assigned to "Say When," Bohl was director of and "The Price Is Right," "Split Personality," "Beat the Clock," "Number Please." He attributes the success of the Goodson-Todman shows to their "polish and finesse," the fact that all of the new games are played and perfected "off-camera" for months before the format is fixed and they are put into actual production.

Bohl's long journey to the director's chair began in 1947, when, as a graduate student at the University of Wisconsin, he produced a major dramatic show for Chicago's WBKB-TV as his master's thesis.

"In 1946 and 1947 there was very little information about TV production," he recalled during a visit to Appleton. "The best way to get experience was to make it, to create a vehicle, because there were no books on TV production."

While at the U.W., Bohl worked on "almost all of the major stage productions" at the Memorial Union theatre. Once he had been awarded his M.A. degree, he accepted a job at WBKB, where he worked for almost a year "as a stagehand, more or less. I did everything—put up scenery, swept floors, designed scenery, pushed the camera around."

"I had a chance to do every conceivable job in the studio. It was a marvelous foundation. Now, when I ask a cameraman to do a specific movement, or ask for something unusual, I know pretty well how it can be done."

Moved to Iowa
From Chicago Bohl moved to Davenport, Iowa, where he put station WOC-TV "on the air." This job involved training all of the station personnel, including those with radio experience, for the television operation.

Bohl stayed at WOC-TV as director of television for two years, then decided "the pasture was greener in New York."

After moving to the East Coast, he worked for NBC-TV as a stage manager for two years, after which he moved to an advertising agency as producer of a local New York television show. He then moved back to NBC-TV as an associate director, and finally joined Goodson-Todman nally joined Goodson-Todman productions, where he has spent the past four years.

Goodson-Todman's record "is the best of all" the game show producers, Bohl declared.

"When they create a new show, they put all of the top brains of the company, all of the executives, on it, and they work on it for months, refining and polishing it."

One such new show, "Missing Links," is among the daytime offerings being premiered this month.

Complex Process
Bringing the typical game show to the nation's TV screens is a more complex and demanding process than the average viewer would imagine, Bohl said.

The producers begin by working out all details of the game, polishing the format to a high sheen. Not only employees of the company, but people invited in "off the streets" play the game before a network contract is signed.

Once the format has been set, performers hired and a network spot assigned to the show, detailed rehearsals are held, to assure the proper functioning of the electric gear and, indeed, every other element of the production.

"The viewer would probably be astounded if he knew how much rehearsal time we put in," Bohl said. Because "Say When" is pre-taped, a rehearsal call may be at any time. A typical call might be for 12 noon, with the camera available for run-throughs at 12:30 p.m. The first half hour of the rehearsal time is used for putting finishing touches on scenery, walking models through their paces and making other technical preparations.

At 12:30 the same action is rehearsed "on camera," and every step of the show is covered, from the announcer's introduction through the awarding of prizes.

Test Pattern
After this run-through, there is a half-hour test pattern, "which allows everybody to get ready for the show."

Fifteen minutes before air time, the audience is admitted to the studio. All contestants are chosen from the studio audience, and great care is taken to make sure that the volunteers have no connection with anyone on the show.

"We have never tried for characters, such as Groucho Marx had on his show," Bohl said. "We just try for ordinary people that are genuine, and our contestant pickers are very careful in interviews not to get people that are too eccentric."

The most important thing, he emphasized, "is that they know how to play the game."

Bohl commutes to New York daily from Bronxville, a "pleasant village" where he lives with his wife, Dorothy, and his three daughters. Among the Bohls' neighbors at Bronxville are a number of other well-known television workers, including Jack Paar and Durward Kirby.

Bandits Take Over $100,000 in Jewels

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A pair of fast-working bandits, wearing white gloves, stocking masks and what appeared to be paratroopers' suits, smashed a display window with a plank, scooped up more than $100,000 in jewels and escaped by car and boat.

Except that the take was smaller, Friday night's robbery was a near-duplication of a February 1962 robbery of the chain store in nearby Pompano Beach. Three men charged with that one, which netted $1 million, are in jail.

Witnesses said the bandits were in and out of the store in less than a minute. A couple pursued the getaway car, but the robbers shot their radiator and they turned back.

Southern Rhodesia Takes Official Slap At Boy Scout Troops

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP) — Prime Minister Hastings Banda of Nyasaland is calling on all youngsters in his country to join an organization called the Pioneer Movement.

Banda, a fervent nationalist, says "foreign" organizations like the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides do not teach young men and women the essence of manual and physical labor or old African customs.

The move is expected to hurt the 5,000-strong Nyasaland Boy Scout Association. Nyasaland's government previously withdrew an annual grant of $7,000 made for many years to the Boy Scouts.

The Pioneer Movement is similar to an organization in Ghana which President Nkrumah of that country modeled after the Soviet Union's Communist Youth Organization.

The young Pioneers are instructed to enlighten youth about the motherland and to center attention on the African personality as seen in Banda. Emancipation from colonial, imperialist and slave mentalities is described as one of its objects.

Tito Prepares Selling Trip to South America

BY WILLIAM L. RYAN

President Tito of Yugoslavia, newly appointed by Soviet Premier Khrushchev as a good Leninist Communist, heads for Latin America this week. The trip may stir misgivings about the soundness of a huge U.S. investment in his regime.

Advance billing pictures Tito as a salesman for the idea of non-alignment in cold war blocs. But the brand of "peaceful coexistence" Tito is espousing is beginning to sound much like Khrushchev's own.

Tito probably has many reasons for going to Latin America. Some include strictly Yugoslav national interests. Some may involve enhancement of his own and his regime's prestige as the supposed voices of neutralism.

Prepare Climate
But Tito is a Leninist Communist who professes to believe that communism is the world's wave of the future. He could be influential in preparing a Latin-American climate more receptive to Communist ideas.

The 73-year-old Yugoslav president expects to turn up next month in the United States, which has bet a billion dollars — in aid of one form or another — that his independence from Moscow would be permanent.

Tito will visit Brazil, Chile, Bolivia and Mexico, countries whose governments frequently are at odds with Washington and inclined to question the extent of any peril emanating from Communist Cuba.

Expanded Trade
Among other things is Latin America Tito hopes for expanded trade. Yugoslavia considers herself abused by the European Common Market. Khrushchev has given the Yugoslav observer status in Comecon, the Red bloc's attempt at economic integration. Thus Tito can seek the best of two worlds.

The trip comes at a time when Moscow is in a roaring dispute with Red China. Among other things, this involves how Communists should go about taking over new real estate. The Chinese support direct revolutionary action. The Russians, apparently, believe in softening up the prospect over a long period.

Has 'Little Doubt'
About Space Spying
WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Edward C. Welsh, executive secretary of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, expressed little doubt that Soviet satellites have done some spying over the United States.

There has been no official word but there is widespread speculation that U.S. spacecraft like Samos and Midas carry out such missions. And Welsh told an Air Force Association symposium Friday it would be stupid to conclude that Russian satellites are not making similar observations.

Up to a short time ago, Tito called his policy active coexistence. Since the Khrushchev visit, he has called it "peaceful and active coexistence." In a statement dealing with his visit to Latin America, Tito said he will be "following the policy of non-alignment."

That Grand and Glorious Game

OSHKOSH — Today thousands of loyal Wisconsin fans will be on hand to see the champion Green Bay Packers make their 1963 league debut against the challenging Chicago Bears at Green Bay City Stadium.

Many Packer backers from Oshkosh will be among the 40,327 football fanatics who will root for the green and gold this afternoon. Two of the Oshkosh couples making the 30-mile journey to Lombardland will be Mr. and Mrs. Perry S. Wagner, 1808 Duane St., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Reinke, 2620 Duane St. The Wagners formerly made their home in Green Bay and Sturgeon Bay and are relative newcomers to Oshkosh.

This week the couples met at the Wagner home to compare game notes and reminisce over past Packer-Bear clashes, particularly last year's one-sided affair, which the Pack won 40-0. While the ladies discussed "what to wear" in this unpredictable weather, the men focused their attention on an old Packer-Bear game program and discovered that 13 of the Packer faces in the book have since departed!

Just to get "in the mood" they displayed a "Packers beat the Bears" sign and a pennant of their favorite team. All agreed that the Packers were going to win. By how much?—"by three touchdowns," the men insisted, as Coach Vince Lombardi has been shouting, "Bel-tiamo l'orsi!"

Robert G. Reinke, Mrs. Reinke, Mrs. Perry S. Wagner and Mr. Wagner pose at left with a Packer pennant. The couples will be among hundreds from Oshkosh and the Fox Cities converging on Green Bay Sunday for the annual Packer-Bear clash. Below, the gentlemen confer on past performances and statistics. Fort Winnebago — Where Chief Red Bird Surrendered

Restored Surgeon's Quarters Tell Story of Pioneer Fortification at Portage

We-Kan and Red Bird

Behind the Cover

Indian—White Customs Clashed at Early Fort

In this era of racial tensions and conflict between rival ideologies, often on a world-wide scale, it is sometimes forgotten that Wisconsin was at one time a battleground between rival codes of life—the American Indian vs. the European White.

And nowhere is this epic struggle better symbolized than at Fort Winnebago, on the outskirts of Portage, where only the restored Surgeon's Quarters (pictured on the cover of today's VIEW) remain to indicate the site of a permanent military outpost built by the First Regiment of the United States Infantry in 1828, and destroyed by fire in 1856.

It was on this spot that Red Bird, esteemed chief of the Winnebago Indian tribe, surrendered to military authorities, following the murder of two white men and the scalping of an infant in the spring of 1827.

Tribal Justice

Whether Red Bird actually participated in the murders, which were dictated by tribal justice, is still a matter of conjecture. But once the murders were committed, he and his associate, We-Kan, gave themselves up to white men at the portage, thus marking the end to the abortive Winnebago War.

There is little doubt that Red Bird and We-Kan surrendered in order to save their tribesmen from the white man's vengeance. And the white man, for his part, tried to understand and judge his prisoners by the Indian's own code. Neither of the Indians was executed. However, the noble Red Bird sickened and died while confined at Prairie du Chien.

An heroic statue to the martyred Red Bird's memory has been erected at High Cliff Forest Park, on the eastern shore of Lake Winnebago. The cover photo is the work of James Amer, of the Post-Crescent staff.

Young Artists' Work Shown at Library

BY JAY JOSELYN
Post-Crescent Sunday Staffer

Tomorrow art works by 15 teen-agers and 11 youngsters will go on display at the Appleton Public Library. The display is half of the first exhibition of works by the pupils of Phyllis Davidson. The works of 19 of Miss Davidson's adult pupils go on display Monday at the Leath Furniture Store. Both art shows will hang for two weeks.

One of the artists represented at the library show is Sharon Eisner, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Eisner, 1701 S. Driscoll St. She is a junior at Xavier High School and has been studying art seriously since the fifth grade at St. Joseph Grade School when she was recommended for a summer course with Mrs. Thomas Dietrich at Lawrence College. She was Miss Davidson's first juvenile pupil when she opened her College Avenue studio 2½ years ago.

Sharon likes working in pastels and with charcoal in preference to oils or watercolors. Her subject matter has a wide range but apparently she prefers figure work and portraiture. She shows commendable skill in both. Cats, pets and jungle types, are prevalent in her sketch book.

Loves Horses

Horses are special favorites for her, as sketching subjects and for riding. Her equestrian pursuits rank just behind her sketching as a hobby. The rest of her time is spent going to school and her baby sitting.

Her latter pursuit garnered for her a week's vacation job at Silver Lake when she accompanied one of her steady customers this summer. Of course, she tended the family's three children, 5 and 3 years and 16 months.

tinue that study beyond high school along with her study of art. Although she was a member of the Future Nurses Club, she isn't quite sure what her life's work will be. No matter what it may be, however, art will continue to be a part of her life.

Sharon credits her mother for her drawing skill. Mrs. Eisner is a fine drawer, according to Sharon, although she hasn't had any training and doesn't do any "big" work, according to the young artist.

Sharon's brothers, Dick, 18, and Jim, 12, don't pay much attention to art, and neither does her city fireman father, but her little brother, Larry, 8, draws all of the time and his works get hung in the family home. Larry also has sat for portraits for his sister.

The library show will be Sharon's third exhibit. She had three works in Xavier's art festival last spring and there were some Sharon Eisner sketches in the Appleton Gallery of Arts 1962 art and craft fair at City Park where Sharon sold her first drawing.

Miss Davidson's philosophy of art is based on the ability of her student's to see what they are drawing and Miss Eisner is a good example of the success of this type of teaching.

Chickamauga

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Sunday Editor

A creek meandering in the valley south of the natural amphitheater that forms the southern approach to Chattanooga, Tenn., bears the prophetic Cherokee name of Chickamauga. The meaning of the Indian name is "River of Death."

This week the nation will commemorate the centennial of one of the bloodiest battles in the Civil War on the banks of that appropriately named river.

It is not only because this greatest of the battles in the West resulted in a greater percentage of casualties than even Gettysburg that its centennial should move us to special recognition. The Battle of Chickamauga, of all of the major battles in the war, was a Wisconsin battle—in fact, most of the fighting Badgers were from the Fox Cities area.

Heroic Martyr

The battle gave the state one of its most authentic heroic martyrs and the nation one of its most stalwart but modest heroes. It ended a fine military career and formed the foundation upon which a political career was established for another.

In reference to the war, the Battle of Chickamauga ended a northern invasion by the Confederates as effectively as Gettysburg did. Although it actually was a reversal for the Union troops, the battle eventually opened up the route that delivered the death-blow to the South and, perhaps of more important notice, the battle and the consequent reinforcement gathered together the grand army that stormed down that death-dealing route.

The confrontation at Chickamauga was preordained the previous June when Gen. Braxton Bragg was sold on the idea that border-state rebels were merely awaiting the arrival of a Confederate army to throw off their charade of neutrality and he moved to accommodate the legend. In fact, he was in Frankfort, Ky., witnessing the inauguration of secessionist Gov. Hawes when the Fox Cities area regiments were blooded at Perryville early in October. The 21st

Wisconsin, recruited throughout today's Fox Cities area, led by a Chilton man, Col. Benjamin Sweet, with a Menasha minister, the Rev. O. P. Clinton, as its chaplain, went into the thick of battle only 34 days after it had been mustered.

Buell and Bragg

Maj. Gen. Don Carlos Buell and his Army of the Ohio had been given the job of clearing his department of Bragg. Despite his vainglorious claims of rescuing Sherman and Grant at Shiloh, Buell was a cautious man.

Despite his ambitious plan, Bragg had a great feeling for the importance of his army to the Southern cause. Perryville—or Chaplin Hill in Federal records—was caused by ambitious underlings, not the cautious general.

Although the battle was not conclusive, the Wisconsin regiments proved they could stand up well under fire. The 21st in its first engagement, though it was caught in the fire of friend and foe alike and it lost its colonel through grievous wounds, was mentioned in reports as having played a significant part in holding the Union line.

Bragg pulled his army away and since he was heading in the direction Buell wanted him to, the cautious "Hero of Shiloh" kept his distance. Like other non-sanguinary Union generals, Buell was replaced by Maj. Gen. William S. Rosecrans and the name of the army was changed to the Army of the Cumberland.

Moves South

After quitting Kentucky, Bragg moved to camp around Murfreesboro, Tenn., and his operations were supervised, for a time, by Gen. Joseph E. Johnston with headquarters at Chattanooga.

With his army well in hand, Rosecrans, near the end of the year, moved toward Murfreesboro not only to clear the Rebels out of the border states, but to destroy them as well.

The year of 1862 ended in the storybook battle of Stone's River— or Murfreesboro in Federal records. On well chosen ground, Rosecrans and Bragg met, each planning identical campaigns; to pivot his left on his center to roll up the foe's army and crush it.

The Rebels struck first. Rosecrans' chief of staff was killed at his side early in the battle and Rosecrans made all of the hurried realignments himself. The semi-experienced troops outdid themselves, withstanding heavy enemy fire and the even more disheartening experiences of being swept by routed troops.

Badger Regiments

Organization started paying off as regiments left the line with ammunition gone headed for supply trains. As they withdrew fighting, those regiments with bayonets used them while those without used their rifles as clubs. On Jan. 1, 1863, Bragg threw in the very troops that had smashed Easter morning at Shiloh, but they were raked with concentrated artillery fire and scattered by a counter-attack. There were no recriminations as Bragg pulled into Chattanooga without being pressed. The Union army was so used up that an officer declared, "We virtually went into hospital for the next six months."

The Fighting Badgers who gained their experience and almost all of their training at Perryville and Stone's River included the reorganized 1st whose predecessors reported the state's first casualty when George Drake fell at Falling Waters in 1861.

The others who won their laurels in these battles were the 21st, recruited in the Fox Cities; the 15th, "the Norwegian" regiment recruited in and about Iola with many of its members less than a year in the United States; the 10th, with the Menasha Guards making up Co. C, and the 24th, organized by the Mayor of Milwaukee, Herman L. Page, and commanded by Charles H. Larrabee.

Hard Service

Something of the service these men had up to this point can be seen by a quick look at a few of them.

George C. Worden of Appleton, in the 21st, was taken prisoner at Stone's River but was exchanged in time to be killed at Chickamauga.

Joseph Worby of Iola in the 8th Wis. Battery of the 1st Artillery was wounded in the left hip and right thigh at Stone's River but recovered in time to fight at Chickamauga. He had a family reason to fight. His mother was the niece of the notorious bandit-guerrilla Quantrell.

Andrew Grignon of Winneconne was in the 21st as was his son Marshall. Andrew was the son of Amat and Madeline Grignon. Stone's River started a recurrent nightmare for him.

Nightmare

He was captured by Wheeler's cavalry on the Jefferson Pike while with an ammunition train on Dec. 30. All of his clothes were stolen before he was paroled. He rejoined his regiment in time for Chickamauga, but to keep his story in the train of events his sequel must wait for its place.

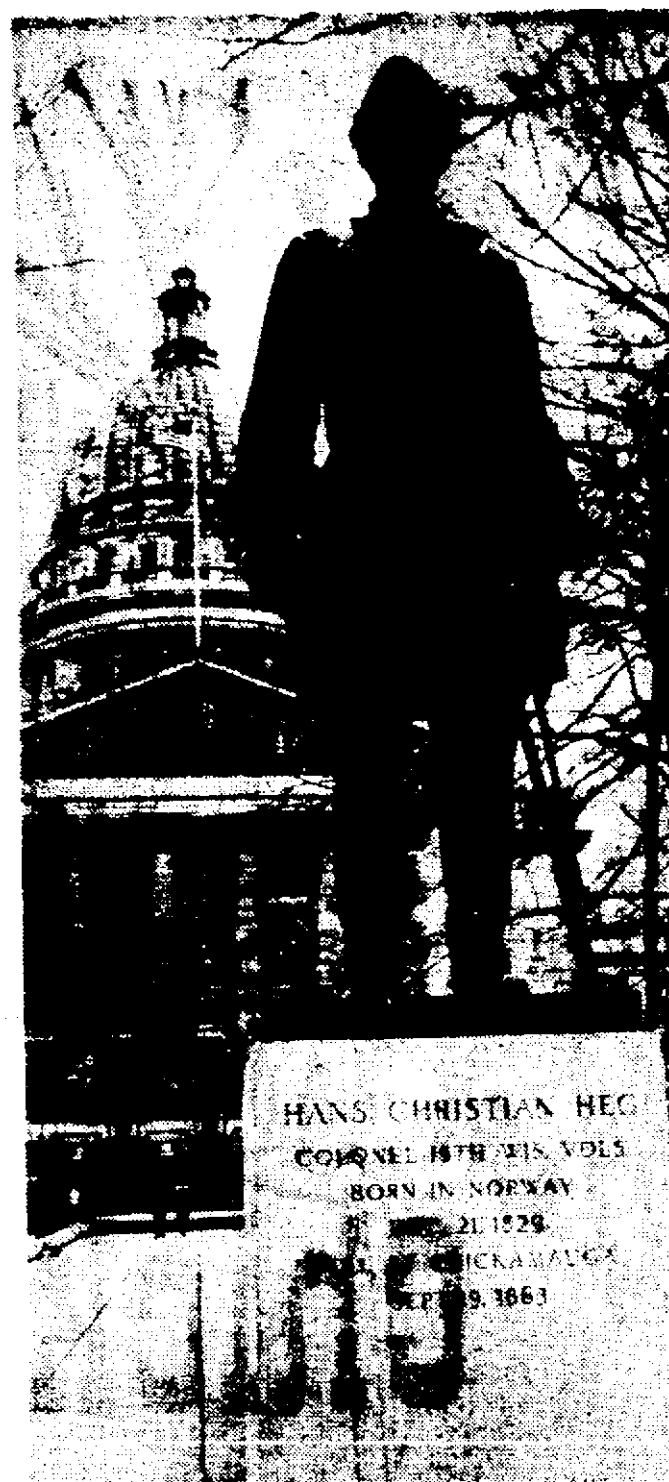

Andrew J. Calkins, a personage of considerable importance in later Lebanon history, was in the 21st. He was captured at Nelsonville, Tenn., on the way to Stone's River. His imprisonment prevented him from taking part in Chickamauga, but he arrived in Chattanooga in time to become a part of the grand army and drive beebes for Sherman on his march to the sea.

The Battle of Chickamauga was an exercise of maneuver in all of its scope and the example of raw courage.

Sought Bragg

After Rosecrans had allowed his army to recuperate, he moved in force against Chattanooga. The Battle of Chattanooga was not much more than a demonstration and the Gateway to the South was found empty.

Rosecrans flung out the individual parts of his army of some 55,000 men to beat the countryside for Bragg. After the rugged mountains and torrential rivers of the area had all but broken up communications, Rosecrans learned that instead of fleeing Bragg was being reinforced and lying in strength just beyond Look-Out Mountain and the parts of the army were hurriedly recalled.

By Sept. 18, the two armies were in line separated by the creek, with the Federal forces protecting the roads into Chattanooga. Early on the 19th the lines were enveloped by fog. Out of the fog came the Rebel yell as Bragg threw his right at the Union left held by Gen. George Thomas.

In the next 72 hours this quiet veteran of the Mexican War and all of the activities of the Army of the West was to earn the title of The Rock of Chickamauga and he earned it the hard way. The first day the line held despite terrible losses.

Controversial Order

At 9:30 a.m. Sept. 20, the Rebs came again at the left, extending toward the center. Then came the controversial order as Rosecrans attempted to strengthen the part of his line under fire.

Brig. Gen. James Garfield (later President Garfield) was Rosecrans' chief of staff. He took complete credit for all orders issued during the battle except the one that caused the trouble and soon left for Congress to make sure everyone knew about it. He was promoted to major general after the battle.

The effect of the questioned order was to open a gap in the federal line as troops were pulled out to move toward the left. Into that gap poured Longstreet's veterans of Gettysburg and the Federal right was rolled up and sent scurrying toward Chattanooga with Rosecrans being carried with it.

Fence Corner Nip

Although caught in the debacle, Phil Sheridan's division rallied and fought back to where Thomas was holding fast. In his Memoirs Sheridan recalls his meeting with "Pap" in a corner of a fence where they shared a sampling of bottled recuperation. The Rock of Chickamauga fought a rear guard action allowing the rest of the army to retreat in order into Chattanooga where Rosecrans was sent to oblivion and Thomas took over until Grant and Sherman appeared to break Bragg's siege in November.

Chickamauga was fought between 71,551 Confederates and 56,965 Federals. The Confederates lost 25 per cent and the Federals 28 per cent. Gettysburg had 77,518 Confederate suffering 27 per cent loss and 97,369 Federals who suffered a loss of 24 per cent.

Wisconsin Regiments

In Baird's division of Thomas' corps were Wisconsin's 1st, 21st, now led by Lt. Col. Harrison Hobart, and the 10th with the Menasha Guards. Col. Hans Heg, who organized the 15th Norwegian Regiment, was commanding the third brigade of Jeff C. Davis' division of McCook's corps. His old 15th Regiment and the 8th Kansas made up his brigade with the 8th Wisconsin Battery of Light Artillery in support. In Sheridan's division was Wisconsin's 24th out of Milwaukee. In Van Cleve's division was the 3rd Wisconsin Artillery and the 1st Wisconsin Cavalry was in Brig. R. B. Mitchell's cavalry corps.

Heroism was not lacking on the field bordering the River of Death and Wisconsin had more than its share. The adventures of the three regiments most closely associated with the Fox Cities area demonstrates this fact.

15th Wisconsin

Col. Heg's brigade on the first day of the battle was thrown into a threatened gap in the Union line. It met and drove the rebel skirmishers, but the heavy main line fire caused the Kansans to falter and leave Wisconsin's 15th alone to retire, carrying its wounded with it. The 15th laid down to allow an Illinois regiment to advance through the ranks. Soon the Illinois fighters were driven back over the 15th and troops in the rear mistook the Badgers for Rebs and once again the men of the Iowa area were forced to scatter to avoid "friendly" fire. At night Lt. Col. Ole C. Johnson rallied his men and on the 20th the 15th again was driven into a gap in the line—this time the gap that proved the undoing of the Federal hopes. Behind log ramparts the 15th repulsed two Rebel attacks and did not retire until both flanks were turned and the regiment was nearly surrounded—the last regiment to leave the field.

Col. Heg was not around to see the gallantry of his regiment at Chicamauga. On the first day while courageously leading his brigade he was grievously wounded and borne from the field. He died on Sept. 20 and so impressive was his courage that his state raised a statue in his honor at Madison and an identical statue was unveiled on the eve of World War I in Oslo.

While the 15th was fighting at the gap on the 20th, the 10th with the Menasha Guards was fighting at the Union left.

It repulsed a heavy attack and then the flank was turned and the 10th was ordered to face toward the forces pouring out of a woods. All afternoon the 10th held off the onslaughts, but at night the withdrawal of forces from its rear and right forced it to retire. However, in the dark it stumbled into Rebel lines and was badly mauled before it was rescued. The gallant 10th retired from the field with only three officers and 28 men.

21st Wisconsin

The first day of the battle found the 21st at a ford of the River of Death in reserve, but soon the pressure crumbled the forward lines. The 21st swept its front of Rebels, but a larger force appeared on the right outflanking the regiment. However, in a regimental maneuver it was caught unable to fire in formation and was forced to withdraw.

The second day, the 21st was on the extreme left

Time and time again Confederate attacks were repulsed. At times the regiment's second line was turned about to repulse attacks from the rear, but it held firm. At sunset, retreat was ordered, but the 21st never received the word and continued fighting until it was left alone.

Still fighting, it withdrew. Its colors were the last of the 14th Corps on the field.

Prisoners of War

In the withdrawal, part of the regiment was surrounded and Col. Hobart, 14 of his officers and four men were captured. One of the men was Andrew Grignon.

Once more the scion of Northeast Wisconsin's pioneer family was a prisoner of war. He was stripped of all his valuables and for 10 days he was marched along the road to Belle Isle prison where for a week he was without shelter. He was moved to a camp near Libby Prison and in December he was moved in a box car to Danville.

In April of 1864, he was seven days in a box car during a move to the notorious Andersonville Prison camp. In May he was stricken with scurvy and thrice taken for dead, but he survived to escape and, nurtured by Unionist, retained his freedom for three weeks.

Nearly Starved

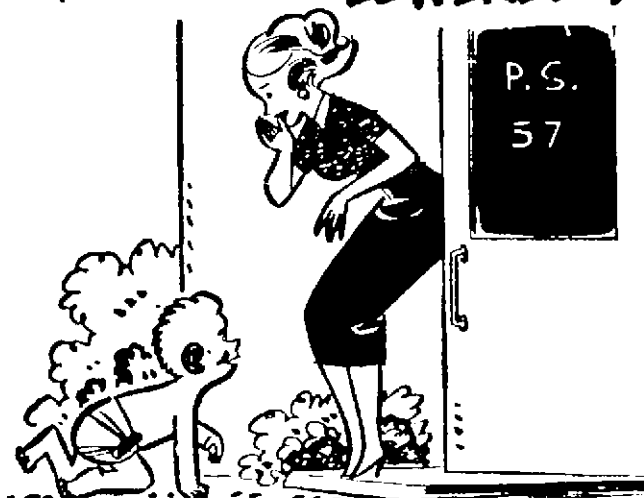

He was finally recaptured by men of Lee's army and sent to Macon where for two weeks he fended off starvation by eating rats and cats. In February, 1865, he was returned to Andersonville and when Sherman's army closed in, he was transferred to a camp in Florida where he was released on April 14. After nearly three months on the road, he returned to Madison in June.

There were 4,774 men reported missing after Chickamauga by the Union forces. Many suffered Grignon's fate or worse as prisoners. The wounded amounted to 9,749, many of whom died of their wounds. The Union dead amounted to 1,656 on the field, many of whom died lying wounded on parts of the field from which the Union had been driven.

Let's EXPLORE Your Mind

SHOULD THE SCHOOL-ENROLLMENT AGE FOR BOYS BE LOWERED?

YES ☐
NO ☐

No. One expert in early education says, "Little boys are definitely more restless, and find it harder to deal with the passive in school work. They seem to need to be up and about, wildly and noisily, more than girls. Many a first-grade teacher has felt that the entrance age for boys should be at least a year later than for girls."

CAN ANGER TIRE YOU OUT? YES ☐ NO ☐

Yes. Sometimes being mad is more fatiguing than hard work. When you are angry, your muscles tense, your heart pounds and your breath comes more rapidly. "Swallowing" your anger may actually require more effort than hard physical labor. Psychiatrists have found that some people get all tired out without doing anything, simply because they have had to repress their anger and frustrated pride.

MILITARY SERVICE IS ALWAYS AN EMOTIONAL STRAIN!

TRUE ☐ FALSE ☐

False. Some types of people want to turn their whole lives over to someone else. In military life they find they need only do as they are told, and they like this. In many cases, men who have done well in military service break down when they return to civilian life and have to accept the responsibility for themselves.

New TV Season Begins

Networks Fire Big Guns This Week in Annual Rating Race

BY CYNTHIA LOWRY

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The big guns are ready to be wheeled in place, the strategy is planned, and the annual three-way war of the television networks will start this week.

Weapons, of course, are television programs, and to the victor goes the prize: the lion's share of the viewing audience.

Between Sept. 15 when ABC presents three new series and Oct. 3 when NBC fires its last shot with a new suspense hour, some 32 new programs will be unveiled.

That represents a lot of turn-over, almost 40 per cent, when one considers that next season prime time evening schedules (6:30-10) will consist of a total of 86 programs.

Garland, Kaye

Among the highlights of the months ahead are the new Judy Garland and Danny Kaye variety hours on CBS: two related integrated stories about the same characters and situations in ABC's 90-minute "Arrest" and "Trial" shows, and NBC's "Richard Boone Show" which will be acted by a repertory company.

When the season has started, viewers of the nation's 60 million television sets will be making their weekly choices among the 21 comedy programs, 14 action-adventure tales, 19 anthologies and "continuing" anthologies (meaning the same characters in different stories each week, like "Dr. Kildare" or "Perry Mason."), 13 variety programs, four mystery and suspense series, seven game shows, two NBC re-runs of feature movies, and a few others which resist pigeon-holing.

ABC, which suffered through a dismal season last winter, has the most new programs coming in, 13, having ruthlessly reshuffled and revised its schedules this year.

Among other changes, it will move its popular "Ben Casey" from Monday nights to Wednesdays, in a starting position conflicting with CBS' "Beverly Hillsbillies," last season's most popular network program. Among its new shows, too, is a big-money quiz, "100 Grand," alleged to be rig-proof, which will be seen on Sunday nights.

Intense Interest

Some of the most intense industry interest focuses on the outcome of a skirmish for audiences between 8 and 9 p.m. Sunday evenings.

The time period has been held by "Bonanza," NBC's Western, for several years without any really tough competition. This season however, both CBS and ABC are on the offensive. CBS has "The Judy Garland Show" in the hour, while ABC has "Arrest" and "Trial." Viewers whose interest has been aroused by the first 45 minutes of the ABC show (which has a half-hour start on Miss Garland) will be reluctant to switch stations—or at least that's the theory.

CBS' "Danny Kaye Show" turns up late Wednesday nights in the hour held for years by Steel Hour and Circle Theatre, both banished from network air. The network also has pushed the Saturday night "Defenders" back a half hour to 8 p.m., and slipped the new Phil Silvers situation comedy series after the Jackie Gleason hour.

"Perry Mason" gets moved again, this time to 8 p.m. (instead of 7) on Thursday nights, where its tough competition will be the second half of "Dr. Kildare" on NBC and ABC's new "Jimmy Dean Show," a variety hour.

An anthology series, including some variety shows and one hosted by Bob Hope on NBC plus a major ABC entry, "Burke's Law," are expected to give CBS's "Route 66" some trouble on Friday nights.

Notably missing from the network weekly schedules are the public affairs and documentary shows of the past few seasons. "CBS Reports" will still have its Wednesday evening hour, but will share it with another series called "Chronicle." The network's "Eye-Witness" series departs.

David Missing

Among the missing will be "David Brinkley's Journal" and "Chet Huntley Reporting" from NBC's weekly schedule, although both will do occasional specials in a sort of catch-all Wednesday night hour, shared with some Andy Williams and Telephone Hour musical outings. ABC's Howard K. Smith will be seen and heard on a Sunday afternoon series.

The disappearance of the weekly shows, however, does not mean a diminution of network interest in the public affairs category. All three are planning programs in the area and will handle them by pre-empting from time to time, the time periods of the so-called "entertainment shows."

Most of the old favorites will be returning, of course, Perry Como will be among the missing, however, with just a handful of special variety hours on his schedule.

ABC's "Wagon Train" will go to 90 minutes next season and move to Monday nights, opposite Lucille Ball, Danny Thomas and Andy Griffith, CBS' powerful parlay of comedy half-hours. NBC's Mitch Miller and gang go back to a 9-10 time spot but on Monday nights this time.

Imogene Coca returns to network television in a comedy series on CBS and Glynis Johns also will have a series of her own—comedy—on the same network. Jerry Lewis is ABC's candidate to shoot it out with Saturday night's "Gunsmoke" with a two-hour live variety show.

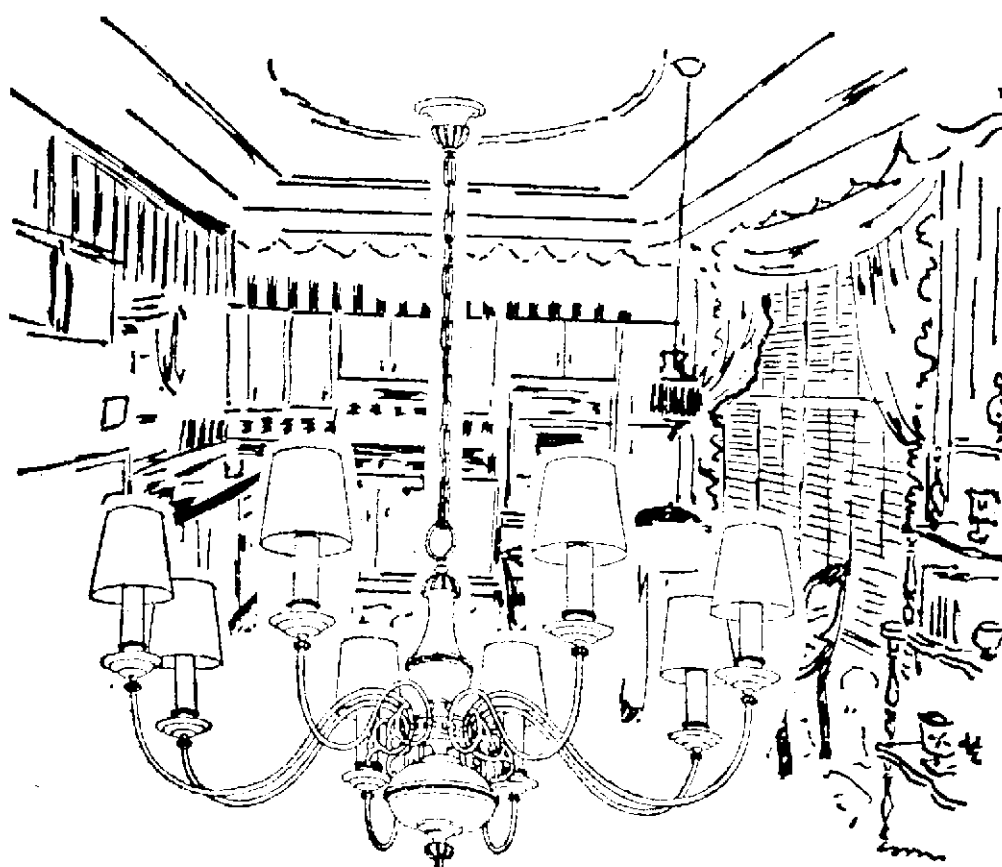

All in all, there will be a really new look to network schedules by early October. But the conscientious sampler of old and new fare will really need a program to find his old favorites and to spot new offerings.

Changes on Campus

New Educational Look Ready for Collegians

BY G. E. Hadenfield
WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost 4.5 million students return to college this month. They will find sparkling new buildings, baffling new technology, and programs of instruction which last year were only a gleam in some dreamer's eye.

From the smallest private colleges to the sprawling state universities, higher education in the United States is going in for great change.

A survey by the Association of Land Grant Colleges and State Universities shows building booming everywhere.

New Buildings

More than half the public institutions surveyed are opening new dormitories this fall, to house more than 20,000 students. Nearly every campus will have at least one new building. About half of the new buildings are for new science facilities.

The University of Wisconsin, with 35,000 students, is spending $42 million to construct 18 buildings on three campuses. Wayne State University in Detroit is building a new medical campus. The University of Colorado is adding a $16.8 million hospital and research wing.

More attention is being paid to the preparation of teachers for the physically and mentally handicapped.

Mentally Retarded

The University of Iowa will offer a new undergraduate degree program for students specializing in teaching the mentally retarded, and the physically handicapped. A hospital, now under construction, will provide students laboratory experience.

The University of Arizona will have a unique program for teachers from small towns throughout the state. They will be brought to the campus for a full year of training in such specialized fields as remedial reading and teaching the retarded and handicapped.

At Pennsylvania State University, 29 hand-picked students will begin a revolutionary program to complete the requirements for a medical doctor's degree in 5 years instead of the traditional 8. The students will attend school around the calendar.

New Gadgets

A growing number of institutions are turning to electronic computers to help register students, schedule classes and keep records.

The University of Maine and Texas Technological College are opening educational television stations. At the University of Idaho, 1,500 students will be taught mathematics by television.

Michigan State University will have its own peace corps—the Student Education Corps. MSU students will work with teachers in elementary schools in poor neighborhoods in several cities.

New Courses

Tagalog has been added to the other 70 languages taught at UCLA. A course in mathematical analysis for business decisions has been added at Oklahoma State, digital computer programming at Ohio State, and manned spacecraft technology at Louisiana State University.

The University of North Carolina has added 30 courses, ranging from a history of Russia between 882 and 1861 to a seminar in comparative animal behavior.

At the University of Washington new requirements double the amount of work formerly required of a student outside his major field. UCLA has doubled its special programs for outstanding high school students.

Texas A&M will admit women students for the first time.

Woman Gives Birth To Grandson's Uncle

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP)—Jane Yurkauskas, 44, gave birth to her grandson's uncle a few hours after the uncle's nephew was born.

Mrs. Yurkauskas became a grandmother Friday when her daughter, Mary Ann McDonald, 20, gave birth to a boy. A few hours later, Mrs. Yurkauskas was delivered of a boy in the same hospital.

Nehru Voices Optimism for World Peace

Indian Premier Sees Growth of Confederations

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—He slipped his feet out of their sandals and rubbed his bare toes on the carpet as he talked. Light was reflected across the bald top of his head, exposing a fringe of white hair.

Here was Jawaharlal Nehru, relaxed after another long day of running the world's largest democracy.

With his mind alert, his voice low but forceful, he looked beyond his and India's immediate problems.

Confederations

He envisaged a world of increasing order and prosperity, with nations grouped into regional confederations.

Progress toward prosperity in Asia is far from fast enough, Nehru said. But in the future, as he saw it, the basic necessities of life will be provided and that "will change the abiding discontent."

By the end of the century the world will see very big changes, India's prime minister said, explaining "We can't go on living on the brink of war, nuclear war I think some kind of major disarmament is bound to occur—that is, if war doesn't occur first."

The nations will change, Nehru said. "They won't become angels, but certain aggressive tendencies will be curbed—national enmities will grow less."

Large Groupings

Nehru was asked about a movement toward cooperation by Malaysia, the Philippines and Indonesia in a grouping called Maphilindo. "I think the trend in the world is for large groupings—not federations but confederations of independent countries."

A pause, then: "Like in Western Europe."

Is such a grouping possible in this area?

"I am afraid of saying anything because it irritates Pakistan. They think it is only a dodge to absorb Pakistan in India."

Hopes of Peace

Despite the conflict with Communist China and the presence of Chinese troop concentrations on India's border, Nehru indicated hope of peace in this area.

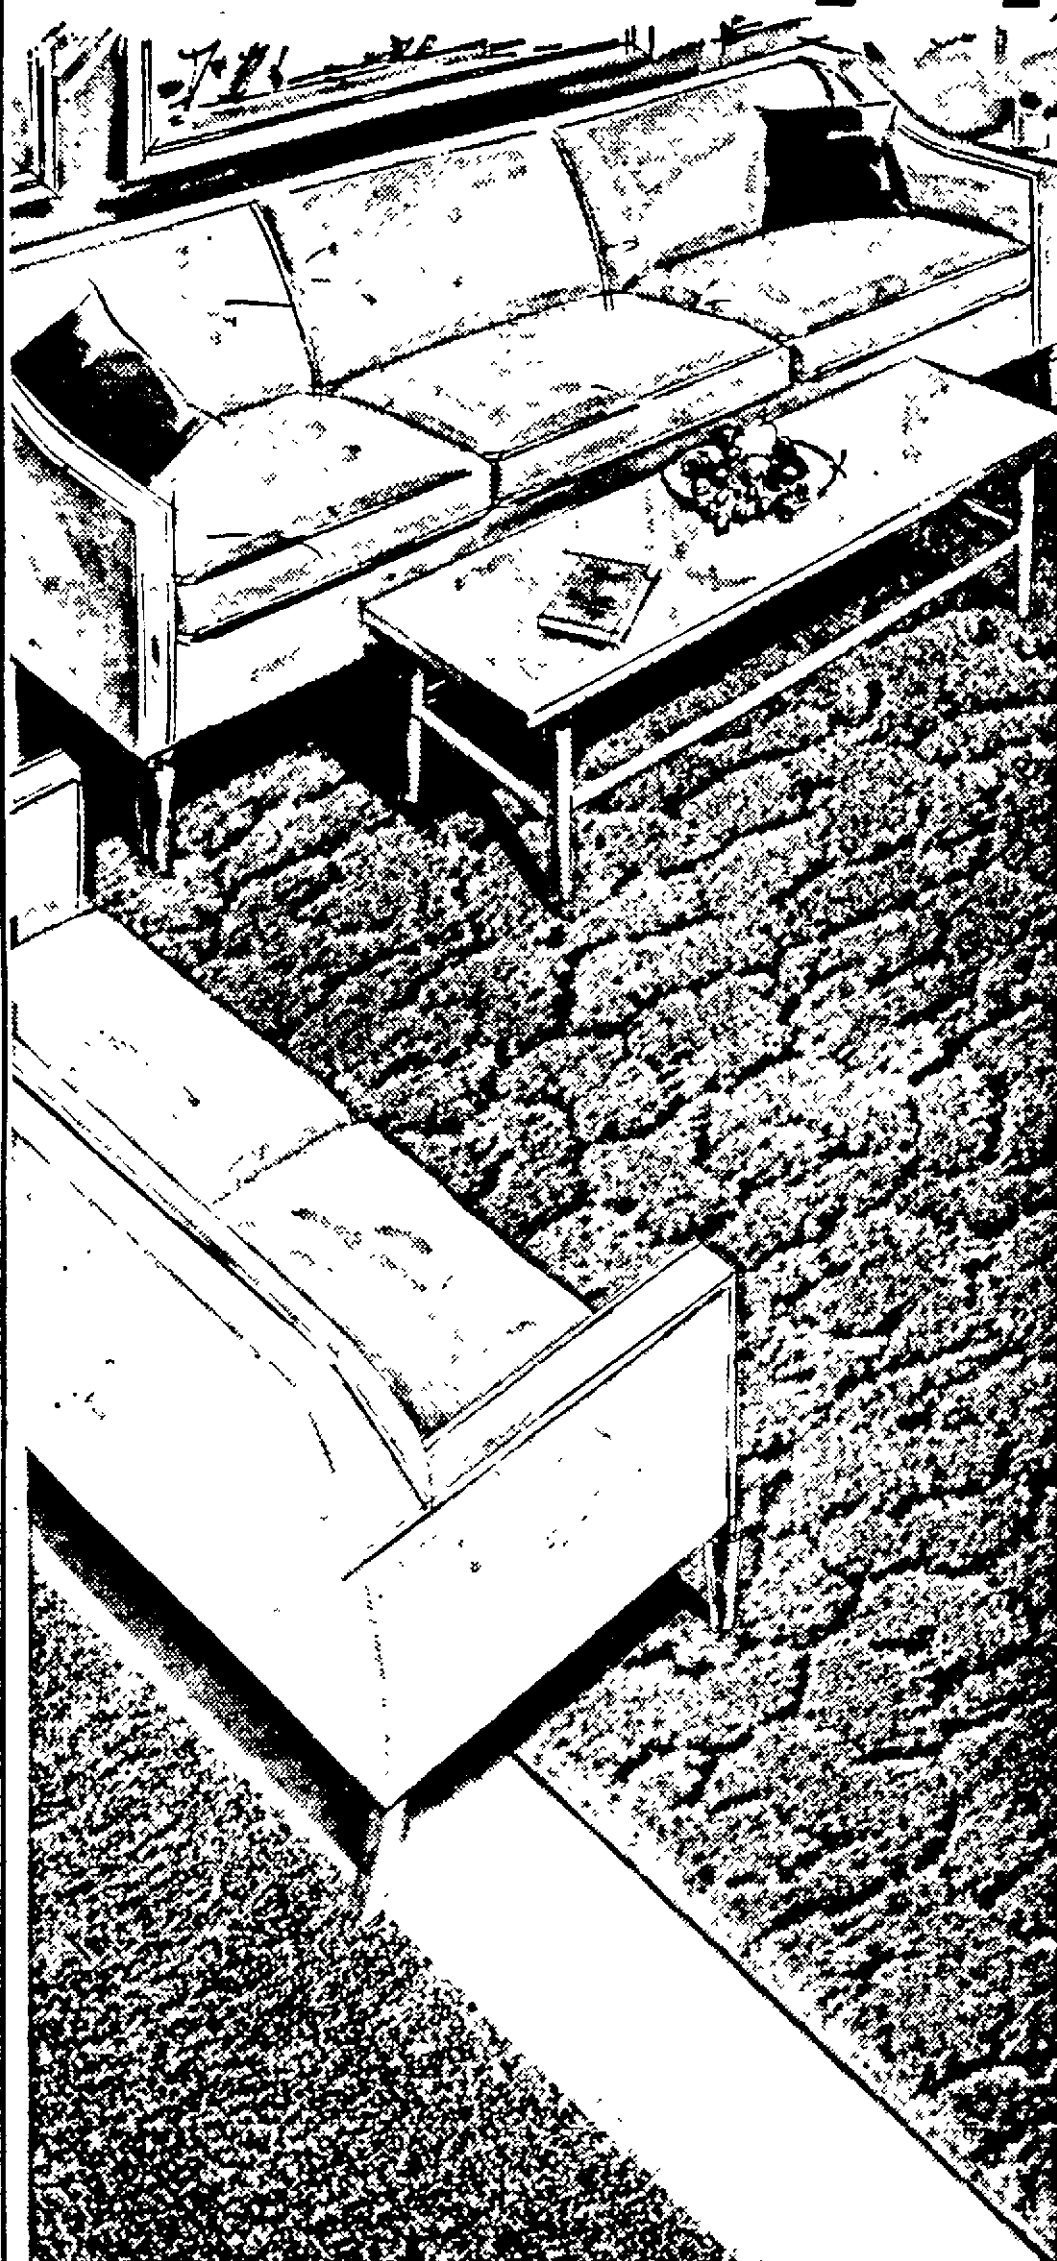

The 73-year-old prime minister reiterated that he does not want to leave India a legacy of hostility with its biggest neighbor, China. It might be wishful thinking that continued hostility can be avoided, Nehru noted, but it is the right thing to seek it.

Meanwhile, India must strengthen itself. "There can be ultimately peaceful relations if we are strong," said the man who once derided the Western concept of balance of power with the Soviet Union.

When the visitor rose to leave, Nehru slipped back into his sandals and went into the hallway to shake hands. Then he turned and walked slowly away.

BY JACK RUDOLPH

VIOLIN

Virtuoso Favorites: Erick Friedman, violinist, with Brooks Smith, pianist. RCA-Victor LM 2671 (Stereo LSC 2671).

A big, handsome lad (only 23) and a protege of Jascha Heifetz, Friedman not only has a pair of hands that can palm a violin as easily as a quarter—although from the sound of it, that's no two-bit fiddle—but a formidable technique that tosses off seven brilliant encore pieces with a bravura flair. Although he can employ a singing tone he evidently prefers the cold, hard brilliance of diamonds to the warm glow of emeralds and rubies. Ah, well — he's young.

CHORAL

Red Army Ensemble, Vol. 2; Chorus and Band. Angel 36143 (Stereo S 36143).

The Red Army Ensemble (formerly the Soviet Army Chorus and Band) stars in a second thrilling Angel album recorded in London earlier this year. The band is just another good military ensemble beefed up with balalaikas but the chorus has tremendous power and a disciplined, hair-raising sense of dynamic variation. I'll lay you a couple of rubles that the soloists, especially the principal tenor, are Russians pros doing their draft hitch the easy way. An excellent recording.

PERGOLESI

Concerto for Flute and Strings in G Major, Concertinos 1, in G Major, 5 in E-Flat Major, 6 in B Flat Major; Andre Jaunet, flute, with Zurich Chamber Orchestra, Edmond de Stoutz conducting. Vanguard BG 646 (Stereo BGS 5058).

With these four works Vanguard completes a two-album set of just about all the orchestral output of an obscure Italian genius (how obscure the two sets of excellent jacket notes aptly illustrate) with excellent treatment from the performers.

The flute concerto is lovely, although the soloist is miked too close, while the concertinos are unpretentious, lyrical and charming. They are all beautifully presented by Vanguard's usually excellent engineering.

DEBUSSY—RAVEL

La Mer (Debussy); Daphnis and Chloe, Suite 2, Pavane pour une Infante Defunte (Ravel); Cleveland Orchestra, George Szell conducting. Spic LC 3863 (Stereo LSC 1263).

Szell chooses to emphasize the resemblances rather than the differences in the music of Debussy and Ravel and he does it by highlighting strength rather than delicacy. The result is a series of vivid, surging interpretations of great vitality, although marred by occasional stridency. If you try to play them at anything approaching full volume they'll blow the roof. Another in the series of brilliant recordings commemorating Szell's half-century as a musician.

VIEW's Regular Features
With the Sept. 22 Sunday Post-Crescent

BY W. R. DOBERSTEIN

One man who played a significant role in early Wisconsin history—and an even greater part in the war-between-the-states—provides us with a link between two features, seemingly unrelated, found elsewhere in this issue of VIEW.

Jefferson Davis is a name to be found in any historical summary of our Civil War. As a personality involved in frontier Wisconsin, he also stacks up as "important." His unusual ability, resourcefulness and "stick-to-it-iveness" were directly related to events and accomplishments which added to the developments of the south and central areas of our present state geography.

"Jeff" was unlike the typical frontier soldier. As a young officer, he preferred reading to the cards and gambling enjoyed by others. But when it came to action—dealing with the Indians or exploring the territory—the fact that he was a gentleman proved no handicap.

On one occasion he asked directions to a large party of unfriendly Indians. When one brave stepped squarely in the soldiers' path and pointed in what was obviously the wrong direction, Lieutenant Davis sensed a crisis. Without warning, he spurred his horse straight at the brave, grabbed him by the hair and dragged him a way before dropping him in a heap. This took the Indians so by surprise that they stepped aside in a hurry and gave no more indications of looking for trouble.

On another assignment, after being transferred from Fort Winnebago, he drove himself so hard on the construction of a sawmill that he caught severe pneumonia. Only the faithful care of his Negro servant pulled him through.

This colored man showed such devotion that Davis entrusted him with just about everything including his weapons, his money and his reports; in fact, James Pemberton even relayed his master's instructions from the sick bed to the construction crew.

Fort Winnebago and Chickamauga—quite remote from each other historically. But they both represent phases of our national growth, and Jefferson Davis—with his strong personality—left his indelible mark on the past in both places.

Sid & Edie

Laughter and Songs

BY EDGAR PENTON

During the new television season, you'll see Edie Adams in a half-hour show on one Thursday night and the next Thursday, you'll see Sid Caesar in HIS half-hour show.

But to kick off their season of alternate weeks over ABC-TV, this dynamic duo will team up in a full hour special Thursday.

Both these stars lead such action-packed lives that catching a glimpse of their regular routines is a somewhat stunning experience.

Edie is busy taping 19 shows for her cigar sponsor and Sid is doing 20 for HIS cigar sponsor. Both hope to complete their tapings before the end of the year so they will be able to accept motion picture roles that are continually being offered.

High Gear

Edie's career went into high gear when her first half-hour special was nominated for two Emmys. Her shows received three nominations in this year's Emmy race.

Since that first show, she has co-starred in four motion pictures, three of which will be released this fall. She also filled an exceptionally successful engagement at the Riviera in Las Vegas; starred in a summer theater production of "Rain," and, of course, completed her eight television specials last season.

Sid has been going at an equally hectic pace. In addition to the nine television shows he taped he also starred, as Edie's husband, in a film; did a couple of guest shots on other television shows and starred in the Broadway musical comedy hit of last season, "Little Me."

How either one of them can remain apparently calm and collected under these backbreaking schedules puzzles everyone.

"I had to devise a plan by which I can get on top of the situation and take a fresh look every time," explains Edie.

"I decide which is the most important thing to do at that moment and get that done. And while I'm doing that one thing I do not worry about all the others."

"When you work as hard as I do," says Sid, "you fall into a routine."

"When I get back home from Manhattan at night I forget about the show and what went on."

"Sometimes I'll go into my recreation room and mess around with my gun collection."

Under Pressure

Both Sid and Edie contend they work best under pressure. "I really do," says Edie. "You see, I'm sort of lazy by nature. But under pressure I have to get into action."

"I admit it," says Sid. I thrive on work. One of the drawbacks of working so much is that I don't see my wife and children as much as I'd like to. But I make up for it when I get a little time off."

This summer Sid took his whole family to Europe by boat. "That's the only way to do it," he says. "Nice and leisurely. The kids are at the age when they could truly enjoy such a trip. I wasn't so unhappy about not working."

Edie has, for the past couple of months, concentrated on what to do on her shows. "I think we'll have more comedy this season," she reveals.

"I've always felt closer to music than to comedy. All kinds of music interests me. I believe there is good music to be found in rock and roll, in jazz as well as in the classical field."

"I'll feature jazz more than I have in the past. I like it very much. It's a great art form. Probably the only true art form that is peculiarly American."

To kick off their new television season, Sid Caesar and Edie Adams will pool the recomedical talents in a joint, hour-long special. After that, they'll appear separately in half-hour shows on alternate Thursday night over the ABC-TV network.

"Last season I found one of the best of the new singing groups. They call themselves The Eligibles. They double exceptionally well as dancers."

"I plan to have them on regularly."

Sid decided on his production crew and permanent members of his company early in the game. His writing staff is enough to make any television performer envious. Goodman Ace is set as head writer, Selma Diamond, Jay Burton and Tony Webster back him up. He has Giselle MacKenzie and Joey Forman as regular performers, which affords solid support for both musical and comedy numbers.

Much Discussion

Sid explains his plans for the series as follows:

"After a lot of discussion with the writers, we've decided we're not going to commit ourselves (somebody else may have us committed) to any one particular theme or idea in a given show."

"We're going to make it loose and play it cool. There's one idea we've come up with, though, that we may stick with, depending upon how it works out."

"We want to have a regular segment with me as a fledgling Congressman from New York (who lives much of the time there) and show the kinds of things that can happen to such a person."

"On every show Giselle MacKenzie will sing a song. Her song will be done in a stylized way, but we're staying away from elaborate production."

"The rest of the show will be flexible."

The opening hour-long show will be unlike most of the ones to follow. It will run an hour instead of the usual half-hour. It will be the first and possibly, the only time Edie and Sid will appear together during the whole season.

The first show will be heavier on comedy than on music. "That's fine with me," says Edie. "We discovered that we played well together while filming 'Mad World.' I never really felt comfortable doing comedy, but I even feel funny when working with Sid."

Folk Music Becomes Big Business As Tin Pan Alley Jumps Aboard

BY MARSHALL GRANROS

All summer, short "fillers" appeared in Billboard, the international music-record news weekly, telling of upcoming folk festivals and hootenannies. It looked as if a change in musical tastes was "blowing in the wind."

Suddenly, in mid-August, the trend became a storm, a hurricane. Folk music had arrived, it was big, and it could be profitable. No longer buried on the inside pages, but right at the top of page one was this blaring headline:

HOOT'S THE NAME OF THE GAME THIS YEAR
SUDDENLY FOLK STUFF
TAKES OVER INDUSTRY

The mad scramble was on—for artists, for folk-type arrangements, for rights to certain songs, for the "greenback dollars" the American public seemed eager to plunk down to hear this kind of music.

More Than Fad

For those record companies and artists who had the good fortune to get on board early, gambling that it was not just a short-lived fad, the profits already were pouring in. Peter, Paul and Mary had two

Lawrence Folksingers:

Dan Miller, Carol Reed, Jon LaFarge

LP's high on the best selling list as did Joan Baez with three albums in the top 100

Also represented, with more commercial material, were Harry Belafonte, the New Christy Minstrels, and the Kingston Trio. Satirical pseudo-folk albums by the Smothers Brothers and Allan Sherman also were moving briskly.

Solid Following

Folk music had been building a solid and learned following for well over a decade. This ready-made audience, tired of the jazz cults and bored silly with rock and roll, probably was responsible for the unexpected success of ABC-TV's Saturday night "Hootenanny."

The show, off to a slow start, was about to get the axe when it suddenly caught the imagination of viewers. It now is the network's second most popular show, topped only by "Ben Casey." The show expands to a full hour in the fall season.

Reports of money clinking merrily at the turnstiles began pouring in from across the country. More than 17,000 persons, a record crowd, paid a gate gross of $38,100 to hear six folk performers at the Hollywood Bowl.

A number of packaged "hoots," comprised of various and usually unknown artists, barnstormed the country, playing a series of one-nighters to capacity audiences.

Joan Baez's first summer tour of six dates attracted an estimated 38,000 people for a gross of over $100,000. The Newport Folk Festival pulled in receipts of more than $120,000 for four concerts and 20 workshop programs in July from more than 50,000 dedicated and serious folkniks. By comparison, only 36,000 attended Newport's older, four-day jazz festival three weeks earlier.

Recordings Available

The "wait-and-see" period is over. Already a large number of recordings are available that use and capitalize on the hootenanny idea.

Few of these recordings are actual on-the-spot works. Most of the performances already were on other records or on tape sitting in the record companies' vaults. All will admirably serve the untutored as samplers of the remarkably broad range of folk music on the market or soon to come.

A hootenanny, in the modern sense of the term, is a performance by a group of folk acts in which the audience joins in by singing, applauding or in some similar manner. Chances are that sometime this summer, you saw or took part in one yourself.

Here in the Fox Valley area, enthusiastic audiences were attracted to hoots at Lawrence College in May, the highly successful Prospector Days show in July, and two crowd-pleasing meetings under the direction of the Appleton Recreation Department.

A number of high schools also have had several hootenannies, official and unofficial. One enterprising Appleton merchants capitalized on the popularity of this type of booking some of the amazingly good local folk singing groups to help him open a new young men's department at his store. Folk music is here to stay.

Don't just do something, stand there! Stand there in the crowd at the next hootenanny or folk festival or songfest and let the music come to you. It's rich and warm, sad and beautiful, rib-tickling and serious. It will move you deeply.

It will move you because you already know so much about it, without realizing you do. It will move you because it states, in direct and honest words and in simple musical stylings, belief in the goodness and weakness and strength that binds us together as members of the family of Man.

Marie Zelensky is the special guest on the radio edition of "The People Sing" at 2 p.m. today. He will play nonsense songs and discuss them with host Marshall Granros. The show is heard on WAPL, 1570, Appleton.

Old-Fashioned Sugar Bowl Sweets

The art of sugar cookery was mastered to perfection by an older generation of cooks who took so much pride in their home baking . . . breads, rolls, cakes, pies and other sweets both plain and fancy. These old-fashioned recipes shouldn't be lost and, thanks to the Sugar Bowl Kitchen of an American refining firm, they haven't been. One of the most delightful and often used cookbooks in my collection brings back warm memories of "old-time" baking days with wonderful recipes of the past . . . only they're brought up to date in method of preparation. Here are several examples of the "pursuit of sweetness."

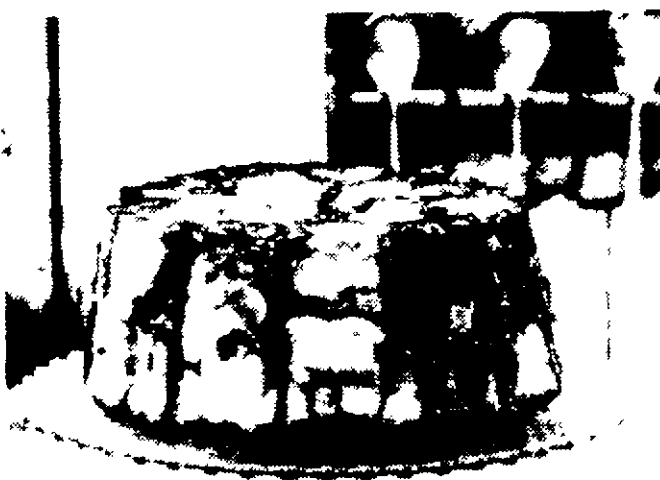

Fancy Bubble Bread

1/2 cup sugar
1 pkg. dry yeast
1/4 cup lukewarm water
2 eggs
1/2 cup lukewarm milk
1/3 cup shortening, softened
1/2 teaspoon salt
3 3/4 cups sifted all purpose flour

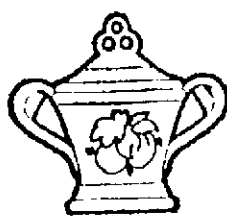

1/3 cup melted butter (about)
1 cup dark brown sugar (about)
Sugar and cinnamon
1/2 cup coarsely chopped pecans or walnuts

To prepare dough, mix sugar and yeast in large bowl, add lukewarm water, stir mixture until yeast dissolved. Blend eggs, warm milk, shortening and salt into yeast mixture. Add flour about a third at a time, blending well. Cover dough allowing to rise in warm place about one hour. When doubled in bulk, press down in bowl and let stand 10 minutes. Turn dough onto well-floured board. Divide into six parts, form six balls from each portion totaling 36 balls.

One by one roll 24 balls in melted butter, then in brown sugar. Arrange 12 balls in bottom of greased, nine-inch tube pan. Sprinkle with sugar-cinnamon and half the nuts. Arrange second layer with other 12 balls, sprinkle with sugar-cinnamon and remaining nuts. Arrange top layer with 12 buttered, unsugared balls. Cover loosely, let rise in warm place until light, about 45 minutes. Bake in 350-degree oven for 40 minutes, or until done. Allow to stand in pan on cooling rack for six minutes, then turn bread out on rack. When cool, store in semi-tight container. Recipe makes 16 to 18 slices.

Fancy Bubble Bread is made from balls of a basic yeast dough dipped in melted butter, then brown sugar and sprinkled with cinnamon sugar and chopped nuts. To make mixing easier, the recipe calls for blending of sugar and dry yeast before the addition of moisture.

Old-Fashioned Pound Cake

2 1/3 cups granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg or mace
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 cups semi-soft butter
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla or brandy extract
4 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
10 eggs

Blend first four ingredients in large mixing bowl. Cream with butter until mixture light and fluffy. Add extract. Blend flour into creamed mixture gradually, blending until thoroughly mixed. Beat eggs one at a time, into mixture, beat hard after each addition. When smooth, turn batter into greased, floured 10-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated, 325-degree oven one hour and 20 minutes, or until cake tester comes out clean and cake is golden brown. Cool thoroughly on rack, then store in airtight container at least 24 hours before serving. Cake makes 24 servings.

Yellow Layer Cake

2 cups superfine or granulated sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup semi-soft butter
4 eggs, separated
3/4 teaspoon orange extract
1/2 teaspoon lemon extract
3 cups sifted cake flour
2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk

Cream sugar, salt, butter thoroughly in large mixing bowl. Beat egg yolks into creamed mixture, one at a time, until light and fluffy. Add two extracts. Sift together flour and baking powder, add flour and milk alternately to creamed mixture, blending well after each addition. Beat egg whites at high speed until stiff but not dry, gently fold into batter. Turn into three greased and floured nine-inch cake pans. Bake in preheated, 350-degree oven about 35 minutes or until tested done. Turn layers out on cooling rack. Assemble with preferred filling, frost.

Applesauce Cake

2 cups superfine sugar
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
3/4 cup shortening
4 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
3 1/4 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon each ground cloves, nutmeg, cinnamon, allspice
2 cups (scant) applesauce
1 cup chopped pecans or walnuts
1 cup seedless raisins

Cream one and two-thirds cups sugar, salt and shortening in large bowl. Beat egg yolks into creamed mixture, one at a time, until light and fluffy. Add lemon rind.

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and spices. Add flour mixture and applesauce alternately to creamed mixture, blending well after each addition. Add nuts and raisins mix briefly. Place egg whites in large mixing bowl, beat at high speed until whites peaked but not dry. Beat in remaining third-cup sugar, a tablespoonful at a time to make meringue. Fold meringue lightly into batter. Turn into greased, floured 10-inch tube pan. Bake in preheated, 325-degree oven 75 to 90 minutes, or until cake tester comes out clean. Turn cake out on cooling rack. Store in airtight container one or more days before serving. Cake makes 16 to 20 servings.

Shock Novelist Mickey Spillane Plays Mike Hammer in New Film

BY WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — "If I do a book," Mickey Spillane observed the other day, "People think I'm a genius."

"But if I stand up to do something else, they think I'm a jerk."

As a man of action, Spillane is out to rectify such skepticism. The husky, crew-cut sire of blood-and-blond paperback best-sellers has become his own fictional hero, Mike Hammer, on the movie screen. With a time limit.

"It's a challenge to see how far you can go," he says. "I agreed that if this one came out all right, to do another. Also I've written a scenario — I'll change it into a book later—that I'd like to act in. Then I'll do a fourth film and quit."

The reviews Spillane has gotten for his initial Hammer incarnation in "The Girl Hunters" have been warm and even surprised that the ex-fighter pilot has so skillfully enacted the incarnation of his alter ego.

He is less than rhapsodic about those who have previously portrayed Hammer.

Spillane's only previous acting experience was in a 1954 celluloid, "Ring of Fear," a circus thriller that made hardly comparable demands on his thespic potential.

'Kind of Strange'

"It's kind of strange," he says of the confusion that has always existed between him and Hammer. "This cross identification has been going on for years."

Although he admittedly keeps his hardboiled operative "my own age" and provides him with "the same background," Spillane is wary about any other similarities. Asked whether Mike's penchant for mayhem is a sublimation of any suppressed actual urge, Mickey's reply is a terse: "Nah."

For some aficionados, Hammer has attained an existence more real than his creator. While "The Girl Hunters" was being made in England, the set was visited by several saturnine gentlemen. Later some members of the constabulary dropped in.

"They wanted to know what the guys had been there about," reports Spillane. "Turned out they were some mobsters, but as far as I was concerned they just wanted to see Mike."

As a followup book and film, Spillane has penned "The Snake," which starts just four hours after the previous lurid extravaganza ends. The close sequence partly makes up for the seven-year lapse during which he stopped writing about Hammer.

'Incidental Garbage'

"There wasn't any special reason," he declares. "It just gets to the point where the incidental garbage that goes with this business can overpower you."

This business, to Spillane, is a matter of manufacture rather than high-falutin' artistic creation.

"I put out products," says the man whose volumes have totalled a sale of 70 million copies. "If there's the ring of the cash register, that's enough. I'm not writing for three or four guys who pick prize novels, but for a million people who want to be entertained."

The same pragmatic attitude applies to the Spillane movie.

"All of us deferred our salaries, and brought it in under $400,000."

"Of course, if that kind of film-making idea spreads, it'll knock hell out of the star system. My idea is, if you got a good product, go out and sell it and the money will roll in."

Great Crime Essays Reprinted

Masterpieces of Murder: An Edmund Pearson True Crime Reader. Edited by Gerald Gross. Little, Brown, $5.95.

Edmund Pearson has been acclaimed as the greatest true-crime essayist America ever produced. Although he thought of himself primarily and professionally as a librarian, a bibliophile and a commentator on literature, his reputation was unparalleled in his own time.

There is virtually nothing in the literature of crime in the English language to rival the urbanity, wit, sharpness and eloquence of Pearson's narratives and scrutinies of memorable crimes. He went back to the 17th century for his specimens and came forward to his own day.

The crux of any discussion of Edmund Pearson as a crime writer, is of course, the famous Borden case. Pearson made this case especially his own, publishing book length speculations on Lizzie's guilt (of which he was convinced).

Report Criticized

In 1961 Edward D. Radin published "Lizzie Borden: The Untold Story," in which Radin attacked Pearson's report of the Borden crime. His interest in Pearson aroused by Radin's book, Editor Gross went on to read everything Pearson had written in the field of true crime.

With the discovery that Pearson has been out of print since 1937, he was seized with a desire to reintroduce him to this generation of true-crime devotees.

Gerald Gross says of Pearson, "For each case, he achieves a re-creation of the society in which the crime took place, an uncanny knowledge of the psychology of murderer and victim, and a style that perfectly evokes the atmosphere, the special quality of that particular crime. Always present is the almost sardonic humor. His is a keen sensibility, a discerning intelligence selecting, heightening the details of the crime."

Edmund Pearson was only interested in the curious crime, the finesse with which a murder was carried out, the deadliness of the female of the species, and the human comedy under extreme duress. Although he dealt with the most savage of crimes, Miriam Allen deFord points out in her introduction, that "contemporary critics compared him, not with other writers on crime, but with brilliant historians."

Definitive Essays

The book opens with several definitive essays Pearson wrote on the nature of crime and criminals, also his "Rules for Murderesses." Included are the murder of Dr. Parkman by Harvard's homicidal Professor Webster, the story of Mr. Elwell's 40 wigs, the murdering minister Rev. George Washington Carawan, and the histories of several "femmes fatales."

Time has not diminished the fascination of Lizzie Borden, the Fall River (Mass.) spinster who was acquitted of the murder of her father and stepmother almost 70 years ago. Did she or did she not, as they chanted in a contemporary jingle, "Take an axe and give them 40 whacks." Will the truth ever come out? America's most famous murder is still the most puzzling of mysteries.

Pearson believed that a murder was fundamentally a puzzle to be solved by the use of a sharp mind and all available material. His was not a world of courtroom reporters or stenographic note taking.

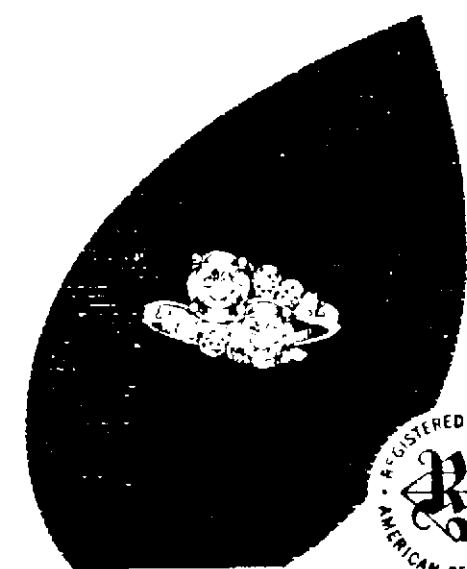

He produced five collections of true-crime reporting and a book on the Lizzie Borden murder case. Gerald Gross presents 21 selections from Pearson's books, every one a gem of variegated sparkle, displaying his dry, ironic wit, vivid narrative power and extraordinary insight into criminal philosophy and psychology.

A book for the crime connoisseur, these essays on the nature of crime and criminals by a master storyteller will be eagerly sought by collectors and enjoyed by everyone interested in his fellow man.

Gordon Setter Deserves Greater Popularity Than He Has Attained

BY BUD LARIMER

Named for the Scots Highland Duke of Gordon, this strikingly impressive Setter deserves a far higher popularity rating than he has attained. His black and tan coloration is handsome, he is rugged and enduring in build, placid of temperament, has a superlative nose, and works close to the gun. He is unusually devoted to his owner and warm relationships and high cooperation are easy to maintain with him.

One tradition has it that the usual field ability of a local shepherd's Collie came to the attention of the then Duke of Gordon some two centuries ago. She was brought up to the Castle and bred with some of the Duke's best Setters. The earliest Gordon Setters were white with black and tan markings. However, as early as 1620 a "black and fallow setting dog" had built up a considerable reputation as a grouse dog in the uplands.

Famed Household

In 1842 a George Blount brought two Gordon Castle-bred Setters, Rake and Rachel, to America. Rachel became a member of a most distinguished household, that of Daniel Webster. Later, a pup from this pair was presented to Henry Clay. Clay was no ardent dog-lover, by his own admission, but this pup must have won her way, for she, or one similar, is with him in a later painting of Clay.

In the middle 80's a finer, lighted-boned, slightly speedier type of Gordon Setter was developed and gained some prominence in the United States. As is common among the sporting dogs, there is, even today, variance in size, weight, bone, speed and coat, and the breed standard allows considerable lee-way.

Uncle Jack's Garden Diary

BY UNCLE JACK

Our next back-yard improvement project will be the reconstruction of the enclosure built a decade ago to contain the compost heap which my north European forbears regarded as basic to soil management and which most of the thoughtful horticulturists of our own time enthusiastically endorse.

The first enclosure was a rude and hurried built rectangle of building blocks beside the tool shed. As we have gradually landscaped our back lot however, the structure has been less attractive than I wanted it to be. Ergo, a new plan was drawn, calling for neat walls built of boards and chicken wire, and designed so that the sides can be removed at will and according to the needs of the season.

Flowering Shrubs

Around it will be planted some flowering shrubs of medium height, not especially to disguise our confidence in the idea of compost gardening, but because a compost heap under the best of circumstances may sometimes surprise the fastidious visitor, if it does not offend him.

The compost pile is the repository of the dozens of barrow loads of weeds, shrubs prunings, leaves, cornstalks, tomato vines, grass clippings and the scores of other sources of organic materials produced by the typical gardener. There are those who have the habit of burning such things. This is sometimes unpleasant for the neighbors, besides being a waste of precious matter that nature will transform into soil enriching compost with less effort than is required to build the bonfire.

Our place is probably somewhat larger than the average, but any gardener with a typical lawn and garden can produce during a season half a ton or so of good compost if he is willing to spare a little effort.

Compost orthodoxy calls for layering of materials, and mixing with soil for its bacterial content, and sometimes with lime and store-supplied activators

The present Gordon is at his best on Grouse and Woodcock, as he is still the slowest of the Setters, but covers his ground thoroughly and well. He is steady, takes well to training, has a natural yen for retrieving, and makes an impressively handsome sight at work.

Guards Property

He is clearly devoted and lovable to his owner, tolerant with children, yet is no mean guardian of his property. Easily trained and a delightful companion at all times, it is a loss to many sportsmen who have not tried this sturdy Scot.

He is the heaviest of the Setters, blockier and should be heavily boned and well muscled. His head is a more massive edition of the English Setter's. His coat must be black, deeply so and shimmery. The tan markings and "eye spots" must be rich and sharply defined. He stands from 23 to 27 inches at the shoulder and weighs from 45 to 75 pounds.

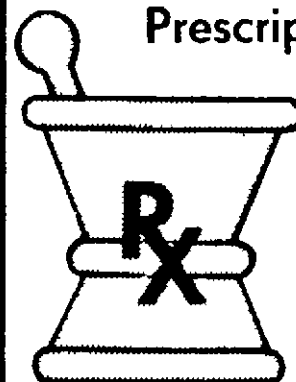

The specimen illustrated here is Ch. Downside Bonnie of Serlway, owned by George W. von Osthoff of Staatsburg, N.Y. She has been long gone to some finer hunting fields, but was one of the show greats of her time, and her numerous honors and splendid publicity made her especially regarded and respected by the Gordon Setter admirers everywhere. A rousing skirl of the old highland bagpipes for you, Bonnie, wherever you may be.

Old Home Week

For Helen Sobel

When Mrs. Helen Sobel paid a visit to friends in Los Angeles during the national tournament there it was like Old Home Week to many of the experts. Mrs. Sobel had gained her first game as a bridge expert in Los Angeles in the years before World War II.

In those days, before jet planes had shrunk the continent, the West Coast bridge community was isolated from the East. Meyer Schleiffer, Jake Erlenbach and other leading Los Angeles players felt sick when they saw this young blonde executing plays that nobody had ever heard of. She had just moved to Los Angeles from the East, and if the Eastern girls were such magnificent players, what must the Eastern men be like!

Actually, as they eventually discovered, the Eastern men were just as helpless. Helen Sobel, then Helen White, stood out from among the other bridge players of the day regardless of sex or other conditions of servitude.

Fresh Eye

The years have been kind to Helen Sobel, since she is still slim, pretty and blonde. She still wins her share of bridge tournaments, but the advantage of surprise is gone. Nobody is amazed when that little blonde comes through with the only play that can possibly work; her brilliance is now taken for granted.

Mrs. Sobel's great strength is that she looks at a bridge hand with a fresh eye. She doesn't make the routine bid or the routine play first and then regret it later.

Don't be envious of this quality unless you have the strength to support it. The fresh eye is, after all, the mark of the artist—the person who can see what is strange in what we all look at every day. Most of us don't want to be disturbed by such off-beat views.

We see this principle illustrated in the bridge hand shown today. Most bridge players would see only a familiar situation and it would never occur to them to make the one play that defeats the contract.

Mrs. Sobel opened the ten of diamonds, and dummy's jack won. Declarer led the queen of hearts from dummy for a finesse, and Mrs. Sobel won with the king.

tournament, some defenders returned a diamond, trying to play passively. Passive defense got them nowhere, since South could easily develop two spades, three hearts and four diamonds unless the defenders got there first with five tricks.

Some defenders switched to clubs, looking for an active defense. The queen of clubs was covered by dummy's king and East's ace. The defenders could get only two clubs, one spade and one heart.

Needs Only Ace

Mrs. Sobel avoided the trap of leading the queen of clubs. She needed only the ace of clubs in her partner's hand; there was no need to waste one of her club honors.

After winning the second trick with the king of hearts, Mrs. Sobel switched to a low club. This unfamiliar play in a familiar situation defeated the contract.

East took the ace of clubs and returned a club to dummy's king. This gave declarer eight tricks. When South led a spade to try for a ninth trick, Mrs. Sobel took the ace of spades and two more club tricks. This gave the defenders three club tricks in all, just enough to defeat the contract.

Zoning and Planning

A good deal of confusion over the relationship between municipal zoning and planning was evidenced recently in the dispute over two re-zoning proposals before the Appleton Common Council.

Some citizens who protested against a shopping center complex on Ballard Road and an apartment house development on South River Street complained in these terms: "What good is planning? We bought homes in these areas thinking that they would remain exclusively residential areas for all-time. Now the city wants to change everything. What about our rights?"

What people with this point of view fail to realize is that planning is a dynamic concept. Plans for the future must change as basic conditions change and as a community ages and grows. And changes in zoning must follow changing planning concepts.

Let's examine each proposition as impartially as we can.

In the case of the commercial development on Ballard Road we are dealing with an undeveloped area. It originally comprised 140 acres when it was part of the Town of Grand Chute, and it was zoned by the county for industrial and commercial use. But residences began to be built in the area, and it was annexed to the city.

Under state law, any area annexed to the city comes in as Class A residential. And any question of re-zoning does not arise until such a petition is filed.

Such a petition was filed in this case, asking for re-zoning to commercial use. It was processed and evaluated by city planning and zoning authorities. It seemed a logical use of the area. The site is at least four blocks from any residences. It is near the junction of two main cross-city thoroughfares Ballard Road and Northland Avenue. Ballard is also a main access for Highway 41. Two of the other corner locations at the intersection are in the Town of Grand Chute and still zoned industrial-commercial by the county. The other is on the county airport property which will likely become industrial, commercial and residential. The developers will be requested by the city to arrange their main exits off Ballard Road and there is indication this will be agreeable.

This then was an example of planning for the best future use of a presently undeveloped area and zoning accordingly.

The apartment house project on South River Street presents a different aspect. Generally speaking this is an older residential district of the city. Many of the homes on the street are older ones, some of which are beginning to show their age. Here a developer proposes to buy one of these older residences and build luxury, high rental apartments on the site.

What considerations must be taken into account in planning for the future of such an area?

There are three possibilities for the future of such older residences. Purchasers may renovate them for their own use, the most desirable development. But this seldom occurs today because this is an expensive undertaking and the better residences are generally being built in new sections of the city. Other purchasers may convert them into rooming houses or sub-marginal apartment type dwellings. This is the start of blight. The third possibility is the tearing down of outmoded residences and replacement with new apartment buildings. And this may be done through large-scale urban renewal programs or by private developers.

The latter is a logical use of this type of land. As a city's downtown area is rejuvenated, as Appleton's is now undergoing, there arises a demand for new and modern apartment units conveniently located to the downtown area. That demand is already evident in Appleton. In the long run such land use upgrades all property in the area, and reverses a trend toward deterioration.

However, the human element enters in as far as adjoining property owners are concerned and this important aspect of planning may become lost in the shuffle of emotions.

Incidentally, residents of the immediate area are granted considerable protection under state law. If a sufficient number of them object to a re-zoning petition, a three-quarters vote of the council is required for approval, and that is always difficult to get.

The important point here is that good zoning must accompany or follow long-range planning. It must be based on the best possible use of land areas within a city for the benefit of the city as a whole. It may cause temporary inconveniences to residents of the area concerned, and all will never agree on ultimate objectives, but if the planning and the zoning are based on that concern, it will benefit all in the long run.

The greatest tragedy in zoning is what is known as spot zoning, or considering the use of a particular piece of property on an individual basis and basing its zoning only on the exigencies of the moment. In such a case zoning has no relationship to planning, and it becomes a curse.

Fortunately we have had no cases of this kind recently in the city. Most of the men serving on the Appleton council and planning commission have a good understanding of the importance of planning that is dynamic and zoning which carries out such planning.

Test Ban Treaty Represents Act of Courage by Kennedy

BY ERIC SEVAREID

Those who write or speak — or vote — on the nuclear test ban treaty feel a certain sense of helplessness when they read the letters and mail these days from listeners and constituents. Most informed proponents and opponents of the treaty are ridden with doubts about their stand, because that is the nature of this exercise in hope, so clouded with uncertainties. But nearly all the letters from citizens, few of whom, one gathers, can have read the testimony with care, reflect no doubts at all — the treaty is a Russian trap or, conversely, the treaty is an irreversible step toward peace and friendship, an end to the cold war and sanity at long last in the affairs of man.

Would that things were so simple! If they were, this treaty would not represent an act of great courage on the part of the American leadership. It took great courage for the President to issue an ultimatum to the Soviet Union over Cuba last year and though it represents the reverse side of the coin of cold war, this treaty has required courage of much the same order, even though the test of it is less immediately in prospect. The danger in it is not as implausible as the eternally sanguine among us appear to think, the danger is not something exclusively conjured up in the passionate anti-Russian recesses of Dr. Edward Teller's complicated mind. There is a possibility, however remote, that the Soviet Union might find in advance of this country, a workable anti-missile system. There is a real possibility that many of our best weapons laboratory people will drift away that our own missiles in their silos will deteriorate in reliability as the years pass without atmospheric testing. There is a strong possibility that for some time to come at least, the treaty will not slow down the arms race.

MAY INCREASE TENSIONS

There is a strong possibility that the treaty will not decrease the military tensions between this country and Russia. Indeed, it is more likely to increase them for a time because it is what military planners don't know about the enemy that most persistently engages their worries and suspicions. There is a strong possibility that the treaty will further relax the alertness of our European allies and fasten the NATO mechanism even more thoroughly on its present dead center.

But the more one pines through the testimony and ponders its meaning, the more one realizes that while these objections are possibilities and probabilities, there are more certain advantages on the other side of the argument. One, of course, would be the sharp diminution in the radio-active dust settling upon the earth. Another would be the fairly certain slowing down of the spread of workable nuclear weapons to other countries, which has always seemed to me the most pregnant danger of all—more dangerous than any likelihood of surprise attack or war by accident.

We have gone through episodes of "peace euphoria" before—after the "spirit of Geneva" and after the "spirit of Camp David" (though I do not know that we suffered much measurable military loss as a result). But in the political "mix" that is producing the present detente there is an additional and vitally different ingredient. In the present case Mr. Khrushchev's political motivations are not solely—perhaps not even importantly—connected with his western front. They are surely concerned with China. This consideration has never before been present in anything like its current proportions. His China problem is, pre-eminently, the problem he must get under control before he does anything else, and if the Russians do abrogate this treaty it is highly unlikely that they will do so before Khrushchev has won the widespread and absolutely fundamental quarrel with China within the world of Communists. He knows that fought on purely ideological Marxist-Leninist grounds he must lose this battle. As one authority puts it: "He has visited too many doctrinal bawdy houses to stand pure before the Communist world."

NO ONE TRUSTS CHINA

The only ground on which he can fight this war with China is the "peace" ground. It is the Communists inspired from Moscow after all who have been parading year after year all over the world in their "ban the bomb" demonstrations. He must drive ahead with this, partly to try to disrupt the Western alliance, but now more urgently to beat back the Chinese influence around the world. He cannot trust China any more than we can. It is for now, totally to his interest that Chinese acquisition of a nuclear arsenal be prevented as it is to our interest.

What is happening, therefore, is not just another Camp David diversion. The test ban treaty has emerged at the moment of, and because of, a rare concatenation of world events. This is what the President thinks he sees and this is what he is seizing upon, and the Senate is surely right to give him the benefit of the doubt for this rare occasion.

New Associate Editor Writes This Column On Fall Bird Watching

BY JOHN TORINUS

Several weeks ago there was a comparatively inconspicuous announcement in the Post-Crescent that Mrs. Mary Walter had been named an associate editor of this newspaper. The thought struck me that you might like to know a little more about her.

Torinus

I cannot write too objectively about her, since she is my half-sister and a full sister of Publisher V. I. Minahan, a daughter of the former editor of this newspaper, the late V. I. Minahan Sr., who was my stepfather. That should clear up the family relationships. As you can readily perceive, we are a newspaper family.

She is the widow of the late John M. Walter who was well known in this area through his connection with Lawrence College. He was once sports editor of the Green Bay Press-Gazette and later manager of its radio station WJPG. Her appearance—she's a petite five foot two with red hair and looks like a college junior—betrays the fact that she is the mother of seven children and about to become a grandmother.

Mary has been writing editorials for the Post-Crescent and the Press Gazette, for some ten years now. Her special fields are education and foreign policy, including the UN. She is particularly well equipped in the field of education since she has served for some years on the Board of Education in her home community of DePere, and until quite recently was a member of the Board of Regents of State Colleges.

Now that her family is growing up she has taken to raising Arabian horses. How many? You guessed it—seven. This summer she built a cottage on the Lake Michigan shore in Door County, rented an abandoned farm nearby, renovated the barn and moved all the horses up along with assorted dogs and cats.

This week she revealed another interest in a story she submitted to the paper—bird watching. I thought that publishing it in this column would give you some insight into the type of humor she injects into some of her writing, a humor inherited from her Irish ancestors.

Bird watching is generally a very rewarding and undemanding hobby.

It takes a minimum of equipment—a copy of Roger Tory Peterson and a pair of binoculars are really the only essentials. Unlike sports like fishing, hunting, golf and skin diving, it isn't completely seasonal or limited to one section of the country. Moreover, it is adaptable to one's habits and foibles. I've lain abed many a chilly morning, concentrating on bird songs while other bird watchers were tramping the early dawn swamps. After several summers of careful scrutiny I can without doubt identify the sounds of the Chickadee and the Crow.

But there is one time of the year when bird watching should be abandoned. In the fall the birds simply don't cooperate.

The major problem—but not the only one—is that a lot of birds change color in the fall. The trees may take on brilliant hues, but birds have a tendency to throw away their reds and blues and stripes and polka dots of the spring and adopt feathers of a disturbing similarity. The robins and the bluejays and the English sparrows don't change much. But the warblers on their migrations to the Caribbean don't look like they're even related to those that passed through three months ago.

Peterson understates the problem with two pages on what he calls "confusing fall warblers." On one page are those who usually have streaks or wing bars. On another are those who usually don't have streaks or wing bars. But as far as I'm concerned there are only two kinds of warblers in the fall. All are an innocuous greenish-greyish yellow. All flit frantically from twig to twig just ahead of my binoculars. Half are greenish-greyish yellow with wing bars. Half are greenish-greyish yellow without wing bars.

Peterson doesn't settle for anything so simple. He says the Prothonotary is a little more yellow around the head than the Nashville and that anyone can tell the Yellow from the Pine because the latter doesn't have a streaked back. But I have a hunch that the Prairie Pine Parula and Yellow may not know themselves which is which, since they become mere streaks in the autumn trees.

The Hooded warbler who looks just like Zorro in May has doffed his mask for the far greater anonymity of greenish, greyish yellow (without wing bars). The Blackburnian, brilliant in June is greenish-greyish yellow (with wing bars). So are the Palm Myrtle, Cape May and Chestnut-Sided. And just to confuse things further, so are the Ruby Crowned Kinglet minus its scarlet streak and the Yellow Throated Vireo. Who has time to spot the size and shape of a distinguishing bill of a greenish-greyish yellowish swish in the cedars?

And to add to the bewilderment, there are the "immature" birds who haven't had time to grow into adult mantles by the time they fly south. These culprits are also to be found among the terns. It was bad enough in mid-summer when the shade of difference in the color of a bill meant that it really was a Common Tern (no connection with the Soviet Union) and not an Arctic one, sadly off course. But in the fall some have shed the black forehead. The newly grown have black patches or dusky shoulders or tails not quite so deeply forked as their parents. And who ever saw three terns sitting still long enough to determine whether the wing ends overlap the tail ends?

But even Peterson has acknowledged defeat when it comes to late summer flycatchers. Flycatchers are almost all greenish-greyish yellowish little birds with or without wing bars. But they are more likely to be dashing off into clouds of insects than from twig to twig. The Acadian, the Alder and the Least, says Peterson, should just be called "Epinodox" in September because their variations need almost a microscope to determine. However, they do say different things. The trouble here is to tell the sound from what the book says. Exactly what is the difference between "chu-wee" and "spit-chee" with the sound going up on the end when it sounds to me like "spit-wee"? But Peterson has the right idea. "Epinodox" sounds especially professional to non-bird watching friends.

There is some encouragement for the autumn bird watcher who refuses to put up the binoculars for a month and try bowling or riding to hounds. Winter soon comes and the trees will be bare of leaves. It will be very easy to see and identify the English sparrow, starling, Bluejay and Chickadee, just about all that is left by then.

Golf and Farm Relief

The village of Arcadia is a pretty and a small village in the hills of northwestern Wisconsin in Trempealeau County. We may guess that like many other smaller communities of the state it has hoped for some population growth, or a sufficient attraction to new residents to arrest the decline in residents that has been the fate of many other villages of its kind in recent years. But the villagers of this community have at least one reason to be glad that theirs is a very small town (2,048 at the last count).

Because it has fewer than 2,500 inhabitants, it has been able to get a generous federal government loan payable in 40 years at the rate of four per cent for the renovation of its community golf course and the remodeling and enlarging of the clubhouse. The loan has been granted by the Farmers Home Administration, a federal agency which by name and purpose we would have surmised was established to help farmers to buy land and livestock and machinery and the other ingredients of the economics of agriculture.

The FHA in announcing the loan of $91,500 the other day carefully explained that it is secured by a U. S. government lien on the club's buildings and grounds.

The agency also explained with perhaps just a note of pride in its enterprise and inventiveness, that this is the first loan by it to a golf club in the state of Wisconsin.

There are those skeptics who might offer another wish in the way of a footnote, namely, that it will also be the last loan of its kind by this department of the national treasury which appears to be running out of legitimate functions to occupy its budget and staff.

Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin has made a considerable stir in Washington lately with his denunciation of the "pork barrel" proclivities of the Congress of which he is a member. It may be that he should spare some of his research time for an examination of the "pork barreling" of the administrative agencies.

While the state director of the FHA blandly describes a golf course loan as an example of "good rural area development," we would nominate it instead as a horrible example of government profligacy. If this course does not produce the fees to pay off the obligation—as it obviously doesn't produce the fees to attract bank credit—will the government foreclose and run the golf course? The farm problem in America is complex and stubborn. It will become insuperable if the government's liability for its solution is extended to lengthening golf courses and boosting par from 33 to 35 in the country villages of the land.

Warren Spahn Day

No adopted son of the state of Wisconsin ever more deserved a day set aside in his honor than Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves who will be so honored Tuesday.

Spahn has established himself as one of the greatest left-handed pitchers in the history of baseball. His name already appears in the record book in numerous places and at age 42 he shows no signs of tapering off in the setting of additional records.

As Governor Reynolds remarked in his proclamation: "At a time of life when other men complain about mowing the lawn, he continues to display a physical vigor that is the envy of all."

But even more important in the long-range outlook than his feats on the baseball diamond is the image of the fine sportsman which he has established among all baseball fans and the public at large. It is an image of a man who maintains himself in top physical condition at all times, of one who conducts himself like a gentleman on and off the field of an athlete who serves as a model and an inspiration to youngsters.

Every Wisconsin citizen Tuesday has the opportunity to thank Warren Spahn for what he has done for the Braves and for sport in the state since coming here from Boston, and to wish him additional years of achievement in his profession.

State Pay Raises Another Incentive for Inflation

Editor, Post-Crescent

The hike in the state house pay has been a good political move but how will it effect our society at a time when there is so much unrest and dissatisfaction? It's like starting a fire on a dry windy day and then going away and leaving it. As far as our political leaders are concerned it was a victory. Next year when it comes election they will not be forgotten after that generous hand out of taxpayer's money. The governor will gain at least 18 more buddies along with all the newly appointed jobs including a leading Milwaukee Socialist. With all these pitching for him, what will the harvest be?

How wonderful it will be for the N.F.O. organizers to be able to tell the farmers that if the governor is entitled to a raise of $5,000 they are surely entitled to $5 per cwt for milk and the labor union leaders the same story. What an example it sets for society. Just what does it all mean? A raise in wages, a rise in cost of production, a rise in cost of production, a rise in prices, a rise in prices will mean a (C) in the value of our dollar.

In 30 years the value of our dollar has been reduced to 30 cents by raising wages and prices. Surely it's only reasonable to believe that if we continue the way we are going that sooner or later the value of our money will be reduced to little or nothing. If so what will our Social Security, Life Insurance, stocks and bonds etc amount to? That's the No. 1 issue today and not taxes, good roads, higher education, etc. What will $5 per cwt for milk be worth if five dollars is worth nothing? That's one for the voters to figure out and not our politicians. Let's figure history repeats itself. We read in history of what eventually happened to other countries when they followed the same course that we are taking. Just in our own short lives we can look back and see what happened to Germany when the Germans let inflation and socialism creep in.

I may be wrong and I hope I am but I feel that every one of our state house people that voted for that pay hike and the reappointment bill are entitled to a one way ticket a year from November.

Quiet Progress Misses Headlines in Turmoil of Race Crisis

BY RFLMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Strife in the streets, wholesale arrests and a swelling chorus of Negro protest have dominated the story of race relations in the United States, especially this year. But this story has another side.

In the schools, in the field of public facilities, in Negro voter registration, in efforts to reduce dropouts and delinquency, in many areas of the whole problem — some gains have been achieved. In numerous communities, North and South, the search for solutions is moving forward with increasing momentum.

Obviously, as the march on Washington demonstrated, the pace hasn't fast enough to suit the Negro leadership. They are shouting, "Now!" Discussing the point in a recent interview, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said:

"An awful lot has been accomplished." Then he quickly added, "But you have to look at this in context — an awful lot still remains to be done." This side of the story, the quieter, more hopeful side, is not well known. Peace may have its victories no less than war, but they seldom attract as much attention.

The Schools

Let's look at some major sectors in the list of peaceful victories.

First the schools — The authoritative publication,

Southern School News, reported last month that 113 public school districts in 17 southern and border states will begin desegregating this fall. It said this is "the largest number of districts to drop racial barriers in any year since 1964."

In the 17 states, the paper said, there are approximately 6,196 school districts. The total of these desegregating, with the addition of the expected 113 this year, will reach 1,002, it said.

This is a little more than one-sixth. Moreover, it is estimated that only about eight per cent of the Negro children of school age in these states are enrolled in desegregated schools. The figure should rise slightly this year.

Hence, on the one hand, the Negro can see some concrete gains for his race. But on the other, he sees the five-sixths of the schools that are still segregated, and the estimated 92 per cent of the Negro children attending them.

Dropout Problem

Another facet of the school problem concerns the dropout, who may then go on the lists of unemployed and then become a juvenile delinquent.

This is under study in 16 communities, mainly in the North, by the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Crime. In a recent report, the committee described its operations as "a series of demonstration projects which have effectively mobilized community resources to give all children a chance to become useful citizens."

These projects, of course, embrace white children as well as Negroes.

But in districts with a high percentage of Negroes, the problems are particularly acute. The dropout rate among Negroes appears to be generally higher, just as the figure for Negro unemployed is about double the national average.

As one example, the report cited the Hough area of Cleveland.

Survey Results

It said that in 1940, Hough had been 90 per cent white. By 1960, it was 73 per cent Negro. In these two decades the average education tenure remained unchanged — 9.2 years in school. The area, with nine per cent of Cleveland's population, accounts for 25 per cent of the city's social problems. But the report said:

"Hough, for all its problems, is no worse than parts of Chicago, New York City, Los Angeles, or any other major American city."

In the District of Columbia last year, the report said, 85 per cent of the juvenile court cases involved Negroes, although they represent 66 per cent of the 7-to-17 age groups.

In a section of North Philadelphia, the committee found 80 per cent of the youth out of school and out of work. In another, the dropout rate was above 65 per cent as compared with a citywide rate of 37 per cent.

Other communities across the nation add similar details to the picture.

How to change it?

Keeping children in school off the streets, or finding jobs for them appear to be immediate answers.

New York Project

Thus in New York City, two of the federal "demonstration projects" are in operation, one in Harlem, the other on the lower east side. An official describes a new philosophy in education.

"As the public school system grew, it never really assumed any responsibility for doing anything about dropouts and failures. Now we are trying to change that, to change the teachers' attitude, the attitude of the parents, and to change the curriculum in a way that will hold a student who is heading for failure and becoming a dropout."

These "preventive measures," he said, include the effort to create a home environment that will be more conducive to study, and impressing parents with the greater necessity for education as the market for unskilled labor shrinks steadily. "Very few parents can afford tutors," he said, "but we have found that older children often are quite effective in tutoring at home."

Frequently the problem is purely financial. One example—

In the District of Columbia a Negro boy was about to drop out of school for lack of carfare, lunch money and shoes. Residents of the community created a fund to meet his case and others like it.

"He graduated first in his class," said a federal official, "and was the colonel of his ROTC unit."

Fund Committee

Today, the District has a Stay-in-School Fund Committee which tries to provide subsidies and part-time jobs for needy students. Federal officials express hope that it will become a "model" for similar groups around the country.

Similarly, in New York, a half-work-half-classroom pattern has been devised. A student who needs money is given a part-time job on his promise that he will attend school the rest of the time. An official said the city has about 700 such jobs available.

In Harlem, New York's giant Negro district, a unique, broad-based private program to solve social problems affecting adults as well as children is under way. The organizers are Negroes, Mrs. Cora Walker, an attorney, and Dr. Leo Maitland, a surgeon.

They propose to set up a Negro business and professional body, with these objectives:

"The work of this group shall be to hold career clinics, workshops in community living, business relationships, international relations, education (stressing appreciation of our cultural heritage), health projects, music, establish a program which will create and develop a new image which our youth can realistically relate to and follow."

For a long time Dr. Maitland and Mrs. Walker have been urging Negroes to do more to help themselves, using their own resources to establish their own businesses and commercial operations.

The root of the Negro's problem, Dr. Maitland says, is not always economic or a lack of education. He says it is "slave mentality." He defines this as a reluctance to come to grips with personal problems to accept responsibility, and to cast off a centuries-old tendency to look to others for help.

Slave Mentality

"Slave mentality still exists among Negroes," he says, "but it can be overcome. Self-help projects will awaken our people to the fact that they can help themselves."

Mrs. Walker said in a recent speech, "We cannot continue to blame the white man for all our problems." She said Negro parents fail to give their children "the most important things such as self-determination, ambition, a sense of responsibility, pride in race, dignity, a camaraderie with their own, and worthwhile goals to strive for."

Another new organization is beginning to operate on the legal front. Last month, "Coordinator," a publication devoted to news of legal matters, reported.

"More than 130 lawyers, including 6 past presidents of the American Bar Association and 12 state bar presidents have volunteered for membership on the new lawyers' committee for civil rights under law."

Between May 22 and Aug. 16 of this year a Justice Dept. tally showed 134 theaters, 122 restaurants, 54 hotels and 91 lunch counters were desegregated in a survey of 566 cities in 11 southern and border states.

The totals in these four categories — since some had been desegregated before May 22 — were reported as 233, 358, 202 and 294.

More Action

You can see the physical picture of this activity in the form of a huge map of the region. It is studded with flags and pins, marking the places where some desegregation has taken place. They are getting thick in some states.

The Wall Street Journal recently interviewed a number of businessmen on the effect of desegregation. It said:

"Among these restaurants, hotels, theaters and other places of public accommodation in the South that have begun serving or hiring Negroes, only a few report suffering any lasting economic consequences. A sizeable number in fact declare that business has better than ever."

In his Aug. 16 report on public facilities in the South, Asst. Atty. Gen. Louis Oberdorfer also updated his figures on the formation of biracial committees. He wrote Robert Kennedy:

"There were 75 biracial committees organized prior to May 22 and 110 have been set up since that date, which means that groups are working toward voluntary desegregation of public facilities in at least 184 cities."

Negro organizations are making progress in the exceedingly important field of voter registration. It now is possible to cite counties in the South where, a year or two ago there were only a few Negro voters, or none at all, whereas today there are hundreds. The Justice Dept. has assisted this move, sometimes with lawsuits, sometimes merely with the threat of lawsuits, frequently by trying simply to persuade registration boards.

The racial problem in the North is focused on jobs and housing.

"Demonstration projects" include trying to provide Negro teen-agers with specialized skills. Training projects are under study for Negroes in a number of cities. There is also an effort to persuade labor unions to open their ranks to more Negroes and quota systems have been suggested. (The President said in a recent news conference he does not think this is a good idea.)

But probably the most important development in this year, especially since the Birmingham demonstrations of last May, is a subtle, immeasurable fact — more people, especially in the North, have been forced to an awareness of the problem of civil rights in America. Mrs. Ruby Hurley, southern regional director for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, once remarked:

"It never occurs to most white people to wonder why they don't see Negroes in the public library, the public parks, or any other public institution. They're not intolerant or bigoted, necessarily. It just never has occurred to them."

In a northern city recently, a white woman said "I never used to notice Negroes particularly or think about their problems. Now I do."

Preachers Whip Up New Fervor In Hill Country Snake Worshipers

BY HAMILTON GREGORY

RAINSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — A half-dozen fiery preachers from the hills of Kentucky brought their snakes to a little church here on a summer Sunday afternoon to rekindle the faith of their backslid Alabama brethren.

Emanuel Saylor, a young man from Pineville, Ky., exhorted some 250 members of the First Strait Creek Holiness Church and thus challenged laws in most southern states forbidding the handling of reptiles in religious rites.

"I'm not afraid to go to jail," said Saylor. "St. Paul didn't mind being in jail and I don't either."

The snakehandlers say man's law should be broken if it conflicts with God's law. They base their religion on the Gospel according to St. Mark, Chapter 16, verses 17-18.

"And these signs shall follow them that believe: In my name shall they cast out devils, they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing, it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

Although these verses are blazoned in big letters on a wall of the little white church the Alabamians had not been "taking up serpents" with any degree of regularity until the Kentucky preachers arrived.

Dangerous Snakes

Most of the members sat on benches facing a platform which was cluttered with boxes of rattlers and copperheads. At one end of the platform were about 20 men and facing them were an equal number of women. There was no preacher as such and members arose to speak "when the Lord moved them."

Amid incoherent shouting — some of it not unlike an auctioneer's chant — the congregation encouraged the speakers with cries of "That's right!" and "Thank the Lord!" and "Praise His precious name!"

The shouts grew louder and the worshippers waved their hands heavenward, many of them speaking in "unknown tongues."

Reaching a fever pitch the congregation burst into fast-paced mountain Gospel music. Accompanied by four electric guitars and some tambourines the members sang of life after death.

"I gotta home up in glory
"I gotta place up in the sky
"I gotta home up in glory
"That's where I'm going when I die."

The songs gave way to an intense chant and the worshippers jumped to their feet and loudly clapping their hands a loudly emitting eerie moans.

On the platform the snakes were snatched from the boxes as the congregation shrieked with delirious delight.

The men and women on the platform fondled the snakes tossed them back and forth among themselves. They jumped up and down screaming with ecstasy.

A young man, a look of rapture on his face, grasped a copperhead and held it in front of his mouth, daring the serpent to strike.

This lasted for 10 long, exciting minutes then eased abruptly. The snakes were returned to the boxes. The worshippers sat down.

After a healing service, during which the faithful laid hands on the sick and the lame and loud ly beseeched for divine miracles, the members drifted out of the church, went to their cars and brought forth big baskets of food. Under a large shade tree, tables were laden with an abundance of golden boiled corn, red ripe tomatoes and, of course, Southern fried chicken.

The men often greeted one another with a hug and kiss. Dressed in overalls or slacks they wore white shirts open at the collar. They shun neckties. They shun neckties because Jesus did not wear them. The women, shunning makeup, wore plain print dresses.

Revival Needed

"We needed a revival," said Joe Jackson, an aged church member who almost died once from a copperhead bite. "This church has been out of touch with the Lord."

The rural sect has churches in Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Florida. It was founded in 1909 in Grasshopper Valley, Tenn., not far from Chattanooga.

There is no organization, no leader and little communication among the churches. Each fashions its own religion as it pleases.

No one can estimate the number of snake handling churches or of the size of the congregations. Some are secret. A Kentucky believer says some cultists in Virginia have no church building but worship clandestinely in a secluded forest.

Friendly unpretentious folk the cultists are innately suspicious of strangers and in recent years have adamantly refused to allow pictures of their rites. They do not wish to stir law officers who in the past have arrested cultists.

Death Toll

There has been no official count of the number of deaths from serpent bites, but newspaper clippings reveal at least 20 such deaths in religious services in the last three decades.

There may have been many more. A part little teenaged mountain girl, who plays the guitar in a tiny, obscure Kentucky church, said she has witnessed two persons die on the church floor in recent years. The hands of some snakehandlers are gnarled by periodic bites.

The cultists — who occasionally drink poison and stick their hands in blisters as supreme tests of faith — do not believe in medicine. If a member is sick or suffers a snake bite, they pray for him. If he dies from snake venom, that means either: (1) He didn't have enough faith in God or (2) "The Lord took him away" to test the faith and endurance of those who remain behind.

In 1964, in Rising Fawn, Ga., a 68-year-old man was bitten by a snake during a service. The congregation gathered around him, placed hands on him and prayed loudly. He requested they sing a special song and as he died in their arms they sang, "I'm getting ready to leave this world."

Uneasy South Africa Prepares for Trouble

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Faced with a vigorous African nationalist movement on her most critical borders, racially segregated South Africa lives in an atmosphere of nervous preparation for the attack which her leaders predict could come any time within the next two years.

A former South African deputy commissioner of police, Brig. J. C. Lemmer, says he believes the attack will be preceded by an attempt to stir an internal revolution.

Formation of civilian defense units trained to combat radio active fallout, poison gas and germ warfare has been suggested by Lemmer.

Many white South Africans are perturbed at the sudden change of heart expressed by the all-white Nationalist government which in the first flush of reaction to the Addis Ababa conference earlier this year scoffed at the African heads of state pledge to form an African "liberation army" aimed at the overthrow of the continent's last bastions of white supremacy.

During the closing session of South Africa's 1963 parliamentary session in Cape Town the word "war" was echoed repeatedly in Nationalist speeches.

Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd said: "Nobody wants war less than I do, but the African states have tried to frighten us in Addis Ababa and have become too big for their boots."

"We will not bend before pressure and, should South Africa be threatened we will offer all, no matter how horrifying the prospects," he said.

The continued threat of boycotts and sanctions from independent African states and the growing pressure from overseas critics condemning South Africa's racial policies is pushing South Africa behind a white curtain of armed isolation on the southernmost tip of the continent.

Civilian home guards units train in many major cities. Schools plan to introduce anti-sabotage training for their pupils.

During school holidays teen-age girls undertake a "week-end" course, learning hand-to-hand combat and pistol shooting.

In recent months the demand for light firearms had outstripped stocks and dealers face shortages.

It is estimated that half of South Africa's three million whites have guns and know how to use them.

Tear gas shells and canisters are readily available to any white over 18 years of age.

South Africa's defense minister, Jim Fouché, continues to stock the country with modern weapons, including rocket-firing jet aircraft and naval vessels.

South Africa's defense buildup has been intensified since the Addis Ababa conference. This country can call on 250,000 trained men in an emergency, in addition to 30,000 regular police and a civilian home guard force estimated at 20,000.

full-time patrols along the neighboring British protectorate borders of Swaziland, Bechuanaland and Basutoland.

These protectorates offered escape routes and hideouts for banned African nationalists, some of whom openly organized militant, anti-South African groups of saboteurs with the protectorates.

To combat the high cost and the possibility that overseas suppliers would be reluctant to supply modern weapons, South Africa intends undertaking its own arms research and manufacturing.

Army units also stage an impressive show of strength. Housewives attend weekly "pistol parties" where tea-sipping is mingled with target practice.

Latest South African defense weapon, a tear gas spray, is demonstrated by a housewife in Johannesburg. The handbag size canister, designed primarily for women, costs $11. Only whites over 18 can buy it. The spray, effective up to 12 feet, totally blinds the victim for 10 minutes. It is said to leave no harmful effect. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Backers Aiming for Vote on Test Pact

Without Opposition Cooperation, Senate Debate May be 3 Weeks

WASHINGTON (AP)—The bipartisan Senate leadership balked at previous tries—will make new attempts this week to bring the limited nuclear test-ban treaty to the voting stage.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Democratic majority leader, conceded Saturday that unless the opposition cooperates, the debate may extend into its third week.

He and Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the minority leader from Illinois, made two efforts last week to advance the parliamentary stages of the treaty to move from debate on the pact itself to the resolution of ratification.

Reservations Until that is done, reservations and understandings which have been offered to the resolution, can not be called up for debate and votes.

Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., a foe of the pact, twice blocked the bipartisan leadership's joint requests for unanimous consent to bring up the resolution. But he refused to say whether he plans to offer an amendment to the treaty, which would be barred by the motion.

While the motion could be offered to advance the treaty—and the leadership has the votes to do it—it would be subject to unlimited debate.

Once the resolution comes up, the Senate faces votes on:

1. A reservation by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., to write into it the U.S. right to use its nuclear weapons at its own choosing in defense of either the United States or its allies. The leadership says this right is amply protected by declarations by President Kennedy, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and by interpretations in the Foreign Relations Committee report.

Goldwater Plan 2. Another reservation by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., postponing the effectiveness of the treaty until after the Soviets have removed all their troops from Cuba and permitted international inspection to verify the departure.

3. An amendment by Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, to add to the resolution the Senate's insistence that any amendments Russia or any other signatory proposes to the ratification by its constitutional two-thirds majority.

4. A series of five understandings proposed by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

School Boycott In Alabama Not All Successful

gated schools in Birmingham. Some students walked out in sympathy, but most of them stayed in class.

The demonstrating students, most of them from West End high where the peak attendance during last week was little more than one-third of normal, shouted anti-Negro yells and waved Confederate flags and pro-segregation placards.

But from the boys and girls themselves, there was little disorder. Police had little difficulty in handling the crowds once the students realized the officers meant business.

When adult sympathizers mingled with the yelling teenagers, it got rough on several occasions. Police arrested more than a dozen white men, including some members of the race-baiting National States Rights party.

Mass Meeting Student leaders from now-integrated West End have called a mass meeting Sunday afternoon at suburban Midfield to see where they go from here. The gathering, to which parents also have been invited, could bring a back-to-school movement, or it could stiffen the resistance.

Leaders of the National States Rights party spearheading the demonstrations have demanded private white schools, but with little measure of success so far.

But at Tuskegee, where all of the white students in the high school have walked out or transferred to schools in adjoining counties, a private school foundation is well under way with a promise of help from Gov. George C. Wallace.

At newly desegregated Ramsay High and Graymont Elementary School in Tuskegee, there has been little organized absenteeism.

No Mass Protest

And at Huntsville, the first city in Alabama to let Negroes enter white schools, there has been no evidence of a mass protest. Several hundred teen-agers demonstrated at Mobile, the fourth city with integrated schools, but police swiftly arrested 54 students and there was little trouble thereafter.

Over-all, attendance in the nine desegregated schools in the four cities has been about 85 per cent of normal.

President, His Wife Play 13 Holes at Newport Golf Course

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President and Mrs. Kennedy played 13 holes of golf Saturday, using an electric cart to whiz along the fairways.

The Kennedys and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bradlee, weekend house guests from Washington, went to the Newport Country Club after a 90-minute cruise aboard the White House yacht Honey Fitz.

Kennedy abandoned golf temporarily nearly a month ago because of a recurrence of back trouble. His use of a golf cart apparently was a concession to his back.

Chiang's Son Says Reds at Weakest Moment

General Chiang Ching-kuo, son of Nationalist China's President Chiang Kai-shek, said Saturday Communist China has reached its "weakest moment" since the Reds seized power in 1949 and the Peking regime is now at its most vulnerable point.

Winding up a five-day official visit, the general, 53, told a news conference:

"Anti-Communist uprisings on a small scale have been occurring in various parts of mainland China. Our problem now is how to organize these sporadic actions into a large and organized revolt."

Reynolds Hits at Spending of Local Governments

MADISON (AP)—Gov. John W. Reynolds said Saturday that while state employees are often blamed for high government costs, the real spending problem lies with local governments.

Speaking at a convention of the Wisconsin State Employees Association, the governor said local governmental units spend 61 cents of every dollar spent by local and state governments in Wisconsin.

He pointed to a recent Legislative Reference Library study to support his argument. It showed Wisconsin workers among the seven Great Lakes states with a rate of 342 employees per 10,000 population.

But Reynolds said the study also showed that Wisconsin has only 67 state government employees per 10,000 population. "The figure for state government employees was the third lowest among the seven states," Reynolds said.

U. S. to Inspect Antarctic Bases

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has announced it will carry out an inspection of bases in Antarctica — including four maintained by the Soviet Union — under a 1959 treaty binding 12 nations to use the area only for peaceful purposes.

The inspection, to be carried out between November and March "is not based on any anticipation that there have been treaty violations," indeed the United States believes that any inspection... will in fact reinforce the basis of mutual confidence that prevails in Antarctica." The State Department said.

The statement said the United States has advised other treaty nations that it would welcome an inspection of U.S. bases.

The treaty specifically forbids any nuclear explosions or the disposal of radioactive waste material.

One of Dionne Quints Excited About News of South Dakota Event

MONTREAL (AP)—Annette Allard roused her husband, Germain, from a late morning sleep Saturday to tell him about the birth of quintuplets in Aberdeen, S.D.

doctor told her she could expect quintuplets," said her husband, "she started crying and cried all night."

The other Fischer children are ages 3½ to 7.

Fischer himself was a picture of weariness as he answered questions at St. Luke's Hospital. He had been up all night.

It was an effort, but he managed a smile when a photographer asked him to hold up five fingers to symbolize the rare births.

"I'm very pleased, but I need some rest," he said.

Fischer, a farmer, said he plans to stay in the nine-room rented house to which he moved his family a year ago "to keep the kids out of traffic." When will he go back to work?

"As soon as people stop asking me questions and knocking on my door."

Not Worried He said he isn't particularly worried about his doubled family.

"I don't know how, but I'm sure my wife and I will be able to take care of them, the same as the five others."

Was he nervous? "I'm too tired to be nervous," he sighed.

Dr. Berbos said he estimated the babies' weights at 2½ to 3 pounds for the girls, about 4 pounds for the boys.

As for the quintuplets' birth, the doctor was chatty and happy.

"We made it, but it was nerve-racking," he grinned.

"We knew long ago that she would have more than one child," he said, but did not suspect quintuplets until X rays last Wednesday. "I suspected triplets," he admitted.

Berbos, 40, is a general practitioner, a doctor who treats cuts and bruises and broken bones, along with delivering babies. As for babies, he's delivered a lot of them—200 a year at times, he says.

Friends say his real love is medicine. They tell a story that he made a vow, when he was 10 and saw his mother die, that he would be a doctor and save as many lives as he could.

He has been in practice 16 years. He's 6 feet 3 and weighs a husky 210, but his youthful looks belie his age.

Aberdeen, a city of some 23,000 in northeastern South Dakota, was excited with the news. Offers of assistance for the family poured into its daily newspaper and radio stations. One contractor sent in a check for $500.

Cows Milked Merchants volunteered clothing and a new washer and dryer. Relatives pitched in to milk the cows and tend the five other youngsters while Fischer sought sleep.

Birth of the South Dakota quintuplets followed by a week a similar birth in Venezuela. Quadruplets were born to a woman in Jackson, Miss., a week ago and a report from Iran told of another set of quads Saturday.

Only two sets of quintuplets born in the Western Hemisphere have survived infancy — the famed Dionnes of Canada in 1934 and the Diligent children in Argentina in 1943.

Mrs. Fischer was "tired and emotionally upset, but happy," said a hospital aide.

The first birth, a girl, came at 1:58 a.m. The boy was the fourth born, the fourth girl was born at 3:01 a.m.

The babies were placed immediately in isolettes — individual chambers which control oxygen, temperature and humidity. They won't be weighed for a day or two and likely won't be fed at least until Sunday, the usual procedure in premature births.

First Multiple Birth Fischer said he had not known of any multiple births in his or his wife's families. His other children are Danny, 7; Charlotte, 6; Julie, 5; Evelyn, 4½, and Denise, 3½.

In Newport, R.I., President and Mrs. Kennedy learned of the birth of the five children and sent a telegram of congratulations to the Fischers.
